Stockholder Denies Its Validity in Action for $54,300,000 Due From Central Republic Bank.

SAYS THEREFORE IT CAN'T COLLECT

Declares Creation of Government 'Fiscal Agent' Violates Ninth and Tenth Amendments.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, Feb. 8.—Citing case after case in which the Supreme Court of the United States has defined the limits of the constitutional power of Congress, Attorney John E. Hughes, in his brief attacking the constitutionality of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, argued that the major purposes for which the RFC was created were beyond the power of Congress to legislate upon, and therefore the act creating the Government's great lending corporation should be held invalid.

The whole act and the admitted functions of the RFC, he contended, were only another example of the attempt by Congress to accomplish indirectly that which it had no power to do directly, a course repeatedly condemned by the Supreme Court and most recently stamped with the brand of unconstitutionality in the decisions overthrowing the NRA and the AAA.

The brief was filed with Federal District Judge James H. Wilkerson here Friday in behalf of a defendant in the Reconstruction Finance Corporation's suit to collect $10,000,000 from the stockholders of the Central Republic Bank & Trust Co., which still owes the RFC $54,391,396 on account of a loan of $80,000,000 obtained in 1932.

Attorney Hughes argued that the suit should be dismissed on the ground that the act creating the RFC was unconstitutional which would make the RFC null and void and without power to prosecute the suit and the court without jurisdiction to hear it.

Basis of Attack.

The constitutionality of the act was challenged on two broad grounds, first, that there is no provision in the Constitution authorizing it, and second, that it offends the ninth and tenth amendments. The ninth amendment states that, "the enumeration in the Constitution of certain rights, shall not be construed to deny or disparage others retained by the people," and the tenth amendment provides that, "Powers not delegated to the United States by the Constitution, nor prohibited by it to the states, are reserved to the states respectively or to the people."

Hughes quoted from the Supreme Court's opinion holding the first child labor law unconstitutional: "Thus the act in a two-fold sense is repugnant to the Constitution. It not only transcends the authority delegated to Congress over commerce, but also exerts a power as to a purely local matter to which the Federal authority does not extend."

Among the provisions of the RFC act which Hughes contended were directly contrary to constitutional powers of Congress are these:

That nothing in the act should be construed to authorize the corporation "to deny an otherwise acceptable application (for a loan) . . . because of constitutional or legal inhibitions or because the state or territory (making the application) has borrowed to the full extent authorized by law." This, he argued, was subversive of the limitations of state laws and "a clear invasion of the rights of the people of the states."

Regulation of Wages.

That on certain projects for which loans were made, "no individual directly employed on any such project shall be permitted to work more than 30 hours in any one week, and that in the employment of labor in connection with any such project preference shall be given, where they are qualified, to ex-service men with dependents." This, he said, was an attempt to regulate wages and conditions of work in intrastate undertakings, which the Supreme Court had held Congress had not the right to do.

That the RFC might make loans to and buy preferred stock of certain types of corporations, including banks, insurance companies, railroads and corporations organized to aid agriculture. Hughes argued that the power to make such loans and take mortgages as security was equivalent to the power to purchase the businesses, and that as the Government did not itself have the

NEW $1,026,340 INCOME TAX CLAIM BY TREASURY AGAINST JOHN J. RASKOB

Action in Case of "Unreported" $4,875,057 for 1929, in Reply to Appeal From $15,978 Assessment.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.—The Treasury replied to John J. Raskob's appeal from a $15,978 deficiency assessment today by billing him for an additional $1,026,340.40 on "unreported income" in 1929.

In a brief closely paralleling its answer to a similar appeal from Pierre S. du Pont, the Government charged the two men had an agreement to create "fictitious" losses on stock sales for income tax purposes.

Raskob, a close friend of Alfred E. Smith, is a former chairman of the Democratic National Committee, which has just completed paying back loans he advanced to the party before the advent of the New Deal.

Both Raskob and du Pont are prominent contributors and members of the American Liberty League. Defending du Pont, Raskob recently charged "political persecution" in the tax case, citing the League's opposition to President Roosevelt. Secretary Morgenthau replied that "The Treasury will try its case in the courts, and not in the newspapers."

Treasury Brief Figures.

The Treasury answer, prepared by Arthur Kent, signed by Herman Oliphant, general counsel, and filed with the Board of Tax Appeals, charged $4,875,057.89 should be added to Raskob's return as taxable income for 1929. This sum, the Treasury charged, was either unreported or improperly deducted for stock sale losses.

The brief said Raskob and du Pont entered into an agreement to "create fictitious losses for the purposes of understating their net taxable incomes respectively for the year 1929."

It charged du Pont was to "pretend" to sell securities to Raskob at prices below what du Pont had paid for the stock, and that Raskob was to make similar resales.

Raskob's statement on the du Pont case admitted the stock transactions, but contended he and Du Pont had merely taken advantage of the provision afforded by law to "establish" losses they actually had incurred through the drop in market value of stocks.

The Government brief contained copies of letters from Raskob to du Pont, and recited details of transactions involving almost $30,000,000 during 1929. Raskob, the brief said, received checks totaling about $14,883,401 from du Pont, while du Pont received $14,883,354 from Raskob, leaving a difference of only $46.86 upon completion of their transactions.

Raskob deducted alleged stock losses of $4,375,523 from his 1929 tax return while du Pont subtracted $3,120,646.

Specifically, the Treasury said today that the $4,375,523 which Raskob deducted consisted of a "fictitious loss" under the terms of his agreement with du Pont and should be restored to taxable income.

"Erroneously Allowed."

It also took exception to a deduction of $80,434 "erroneously allowed" it said, by its own Bureau of Internal Revenue, arising from a loss claimed by Raskob in connection with the "pretended" sales of Warner Bros. and Checker Cab stocks.

Moreover, the Treasury said Raskob failed to report income of $95,036 earned from operations in a Simms Petroleum Co. syndicate and $324,064 from Fox Theater Corporation operations.

The brief said that, on Jan. 6, 1930, Raskob drew a check in favor of du Pont for $5,289,500 when his balance at the close of that day was only $2,161,665.

It also said his credit balance at the bank at the close of business Jan. 8 was $2,116,590, and that no credits were made to his account in the bank in the meantime except a sum of $4780.

JAPANESE TROOPS REPORTED AT OUTER MONGOLIA BORDER

Soviet Dispatch Tells of Massing of Forces; Russian Army Said to Be Moving, Too.

By the Associated Press.

MOSCOW, Feb. 8.—The approach of Japanese-Manchoukuan troops to the vicinity of the outer Mangolian border was reported tonight in Soviet dispatches from Ulan Bator.

Truckloads of soldiers and cavalry have been concentrating two miles from the frontier post of Bulun Dersu, the reports said.

The dispatches asserted the Japanese-Manchoukuans fired on the Mongolians from a distance but that there were no casualties.

Unconfirmed Chinese press accounts, a Shanghai dispatch said today, stated that both Soviet and Mongolian armies and Japanese-Manchoukuan forces were moving near the outer Mongolian border.

FALL IN TEMPERATURE 25 DEGREES IN TWO HOURS

Latest Cold Wave Carried Into City by a 38-Mile-an-Hour Wind; Snowfall Negligible.

The new cold wave which swept in yesterday brought the most sudden drop in temperature of this winter. The thermometer fell 25 degrees in two hours, dropping from 35 at noon to 10 above zero at 2 p. m. At 9 o'clock last night it was 2 above zero.

The cold wave came in on a wind estimated at 38 miles an hour between 2 and 3 p. m. Snowfall amounted only to .1 of an inch. Ice in the Mississippi River here remained almost stationary. Due to blocking in the river further south, the river here continued to rise. On Jan. 31 the river stage was —1.9 feet, whereas last night it was 9.5 feet, a rise of 11.4 feet.

The cold weather is expected to moderate by tomorrow.

BOY'S TEAM OUTRUNS WOLVES

Hungry Animals Pursue North Dakota Lad With Load of Meat.

By the Associated Press.

DEVILS LAKE, N. D., Feb. 8.—A pack of hungry wolves pursued a farm boy on his way to town with a load of milk and meat today, but the speed of his horses carried him out of reach.

Raymond Rutten Crary, on his arrival here, said he was driving along the lake bottom seven miles from town, when seven wolves, the leader a huge timber wolf, emerged from the brush and started in pursuit. Crary's horses, frightened, broke into a run. The youth said that at times the wolves were so close he considered throwing out the supply of meat but the animals were outdistanced after a two-mile run.

His father and mother had been divorced, and for 16 years the son lived in France. He came to Hungary and turned thief, but did not know he was breaking into his mother's rooms.

CHARLES CURTIS' FUNERAL TUESDAY AT TOPEKA, KAN.

Ex-Vice-President Succumbed to Heart Attack at Washington Home of Sister, Mrs. Dolly Gann.

ACTIVE IN POLITICS HALF A CENTURY

Won First Office in 1884—Hoover's Running Mate in 1928 — Proud of Indian Ancestry.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.—Charles Curtis, former Vice-President, died unexpectedly today of a heart attack at the age of 76 at the home of his sister, Mrs. Dolly Gann.

For about half a century, he had been in the thick of Republican politics. He was planning to champion the candidacy of his old friend and fellow Kansan, Gov. Alf M. Landon, for the presidency.

The funeral will take place Tuesday at Topeka, Kan., at 2:30 p. m. The body will be sent there from Washington tomorrow night.

For several days Curtis had been suffering from a cold. This morning he seemed much improved, and, encouraged, Mrs. Gann went shopping. Some time afterward, Curtis suffered a heart attack. A maid telephoned Mrs. Gann to return at once and called Dr. George E. Calver, congressional physician. Before either could reach the Cleveland Park home the former Vice-President had died.

Dr. Calver gave out this statement: "The Honorable Charles Curtis, former Vice-President of the United States of America, died of a heart attack at 10:25 this date."

"He died easily," Mrs. Gann said. "I'm so glad he didn't suffer." Then she retired to her room.

Curtis' Political Career.

Curtis' political career knew defeats as well as significant victories before the Roosevelt landslide swept him out of office with President Hoover in 1932. In an active lifetime, the high points were:

1884—Elected prosecutor of Shawnee County, Kansas.

1892—Elected to the House of Representatives.

1914—Returned to the Senate.

1924—Became Republican leader of the Senate.

1928—Elected to the vice-presidency with Herbert Hoover.

1932—Defeated seeking re-election.

Son of Kansas Pioneer.

Curtis was born in 1860 on a farm near North Topeka, the son of a Kansas pioneer, Capt. Orren A. Curtis who had married a girl of Indian descent. Curtis, himself, was one-eighth Kaw Indian, the only person of such ancestry ever elected to the vice-presidency.

Curtis still was an infant when his mother died and his Indian grandmother, Julie Poppin, daughter of Chief White Plume of the Kaws, took him in charge. He spent his boyhood on the Kaw reservation. He liked that life so much that once, later, he wanted to return to it but was dissuaded.

At 15, he left the reservation. An expert hand with horses he quickly found employment as a jockey on Kansas race tracks. His love of horses and racing stayed with him throughout his life. For years, in public life and out, he was a familiar figure at the Maryland tracks, carrying his own elaborate form book and making punctilious entries after each race.

Hurt at Race Track.

Col. Dan Wagstaff was the employer of Curtis as a jockey. At a race track here there was a horse, Headlight, which had a reputation for bolting. The owner asked Wagstaff: "Dan, do you think that Indian boy of yours could manage this fool horse?" he asked. "Sure," replied Wagstaff. "He can manage any horse alive."

So Curtis mounted. The horse dashed through a wooden fence. Curtis was picked up with many gashes where splinters cut him. But the next day, swathed in bandages, he was back riding. His injuries left scars that he carried throughout his life.

Worked Way Through School.

But his career as a jockey extended over only a year or so. He went to school, supporting himself by driving a hack in the evening and then studied law. As County Prosecutor, he was a crusader against vice and achieved such a reputation that he was elected to the national House of Representatives.

There his career as a national

BELOW ZERO COLD OVER WIDE AREA; FUEL RUNS LOW

Iowa Governor Orders Public Buildings Thrown Open to Those Unable to Heat Their Homes.

HIGHWAYS BLOCKED; TRAINS CANCELED

Duluth and Superior Isolated as Storm Sweeps Eastward — 52 Below Zero at Hill City, S. D.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Feb. 8.—Another subzero wave from the West was sweeping across the Mississippi Valley tonight. Weather forecasters said it would reach Indiana before morning and continue on into Ohio.

Carried across Eastern Iowa on a 38-mile-an-hour wind, the cold and its accompanying snow paralyzed rail and highway transportation. Temperatures dropped 20 or 30 degrees and from two to six inches of snow were added to the two feet already covering the State.

Highway traffic was paralyzed by a blizzard in Iowa. Only a few trains tried to operate. Temperatures 30 to 35 below zero were forecast for tomorrow. Two deaths from exposure were reported. The State Highway Patrol was ordered out to aid stranded motorists.

Coal Shortage in Iowa.

Gov. Clyde L. Herring appealed to Iowa city and county officials to keep all public buildings open tonight to house unfortunates who had no means of keeping their homes warm. He ordered the Highway Commission to concentrate its efforts on opening highways to coal mines. The shortage of coal, he said, was likely to cause "a great deal of suffering in the next 48 hours."

Beds were set up in Polk County Courthouse at Des Moines and other buildings for persons whose homes are without fuel. Herring asked County Relief Administrators to get coal to needy families, even if they are not on relief rolls. "I'll see that it is paid for," he said.

A 40-mile gale and heavy snow blocked highways in Minnesota. drifts were so deep that authorities said plows would be unable to clear the roads for several days.

Willmar, in West Central Minnesota, reported the worst blizzard in 40 years, with commerce at a standstill. Duluth and Superior were isolated late tonight. Two hundred automobiles were stalled on the Interstate and Arrowhead bridges between the cities, blocking traffic. Busses due in Duluth from Port Arthur, Ont., were stalled somewhere on Highway 61 between the cities.

Train Service Canceled.

The Milwaukee Railroad canceled service on its Omaha (Neb.) route and on the Superior division through Milwaukee and Green Bay, Wis., because of drifts. The Northwestern road reported its trains were not moving north of Milwaukee. Other trains were reported running from 50 minutes to four hours late.

Jess A. Wakman, 21 years old, froze to death at Toronto, S. D.

Temperatures dropped below zero as far south as Texas. Hill City, S. D., reported a low of 52 below.

All roads in Northern Illinois were closed to traffic. State highway policemen were stationed at the outskirts of all cities to turn cars back. More than 100 automobiles were reported stalled around Rockford. At Belvidere, 16 persons were said to be marooned in a school.

North Dakota authorities advised motorists to stay off the highways, which were rapidly being blocked by snow. Many motorists were reported marooned in Nebraska. The new storm struck Michigan while some of its communities still were isolated from previous storms.

Four hundred persons, attending a dedication, were marooned all night in a schoolhouse at Radium, Kan.

Further west temperatures were moderating after Friday's storm which brought Denver its coldest day since 1876—25 degrees below zero.

Food Supply Low.

Food was running low at Livingston, Wis., a village of 600, which trains have been unable to reach since Monday. Farmers have been unable to reach market for five days. Coal dealers have limited deliveries to half a ton a customer.

There were coal shortages in many cities in Minnesota. A special train of coal cars headed for Bricelyn, in south central Minnesota, became snowbound several miles from its destination. At Albert Lea coal was being doled out in 500-pound lots.

GEORGIA BOY GRAVELY ILL, MOTHER TELLS OF HAZING

Says Son Was Severely Burned at Methodist Academy; Youth's Legs Paralyzed.

By the Associated Press.

ATLANTA, Feb. 8.—Paul Harkins, 16 years old of Decatur was reported gravely ill in a hospital tonight due, according to his mother, Mrs. Mae Stewart, to a hazing stunt at Mt. Zion Academy, near Carrollton.

At the school, which is under supervision of the North Georgia Methodist Conference, Prof. Hoke Bell said a "thorough investigation" was being made.

Mrs. Stewart said her information concerning the incident came "from people who lived around the school." She asserted that on Dec. 15 her son was cornered in Mount Zion Methodist Church on the school campus "by a group of boys, tied and taken to a water fount."

She related that the boys "found no water in the fount, carried Paul to a gasoline pump, poured gasoline over his clothes and struck a match."

Severe burns which the mother said resulted from the alleged hazing were followed by infection. The boy's legs now are paralyzed, Mrs. Stewart said, and he is suffering from enlargement and leakage of the heart.

INCONVENIENCES IN A PALACE

Duchess of Gloucester's Bath at End of Hall, No Room Phone.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Feb. 8.—When the Duke and Duchess of Gloucester visited for four days at Buckingham Palace, the word went out that friends of the Duchess would do her a favor by not ringing her too early in the morning. The reason was the Duchess had no telephone by her bedside.

She had no running hot-and-cold water in her bedroom either. Like thousands of Londoners, she had to go down the hall to a separate bathroom at the end of a crimson-carpeted corridor, and the bath there is the old-fashioned wooden-walled tub of the Victorian era. Her permanent residence at Royal Pavilion, Aldershot, is more modern.

MISSING FROM SHIP AT SEA

A. C. Cotton Missing From the Bremen, Mother Is Notified.

By the Associated Press.

TRENTON, N. J., Feb. 8.—Mrs. Henry A. Cotton, widow of Dr. Henry A. Cotton, alienist and director of the State Hospital for the Insane, was notified by radio today that her son, Adolph G. Cotton, 25 years old, had disappeared from the liner Bremen Thursday while the ship was in midocean. The Bremen is due in New York Monday night. No details of the disappearance was contained in the radiogram.

Cotton, a graduate of Princeton University, was an assistant curator of the British Museum. His brother, Dr. Henry A. Cotton Jr. is a member of Johns Hopkins University medical staff.

Gov. Park Orders Coal for Town.

JEFFERSON CITY, Feb. 8.—Caught without fuel in the worst blizzard of the winter, the town of Maitland appealed to Gov. Park who announced today he had ordered two carloads of coal for the Holt County community from Omaha, Neb. Park said the Clay County Court had advised him there also was a shortage of coal in and around Liberty and Excelsior Springs.

18 FOUND GUILTY IN DETROIT OF VOTE RECOUNT FRAUD

Titular Democratic State Chairman and Michigan State Senator Among Those Convicted.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

DETROIT, Mich., Feb. 8.—Elmer B. O'Hara, titular Democratic State chairman; State Senator Anthony J. Wilkowski, secretary of the county committee, and 16 others were found guilty in Judge W. McKay Skillman's Court tonight of fraud in a recount of votes ordered by the Legislature in the 1934 election.

O'Hara was found guilty as a conspirator to invade the sanctity of the Michigan election, no evidence being adduced that he had marked or tampered with the ballots.

Wilkowski was found guilty on all of six counts of marking ballots, permittting others to mark ballots, conspiracy to mark, conspiracy to permit others to mark, conspiracy to recount illegally and conspiracy to permit an illegal recount. The others convicted were recount workers.

A jury convicted 15 of the defendants and acquitted seven. Three of four others who chose trial without a jury were convicted by the court.

Judge's Comment.

Thanking the jury for its diligence, Judge Skillman said:

"The act perpetrated in December, 1934, is in my opinion one of the blackest pages in Michigan history. Thirteen thousand, seven hundred citizens of Wayne County were disfranchised by a group of vote manipulators."

The trial was the outgrowth of a grand jury investigation into a recount of the 1934 election, in which a 13,700 lead for Orville E. Atwood, Republican, Secretary of State, was wiped out and an 11,000 lead given his opponent, Maj. Gen. Guy M. Wilson, Democrat. The State Supreme Court later declared the recount invalid.

The trial, begun Nov. 18, continued through 61 court days, establishing a criminal trial record for state courts.

The jury of nine women and three men was faced with an immense volume of testimony consisting of 2,500,000 words and during its three days of deliberations, was compelled to ask in open court for the re-reading of several parts of the evidence before arriving at a conclusion.

Possible Penalties.

The maximum sentence is five years in prison, together with a $2500 fine on the conspiracy counts and five years' imprisonment with a $1000 fine on the vote tampering charges.

O'Hara was convicted of bribery in Macomb County Circuit Court in connection with the sale of property to the Drain Commission. Sentence in that case was delayed pending the outcome of the election fraud trial.

O'Hara received an invitation to a White House reception in Washington last Thursday night, causing

PERMANENT NEUTRALITY LEGISLATION ABANDONED

ELECTION CAMPAIGN ONE CONSIDERATION

Roosevelt Said to Want to Avoid Controversies — Pittman Cites Opposition and Desire to Adjourn Congress May 1.

(Copyright, 1936, by the Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.—Congressional leaders today abandoned their attempt to obtain enactment of permanent neutrality legislation at this session.

Chairman Pittman (Dem.), Nevada, of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, said the committee would report promptly a resolution to extend for one year the temporary bar on shipment of arms and munitions to belligerents, which will expire Feb. 29. There will be "such amendments in the form of additional legislation as will not justify unlimited debate," he said.

Pittman emphasized that he was speaking "personally," but he is recognized as the administration spokesman on neutrality. He introduced the permanent neutrality bill approved by President Roosevelt and the State Department.

Pittman said amendments to the present law would include prohibition of loans to belligerents and possibly "a greatly modified and restricted provision" relating to embargoes on exports of commodities other than war materials.

Proposal to Be Dropped.

In view of opposition to the proposal to permit the President to withdraw protection from American shipping to belligerents, Pittman said this part of the administration's program would not be offered.

This decision was expected by administration leaders to remove much of the opposition to neutrality legislation.

Pittman said there probably would be no further hearings by his committee, which will meet in executive session Wednesday to consider the resolution to extend the temporary law.

The administration's shift was understood to result, in part at least, from a reluctance to engage in controversies during the election campaign.

Pittman said: "There is a desire on the part of the administration and almost a universal determination in Congress to extend for one year the temporary provision of the existing neutrality law, which provides:

"An embargo on shipments of arms, ammunition, and implements to belligerents. (This is the provision which expires Feb. 29.)

"Prohibitions against the carrying of embargoed materials by American vessels to belligerents.

"Provisions relative to the travel on belligerent vessels by citizens of the United States.

"Provisions relative to the use of our ports by belligerent vessels or in aid of transportation of embargoed materials by belligerent vessels.

"Regulations on the use of our ports by belligerent submarines.

Divergence of Opinion.

"For some time there has been great uneasiness on the part of proponents for extension of this legislation because of the nearness of its expiration on Feb. 29.

"It was the hope of the committees in the House and Senate in charge of the proposed additional legislation that an earlier report could be obtained on the new proposals.

"But a great and sincere divergence of opinion has developed with regard to the construction and effect of two provisions of the proposed legislation, those permitting the President in his discretion to limit the export to belligerents of certain articles and materials to normal peace-time levels and authorizing the President in his discretion to require that even such authorized shipments should be at the risk of the shippers.

"Under ordinary conditions it would be entirely reasonable that these questions should be debated on the floor of the Senate and House and action taken as the ma-

STATE HIGHWAY CHAIRMAN ADMITS SHAKE-UP IS NEAR

G. F. Olendorf, Newly Appointed Head, 'Not in Position to Say' What Department Changes Will Be

REPORTS MENTION CHIEF ENGINEER

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Feb. 8.—George F. Olendorf of Springfield, new chairman of the State Highway Commission, today confirmed reports of an impending shakeup in the Highway Department, but declined to comment on the extent of the changes pending a commission conference Tuesday.

Reports here are that the chief engineer of one or two of the principal bureaus and possibly two of the 10 division engineers would be ousted.

Olendorf, by long distance telephone, said "There will be some changes. Frankly, I am not in a position now to say what they will be."

Gov. Park, when asked about the changes, said he had not conferred with commission members since the January meeting.

Change in Secretaries.

Rumors of a political upheaval in the highway department, which was kept reasonably free of politics in former administrations, have been current since Dulany Mahan, Democrat, of Hanibal, resigned as a member of the commission Jan. 15, after refusing to acquiesce in a request by Gov. Park that T. A. Wilson, Democrat, of Sikeston, be removed as secretary to make way for J. B. Funkhouser, Democrat, of Plattsburg, an employe of the State Game and Fish Department.

Mahan's resignation did not block the move, as other members of the commission agreed to it and Funkhouser was appointed secretary, effective last February 1.

The entire personnel of the Highway Commission has been changed during this administration.

On the same day Mahan resigned, after objecting to removal of Wilson as secretary, the Governor appointed H. G. Simpson (Dem.) of Charleston, president of an oil and gasoline distributing company, for the remainder of Mahan's term, expiring Dec. 1, 1939.

Wilson Was in Disfavor.

Olendorf, close personal friend of the Governor, was appointed by the Governor last Dec. 2 to succeed Scott Wilson (Dem.) of St. Louis, former chairman, whose term had expired. While Wilson was not a candidate for re-appointment, it was known that he was in disfavor with the Democratic organization of "Boss" Pendergast of Kansas City.

H. B. Pyle of Mound City, a Republican member, was re-appointed recently by the Governor for a six-year term. Pyle originally was appointed by Gov. Park for the unexpired term of William Phares, Republican, of Maryville, who resigned after aiding in forcing an investigation by the commission of an alleged illegal award of contracts for construction of two State Highway projects without competitive bids, to a Kansas City contracting firm, officers of which are active in the Pendergast organization.

The fourth member of the commission is Arthur T. Nelson, Republican, of Lebanon, who was named early in the Park administration.

Nelson is the only commission member whose appointment has been confirmed by the State Senate. The other three hold vacation appointments, subject to confirmation by the 1937 State Senate. Whoever is elected Governor in the November general election may reorganize the commission, if he desires, simply by withholding the names of the three vacation appointees and sending other names of his own choice, to the Senate for confirmation.

Italian Opera House Burned.

By the Associated Press.

TURIN, Italy, Feb. 8.—The Reggio opera house, built in 1750, was destroyed tonight by fire. Two women and four children were rescued. Recent Portrait of Late Vice-President figure began, marked with victories and defeats until he became the Senate's majority leader. In that post he depended more on quiet back-stage negotiations than upon oratorical flourishes on the floor. In fact, he spoke but seldom.

CHARLES CURTIS.

CHARLES CURTIS' FUNERAL TUESDAY AT TOPEKA, KAN.

From his seat in the rear row on the Republican side he carefully watched the progress of administration legislation, and entered the debate only at such times as the Senate became snarled in parliamentary tangles.

As Vice-President, his long experience in the Senate had equipped him as a presiding officer.

Gann-Longworth Incident.

Early in his term he became involved in a dispute which kept the capital interested for months. A widower, he designated Mrs. Gann as his official hostess. Under long-established rules, the wife of the Vice-President takes precedence socially over the wife of the Speaker of the House. The matter of an official hostess, however, raised new questions. Alice Roosevelt Longworth, wife of Speaker Nicholas Longworth, long a ruling figure in Washington society, raised the question whether such precedence should be accorded the sister of the Vice-President.

Curtis appealed to the State Department, and Secretary Stimson appealed to the Diplomatic Corps. Members of the Diplomatic Corps met one night at the British Embassy and decided to accord Mrs. Gann precedence over its own ladies. That more or less settled the question, although repercussions were heard for months.

Campaigned Actively in 1928.

Running for the vice-presidency in 1928, Curtis traveled thousands of miles and spoke in every state in the Union. He finally was provided with a luxurious private car, after Mrs. Gann had protested to Republican leaders against making him travel in an ordinary sleeper.

The 1932 campaign, however, saw little of him—a few speeches in the fall and nothing more.

With the accession of the New Deal, Curtis resumed a law practice that had been interrupted many years. He established an office in Washington. He was not especially eager for clients, however, and spent his time mainly keeping abreast of political developments, and, in season, watching the thoroughbreds run at Maryland's Bowie, Laurel and Pimlico tracks. He was fond of baseball and was reputed to be one of the best poker players in Washington, although of late years he played little.

Curtis' passing found both houses of Congress in week-end recess. Leaders planned to adjourn Monday's session, at the outset, as a tribute to his memory.

Long before his death a marble bust of Curtis was installed in a niche on the left side of the east door to the Senate chamber.

Roosevelt's Statement.

From the White House, President Roosevelt issued this statement: "I am deeply distressed to learn of the sudden passing of my old friend, Charles Curtis. Whether they knew him as a Senator, as the Vice-President of the United States or as the man that he was in his own right, his legion of friends will remember him, always affectionately, and will mourn his passing."

"I was always fond of him," said Vice-President Garner. "I was associated with him in the House and then in the Senate. He was a fine man and a good friend."

Curtis' successor as Republican leader, Senator McNary of Oregon, praised him as "a quiet and yet successful Republican leader" and a "popular and efficient presiding officer when he was Vice-President. He was an able and loveable character."

The present Democratic leader, Senator Robinson of Arkansas, called Curtis "an outstanding factor in public affairs." Speaker Byrns said, "Mr. Curtis rendered long and distinguished service to his country and was a splendid public servant," whose "death will be universally mourned."

Senator Borah (Rep.), Idaho, said: "Curtis was one of the most likeable men I ever knew in politics. We have not seen much of him of late, but I venture to say no one who ever served with him but will deeply regret his death."

Ex-President Hoover's Tribute to Running Mate.

PALO ALTO, Cal., Feb. 8. — Former President Herbert Hoover said today: "Mr. Curtis served the American people nearly a half century. His record was one of honesty, courage and loyalty. His innumerable friends sorrow at his passing and the nation loses wise counsel."

EGYPTIAN ANCIENTS USED GLASS KNIVES, SURVEY FINDS

Quartz Tools Also Discovered in Area in Libyan Desert.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CAIRO, Feb. 8.—That prehistoric men and women used glass knives and tools of quartz, mixed with other minerals, is attested by the recent find of a party of the Desert Survey of Egypt. The discovery was largely the outcome of curiosity concerning a large area covered with large lumps of glass in the Libyan Desert where there was no evidence whatsoever of volcanic rock.

How the glass could be accounted for was debatable. However, this glass, strewn about the desert, was certainly utilized by prehistoric man. This is evidenced by the quartzite implements, knives, daggers, and the like and the thousands of flakes and chips lying where they were made and abandoned thousands of years ago. Some of these implements still have keen cutting edges and almost needle-like points.

U. S. CIRCULATION OF MONEY PUT AT $44.96 PER CAPITA

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.—Money in circulation on Jan. 31 was figured today at $5,737,352,474, equivalent to $44.96 for every man, woman and child in the United States.

This represented a sharp decrease from the figure for the previous month when, owing to the demand for holiday cash, circulation reached $5,881,525,846, or $46.11 per capita.

Total stocks of money amounted to $16,625,751,596. This was a decrease from the figure of the previous month, for the first time in a year, owing to a depletion of Federal Reserve notes.

OFFICERS DISPLAY MACHINE GUN; WPA MEN RESUME JOBS

Workers at Dover, O., Had Refused to Carry On Because Union Member Was Fired.

By the Associated Press.

CLEVELAND, Feb. 8.—Display of a sub-machine gun by police before protesting WPA workers who left their jobs in nearby Dover was under investigation tonight by Works Progress Administration officials.

Police Chief George Jackson and Sergt. Clarence Grube took the weapon from their squad car as about 180 WPA laborers refused to work because Joseph Horvath, 25 years old, a member of the Project Workers' Union, had been discharged.

Chief Jackson said the gun was not pointed at the men, although he admitted it was held in readiness.

Harry R. Ansel, assistant district WPA director, said he would permit the workers to ballot on whether Horvath should be re-employed. Horvath told Ansel he was discharged because his foreman accused him of being a "union agitator." Ansel said WPA records showed Horvath had been warned repeatedly to discontinue "trouble making" activities.

Ben Gray, business agent of the union, who witnessed the demonstration, asked the officers: "Is this Georgia or is it Ohio? We committed no act that would justify such methods by police. We made a peaceful protest."

Gray later asserted "the union will send a telegram to WPA officials at Washington. We're opposed to the use of chain gang methods on WPA projects. Most of these petty troubles arise from the refusal of WPA officials to allow labor to bargain collectively."

The project foreman said Horvath, dismissed yesterday, returned to the scene today with about 20 followers bent on halting the work.

Patrolman Norman Hunger said the foreman reported last night he anticipated trouble.

"The Chief and Sergeant cruised today with a machine gun because they didn't know hat kind of trouble might develop," Hunger said.

The protesting workers completed the day's work without further interruption.

Police Chief Jackson said he did not order the men to resume operation. He said they returned to the job voluntarily after Horvath, Gray and others left the scene.

HARDING EXPECTED DAWES TO BE HIS SUCCESSOR

Story Attributed to Curtis Which He Asked to Be Withheld Until After His Death.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.—Here is a story which Charles Curtis asked be not told until after his death.

Just before Warren G. Harding, then President, was to leave on his trip to Alaska in the summer of 1923, Curtis spoke to him about Calvin Coolidge, mentioning that Coolidge had not been spoken of in the Harding 1924 campaign plans.

Curtis said that Mr. Harding replied: "Charlie, we are not worried about that little fellow in Massachusetts." A moment later, Curtis said Harding turned to him, put his hand on his shoulder and said: "Charlie Dawes is the man who is going to succeed me."

A month later Mr. Harding was dead. Mr. Coolidge was President.

By a trick of fate, the Republican convention of 1924 picked Dawes as vice-presidential nominee with Coolidge after Frank O. Lowden of Illinois had refused the nomination.

WHITE HOUSE CONFERENCE ON TAX MEASURES

Roosevelt Reported to Await Income Returns Before Deciding on Request to Congress.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.—President Roosevelt and his fiscal advisers today canvassed the background for an administration tax bill at a closed-door conference, which coincided with the reported collapse of one wing of the congressional inflation drive.

The White House conference was attended by Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau and Daniel Bell, the acting budget director.

It was learned authoritatively that the session was devoted primarily to a review of the Government's financial situation, and a further check-up on possible future spending. There was little talk today of actual tax details.

Other Reports on Tax Bill.

Previous reports had described the immediate tax plan as aimed primarily at raising between $450,000,000 and $500,000,000 to finance the proposed farm program, replacing the invalidated AAA.

Two other developments strengthened these indications:

In usually reliable congressional quarters the President was reported to be awaiting income tax returns before deciding finally whether to propose any new taxes to finance such outlays as the bonus payments.

Financial experts elsewhere predicted substantial increases in corporation and individual income tax returns on the basis of 1935 business improvement.

For the 1936 fiscal year—which began last July 1—income tax receipts thus far total $597,849,000 as compared with $444,649,000 for the corresponding period a year ago. Miscellaneous taxes, including the liquor taxes, amount to $1,152,713,000 to date as compared with $1,004,107,000 a year ago. Other collections similarly are running ahead, with the exception of processing taxes which were thrown out by the Supreme Court's AAA decision.

House Poll on Inflation.

After a poll of the House, Representative Boland, the Democratic whip, reported that only 94 of the 317 House Democrats had signified themselves definitely in favor of the three-billion-dollar Frazier-Lemke bill designed to refinance farm debt with new currency. He said 178 would vote against and 45 were doubtful. Both Boland and Speaker Byrns asserted the measure would be "slaughtered" if it came to a vote.

The speaker said he was convinced the bill would not be pushed to a vote, although a petition to force a vote has all but five of the necessary 218 names of House members. Some members who signed the petition, Byrns said, have been asking that a vote be prevented, on the ground that it might have dangerous political consequences for them.

Mussolini Says Britain Prolonged War by Rejecting Hoare-Laval Plan

Tells Interviewer He Had Drafted "Cautious Formula of Acceptance" When Proposal Was Discarded.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Feb. 9 (Sunday).—The Sunday Observer in an interview today quotes Premier Mussolini as saying the British "have turned a colonial war into what may yet be a worldwide disaster." The interview was obtained by Sir Arnold Wilson, a member of Parliament.

Referring to the now dead Hoare-Laval peace proposal, Mussolini was quoted as saying:

"I had already drafted a cautious formula of acceptance as a basis of negotiation . . . when the news came that you gentlemen in London who had praised Sir Samuel Hoare so highly in September had dismissed him with ignominy Dec. 19.

"As a direct result of your action much Ethiopian and some Italian blood must be spent. You have prolonged the war. A great responsibility lies on you."

Sir Arnold said Mussolini "looked tired but robust." Stories of "his impending decay or demise may safely be ignored" for he will "remain at the helm until the hand of death removes him."

Mussolini told him trade would not revert into old channels when sanctions are removed.

"We have spent and are spending too much in creating fresh channels to take the place of those you have taken the lead in diverting," Mussolini was quoted as saying. "We shall not soon forget the language used by your statesmen."

ADMINISTRATION DROPS PERMANENT NEUTRALITY BILL

jority might determine proper and advisable.

"Unfortunately for such a procedure, it is the desire of the administration and I believe an overwhelming number of the members of Congress to bring about an adjournment of Congress by the first of May. It would seem also that this is the wish of most of our citizens.

Pending Legislation.

"There is now pending before the Senate proposed new farm legislation which is a matter of vast importance and upon which opinions differ widely. There are a number of other vital questions that will come before this Congress before its adjournment.

"These vital domestic questions are undoubtedly entitled to the right of way.

"In view of this situation, it is strongly urged that any serious difference of opinion with reference to the legislation submitted might result in long and unlimited debate and possibly result in no action at all by May 1.

"Therefore, I personally believe that it will be the disposition of the Foreign Relations Committee to report out without any further delay the resolution extending the present neutrality law for one year, with such amendments in the form of additional legislation as will not justify unlimited debate.

"I assume that the credit provisions of the pending legislation, added as an amendment to the extension resolution, could not meet serious opposition.

"Owing to the wide divergence of opinion in Congress as to the construction of Section 9 of the proposed legislation and its effect, which grants to the President discretion to require our citizens to ship at their own risk, it is probable that such proposed legislation will not be offered as an amendment to the extension resolution.

"It is possible, and the committee will undoubtedly consider if it is practicable in the circumstances, to offer as an amendment a greatly modified and restricted provision with regard to the restriction of other articles and materials, other than arms, ammunition and implements of war.

"There are other amendments under consideration in the nature of general limitations on the act."

COUNT OF COVADONGA RALLIES FOLLOWING BLOOD INJECTIONS

Three Cubans Submit to Transfusions to Aid Son of Ex-King Alfonso.

By the Associated Press.

HAVANA, Feb. 8.—The Count of Covadonga, eldest son of former King Alfonso of Spain, appeared tonight to be recovering from an attack of Hemophilia, following the transfusion of blood from two Cuban women and a Cuban man.

Physicians reported the Count was resting easily after a good sleep. Blood injections were continued during the day.

Hemophilia, a disease characterized by excessive bleeding from even a slight scratch, is hereditary in the House of Bourbon. The Count is suffering from an abscess which led to internal hemorrhages. He also suffered from blood poisoning.

The Count is 28 years old. He renounced his right to the Spanish throne to wed a Cuban commoner.

COURT RULING ON TVA EXPECTED TOMORROW

Decisions on 16 Other Cases Also Possible When Supreme Justices Reconvene.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8. — Government officials expect the Supreme Court to announce its decision in the Tennessee Valley Act case Monday.

Nearly two months has elapsed since the Court heard arguments on the suit challenging the constitutionality of part of the act. Other decisions on New Deal legislation have been announced this term from 20 to 30 days after arguments. The "gold clause" cases last term required 39 days.

The TVA suit involves the right of the Government to sell power in competition with private utilities. A split decision has been predicted.

The nine Justices held their regular Saturday conference today. It was believed the principal business consisted of discussion of cases argued this week and decision whether to review 18 disputes appealed from lower courts.

In addition to TVA, 16 decisions are possible Monday. They include cases involving:

A Louisiana law, sponsored by the late Senator Huey P. Long to tax newspaper advertisements in publications having a weekly circulation of 20,000 or more.

A section of the 1934 New York milk control act which permits dealers without a well-advertised trade name to sell milk in New York City at 1 cent a quart below those with a well-advertised trade name.

VERDICT REACHED IN BOY'S MURDER TRIAL, WITHHELD

Jurors Retire for Night Without Reporting Decision in Case of J. P. Jarrett, 16.

THEY WILL ANNOUNCE FINDING TODAY

Edwardsville Youth Was Accused in Killing of Deputy Treasurer Higgins in Burglary.

The jury trying 16-year-old James Paul Jarrett for the murder of John Higgins, Deputy Treasurer of Madison County, Illinois, reached a verdict at Edwardsville at 11 o'clock last night, after five and half hours' deliberation, but retired for the night without reporting its decision.

Circuit Judge D. H. Mudge, in whose court the trial was held, went home after the case went to the jury at 5:30 p. m., leaving instructions that jurors were to be locked up for the nihgt if they failed to reach a verdict by 10:30.

When Deputy Sheriffs went to the jury room to escort members to sleeping quarters, the foreman announced a verdict had just been reached. However, the deputies decided not to notify the judge until morning.

The Court, in its instructions to the jury, outlined four forms of verdict—death, life imprisonment, imprisonment for any term over 14 years, and not guilty. The instructions pointed out that all persons found guilty of participating in a burglary in which a murder was committed, were equally guilty of the murder.

About 250 persons, including many of Jarrett's schoolmates in Edwardsville High School, jammed into the courtroom for the closing phases of the trial and more than 100 waited in the corridor as counsel argued the case, hoping vainly to be allowed to enter. So intense was the crush at the courtroom door that Judge Mudge ordered it closed and instructed bailiffs to allow no one to leave until after counsel had concluded their summations.

In his closing argument, State's Attorney M. L. Geers said, "I am not asking for the death penalty, although I'm convinced in my own mind that the nature of this crime is sufficiently grave to warrant it.

"I ask you to return a verdict—and I know you will under your oath—which will keep this young man in prison for a sufficient number of years to prevent him from committing other crimes of a similar nature."

Quotes Companion's Testimony.

State's arguments were opened by Austin Lewis, Assistant State's Attorney, who made a methodical summation of the evidence in the State's case. As a principal point, he recalled to the jury that Ronald Everett Rambo, also 16 years old and a former schoolmate of the defendant, had implicated Jarrett in the burglary of the Higgins home in his testimony for the State.

Rambo, he pointed out, had pleaded guilty and was awaiting sentence for the murder. On the witness stand Rambo admitted that he had shot Higgins in the heart after slugging his seven-year-old daughter, Marjorie Higgins, with a pistol in an attempt to still her cries of terror when she awoke and saw him in her room. He asserted that Jarrett entered the house with him through a window.

After shooting Higgins, Rambo testified, he fled from a rear door and was joined in front of the house by Jarrett, who, according to Rambo, stood by as Rambo hid the revolver with which he had committed the murder and a sack containing about $11 in cash. These, he testified, he and Jarrett had stolen earlier in the evening in the burglary of a transfer company office in Edwardsville.

Alibi and Counter Testimony.

Lewis pointed out, too, that while Jarrett and his alibi witnesses had declared he was at home the night of the murder, Lester Puhse, a schoolmate, who testified in rebuttal yesterday, had said he saw Jarrett on the street about 12:30 a. m., Nov. 26, approximately 45 minutes before Higgins was murdered.

The Assistant State's Attorney also emphasized the importance placed by the State on two confessions which Jarrett on the witness stand admitted he had signed. In these he said that he had gone to the Higgins house with Rambo, but declared he had stood on the front porch while Rambo entered, and had not himself gone into the house. He also admitted in the statements that he had assisted in the burglary of the transfer company.

Repudiated Confession.

Jarrett repudiated the confessions on the witness stand, saying he signed them only after persistent questioning and because he was told that if he did so he might go home to visit his mother and get his harmonica, which he wanted to play while in jail. He declared that he expected to undergo a test by a "lie detector" and had felt confident it would show that he had not told the truth in his statement. He asserted he had been forced to give the confession, but made no charge that he had beaten or otherwise physically abused.

This testimony was stressed heavily by Arnold Steiner, of defense counsel, in his closing argument. Steiner, who was serving under Court appointment, also emphasized the alibi testimony, given by Jarrett's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Jarrett, that he was in bed from 10:30 p. m. Nov. 25 until about 8 a. m. Nov. 26.

H. B. Eaton, the other defense lawyer, in his argument asserted that, even if the jury disbelieved the alibi, Jarrett was "not such a terrible criminal," since the evidence showed Rambo had been the leader throughout and that Jarrett had never entered the Higgins home.

Final Summation.

Geers, in his final summation, replied to Eaton's statement by referring again to the confession, that Jarrett actually had crawled through a window into the house after Rambo, then changed his mind and crawled out again.

He also recalled testimony that when the elder Jarrett accompanied his son to the police station the first time, he opened his coat, pointed to his belt and promised to "wear it out" on the boy if he failed to tell the truth. "If that father knew his son were in bed that night," said Geers, "the first thing he would have done would be to tell the police that fact, rather than admonish his son to tell the truth."

Secretly Married in California

MRS. THOMAS CRANE MITCHELL

PARENTS TOO LATE FOR SON'S WEDDING

Find T. C. Mitchell Married Miss Picasco Before They Reached California.

Ickes Calls PWA Conference.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.—Secretary of the Interior Ickes today summoned the Public Works Administration field to a three-day conference beginning Monday for "an exchange of ideas, a discussion of common problems in connection with PWA's participation in the work-relief program and reports on the virtual completion of the original PWA program."

ICKES' PRELIMINARY ORDER ON MEMORIAL

Secretary Authorizes Office Preparations for Start on Riverfront Work.

Post-Dispatch Bureau,
201-205 Kellogg Bldg.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.—Secretary of the Interior Ickes announced today that he had granted authority to begin "preliminary work" on the Jefferson National Expansion Memorial on the St. Louis river front.

The two-page mimeographed announcement referred in glowing terms to the future beauties of the memorial and spoke of "plans tentatively developed by the United States Territorial Expansion Commission," which "envisage the ultimate expenditure of approximately $30,000,000." The commission was created by Congress to aid in promoting the memorial.

Ickes said he had granted authority to start preliminary work on receipt of word that "the Board of Aldermen of the City of St. Louis had voted to make available to the Department of the Interior the sum of $2,250,000, as required by the terms of the executive order of Dec. 21, 1935." This was the order issued by President Roosevelt after Mayor Dickmann of St. Louis had applied political pressure on high administration officials.

Although the Board of Aldermen has voted to make the $2,250,000 available to the Park Service, there are two suits designed to stop the memorial pending in Federal Court in St. Louis. Paul O. Peters, executive head of an independent citizens' committee opposed to the project, is in Washington seeking to prevent a start on the work by convincing Congress that the President was "duped" when he signed the executive order.

Actually the "preliminary work" referred to in Ickes' order means, according to John L. Nagle of the National Park Service, merely the organization of an office in St. Louis and determination of the number of men and the amount of equipment needed on the project. The site on the river front cannot be acquired, Nagle pointed out, until the city has sold its bonds and actually put up its $2,250,000 and the Federal Government its three-fourths share, $6,750,000. Much of the preliminary work has already been done and Nagle has made a lengthy report to Ickes.

The Secretary said he was considering a nation-wide competition for the design of the memorial. "It will provide an unprecedented opportunity for competition in the fine arts," he said, "and the memorial will be worthy the efforts of the best artists in America. When completed it is expected to rank with the most famous memorials of the world."

LAKE ABOVE DAM AT ALTON TO BE RECREATION SPOT

It Will Cover 40,000 Acres, Bordered by Parks, Bathing Beaches and Boat Landings.

The Illinois and Mississippi rivers between Alton and Pere Marquette Park are undergoing developments which promise to make this segment of waterway a popular aquatic playgrounds.

A total of $12,893,133 is ultimately to be expended—$10,000,000 by the War Department, $2,793,133 by the Works Progress Administration and $100,000 by the City of Alton—to create a lake above Alton dam having an area of 40,000 acres and a shore line of 175 miles and to construct a scenic riverside drive between Alton and Grafton, providing access to a series of parks, bathing beaches and boat landings.

An initial allocation of $380,266 in WPA funds has been made to get work under way. According to tentative plans drawn by the Illinois Highway Department, the driveway will leave Alton at the western city limits, pass through Clifton Terrace, Lockhaven, Elsah, Piasa, Chautauqua and end at Grafton, connecting with Jersey County State aid Route 2. It will be 16 miles long, 30 feet wide with 10-foot shoulders and of oiled or macadam surface.

Walled Roadway.

The roadbed will rest on sand and rock fills laid well out over the present shore. A low rubble wall will skirt the roadway the entire length on the riverward side and the new shore will be riprapped for protection against the action of current and waves. The tracks of the Illinois Terminal Railroad will be screened by shrubbery. Ultimately, it is hoped, this track will be abandoned, so that the right-of-way can be converted into bridle and foot paths.

The space between the water's edge and the limestone cliffs will be landscaped, and it is proposed that billboards and lunch stands be prohibited, lest the scenic beauty of the drive be marred. The legendary Piasa Bird above Alton will be floodlighted and restained.

There will be three large bathing beaches, extending out 300 feet into the lake, and from one-half to two miles long, and each with its bathhouse and pavilion. One will be at the western city limits of Alton, another at Lockhaven, which will be the largest, and a third at Pere Marquette camp site, where there will also be a lagoon. At Clifton Terrace there will be a boat harbor on the present site of the Illini Yacht Club docks.

Each of these points will have park and picnic grounds, totaling 700 acres, mostly at Lockhaven. Four hundred acres along the lakeside are to be landscaped. Proposed future additions to Pere Marquette park will give the park three miles of shoreline along the Illinois River.

Time of Completion.

It is expected the work will be completed in about a year. Developments, however, are bound up with the progress of the Alton dam, which is not scheduled for completion till the summer of 1937, so that the lake cannot be formed until that time.

When the dam is completed, the water level will be raised to 419 feet on the Memphis datum line, or about 20 feet above the normal river level. The lake formed by the impounded waters will be from one-half to two miles wide, and extend upstream about 50 miles, or to Cap au Gris on the Mississippi and Kampsville on the Illinois Rivers. The dam will decrease the current velocity, allowing more sedimentation and thus insuring a clearer and safer body of water for swimmers.

Many of the lower islands will be submerged, although several new ones, as well as numerous sloughs, will be created on the Missouri side, where much of the land, unlike the precipitous Illinois side, is low and flat, often covered at flood stages.

The project is an integral part of the St. Louis Regional Plan for an outer park system. It is expected that ultimately Missouri will supplement the Illinois undertaking with a similar one on the west bank of the river. It is proposed that the State of Illinois maintain and administer the completed project, the parks by the State Park Deparment, and the drive by the Highway Department.

Half an Hour From St. Louis.

The area is within half an hour's drive from St. Louis over State Highway 99. Access is provided on the East Side over United States Highway 67 and State Highways 159 and 160.

In listing advantages of the Alton lake over similar attractions in this region, the specifications point out that Lake of the Ozarks, a 175-mile drive, is too remote. the Missouri and the Mississippi below the Missouri's mouth is too muddy annd too swift, and the Meramec varies too greatly in depth.

The project was conceived by J. D. McAdams, business manager of the Alton Telegraph and sponsored by the City of Alton. Mayor Otto J. Hoffman and the Board of Aldermen have devoted much time to formulating plans and obtaining Government funds.

Xerxes Empire, 2400 Years Ago, Described on Newly Found Tablets

Chicago U. Researchers Also Discover Gold and Silver Plaques in Two Corners of Magnificent Audience Hall

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Feb. 8.—Discovery of cuneiform-inscribed tablets at Persepolis, which throw new light on the reign of Xerxes the Great, 2400 years ago, was announced today by the University of Chicago's Oriental Institute.

Dr. John A. Wilson, newly appointed successor to the late James H. Breasted as head of the institute, reported that three of the seven stone tablets, each about 20 inches square, bear inscriptions new to historians.

They tell of the success of Xerxes in putting down a revolt of enemies of the religion of Zoroaster in the early days of the Emperor's rule, and describe fully the extent of the greatest empire the world had seen at that time, 485-480 B. C.

Dr. Wilson also disclosed the discovery of solid gold and silver plaques in the two corners of the entrance to the magnificent audience hall started in 516-515 B. C. by Darius, but not completed until 40 years later. The inscriptions on these brilliant squares, however, were not as important as those of the stone tablets, Dr. Wilson said.

Under the gold and silver plaques, laid in carefully cut stone boxes, were six gold and silver coins, apparently of Greek origin.

Dr. Erich Schmidt, field director of the Iranian Expedition, who came here last month from the site of the great palace with news and pictures of its finds, turned over the gold and silver pieces to the Shah of Iran.

Translated from the Elamite, Babylonian and old Persian languages by Prof. Ernst Herzfeld, the most significant story told by the stone tablets disclosed that Xerxes began his reign in 485 B. C. by defending Ahuramazda, the "Wise Lord," and Arta ('Rtam), the "Divine World Order," against the heresy of the Davias—worshipers of other gods.

The tablets disclosed that Xerxes "sapped the foundations" of the temples of those who opposed Ahuramazda and Arta, central elements of the faith of Zoroaster.

Although many scholars have maintained Zoroaster lived about 900 B. C., Dr. Wilson said, these tablets tend to confirm tradition that he lived in the time of Xerxes' grandfather.

The Persian Empire extended northeast to the region northeast of modern Afghanistan, southwest through Ancient Kush to modern Ethiopia, southeast to the Indus River and northwest through Asia Minor—and in these inscriptions Xerxes claims rule in the west over "the Ionians that dwell in the sea and those that dwell beyond the sea." This reference to the Greeks, Dr. Wilson said, indicated the tablets were written before the Persians met defeat at Salamis by Greece in 480 B. C.

A separate maintenance suit, charging general indignities, was filed in Circuit Court at Clayton yesterday by Mrs. Eleanor Weber Smith, 7047 Northmoor drive, wife of Gardner M. Smith, head of a shoe findings business and a glider enthusiast.

Four months after their marriage in 1929 Smith brought suit for divorce, but dismissed it a month later. A year later she sought a divorce, but withdrew the suit.

UNEXPLAINED, DEADLY PLAGUE REPORTED IN BRAZILIAN TOWN

Disease Said to Be Killing Many in Santa Rem; Affects Man and Beast.

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil, Feb. 8.—An unexplained pestilence was reported today to be killing many persons in the village of Santa Rem, in Para Province. Unconfirmed reports to newspapers spoke of "hundreds of victims" and a confirmed dispatch said 18 sufferers died in one day. This dispatch was the latest received. The disease is affecting both human beings and beasts, the reports said, and at least 1000 cattle have died.

Among the symptoms were listed a high, delirious fever, diarrhea and continual vomiting. Death was said to occur in less than a day in many cases. Medical authorities here said some of the symptoms seemed similar to those of acute Asiatic cholera, an infectious disease which kills patients usually in one day. Jose Malcher, Governor of the State of Para, dispatched health officials to the zone with food and medical supplies. He ordered a thorough investigation.

60 DAYS FOR DRIVER IN FATAL ACCIDENT

Robert Abbott Appeals; Truck Scraped Street Car, Killing Passenger.

Robert Abbott, whose coal truck scraped the side of a street car, killing a passenger who was about to alight, was sentenced to 60 days in the Workhouse by Police Judge Joseph Simpson yesterday on a charge of careless driving.

The man killed was Ivan C. Jenkins, 39-year-old WPA worker, 1307 (rear) South Vandeventer avenue. The accident occurred Dec. 27 at Vandeventer and Kentucky avenues, where a northbound Southampton street car had stopped to discharge passengers. There is no safety zone at the intersection.

Witnesses testified Jenkins leaned out of the door before stepping down, apparently to see if the way was clear. Before he could draw back, however, a handle on the side of the truck caught his clothing and yanked him out. He was dead of a fractured skull on arrival at City Hospital. Police testfied the truck handle was found in his clothing at the hospital.

Abbott, who resides at 4046 Labadie avenue, testified the street was slippery and that his truck skidded when he attempted to stop behind an automobile which had pulled up alongside the street car. To avoid hitting the machine ahead, he said, he swerved sharply to the left, trying to pass between the street car and the automobile. The truck scraped the side of the street car, hitting Jenkins, who stood in the center door.

Abbott appealed from the Workhouse sentence. The grand jury returned a no true bill following an investigation of the case last month.

BOY INJURED WHEN SLED HITS TREE IN CLIFTON PARK

Thomas Sullivan, 8, Suffers Concussion of the Brain; Taken to Hospital.

Thomas, 8-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Francis M. Sullivan, 6285 Reber place, is in Firmin Desloge Hospital with concussion of the brain and a possible skull injury, suffered when he crashed into a tree while coasting on his sled in Clifton Park, near his home, yesterday.

The boy was found unconscious by a passerby opposite 6160 Columbia avenue. He was lying beneath the tree, which stood at the foot of a long hill in the park. His overturned sled was by his side. There were no witnesses to the accident.

After receiving emergency treatment from a neighborhood physician, the boy was taken to the hospital, where physicians said his condition was serious. Thomas is a pupil of the Epiphany School. His father is a supervisor for Western Union.

DEMOCRATIC FIRE CONCENTRATED ON LIBERTY LEAGUE

Attention for the Moment Also Given to Chamber of Commerce and National Manufacturers.

By RAYMOND P. BRANDT,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.—In the present political poker game, the time is relentlessly approaching, with the preferential primaries, when the presidential aspirants must show their hands. Senator Borah of Idaho started the showdown this week when he announced that he would enter the Ohio and Oregon Republican primaries, thereby challenging former President Hoover of California, Gov. Landon of Kansas, Col. Knox of Chicago, Senator Vandenberg of Michigan, Senator Dickinson of Iowa and the lesser known candidates to a trial of strength.

Under the Ohio laws, the presidential aspirants must give their consent in writing for the filing on or before March 13 for the State primaries to be held in May. At present the outward commotion is in Republican ranks, but the necessary undercover work has already been started by the Democrats. The Roosevelt people are getting busy, and the Liberty League, which is said to have several thousand Ohio members, is working on a statewide organization to carry out undisclosed plans.

Former Representative Charles West of Ohio, now nominally the Undersecretary of the Interior and actually one of the President's gumshoe men, left last night for Ohio to take care of the mechanics of getting the Democratic delegates instructed for Roosevelt and Garner. Since Ohio is one of the first states to hold primaries, the effect of an entire delegation instructed for the President is desired. A serious anti-Roosevelt fight in Ohio would be embarrassing to the President, and it is West's job to pick a slate of delegates that will stand by the administration and yet have enough local strength to quell any rebellions.

Assails Liberty League.

Propaganda from the Democratic Committee this week indicates that the Roosevelt machine is more fearful at this time of the Liberty League, the United States Chamber of Commerce and the National Manufacturers than of the somewhat disorganized Republican forces. Postmaster-General—Democratic National Chairman—Farley berated the organizations of business men in his Miami speech, and Charles Michelson, the party publicity director, devoted his entire weekly column today to his former boss, Jouett Shouse, and the Liberty League.

Incidentally, Michelson, who did the actual writing in the so-called "smear Hoover" campaign of 1928 to 1932, is scheduled for some competition. Chairman Henry P. Fletcher of the Republican National Committee announced today that the national Republican publicity had been put in charge of Theodore Huntley, a Washington newspaper man and a former secretary to former Senator David A. Reed of Pennsylvania. Huntley is best known for his campaign biography of John W. Davis, the Democratic presidential nominee in 1924.

Michelson, in his attack on Shouse and the Liberty League, declared that neither had shown or had attempted to show that the New Deal had inflicted any slightest harm on business or had periled anybody's fortune.

"There are two ways of looking at the Liberty League," Michelson said. "First, as a device set up principally by the du Pont family and those associated in business with it, like Mr. John J. Raskob, to have retained in government the processes which enabled these gentlemen to make their millions; and second, a racket by which the very wealthy folk of the land are induced to believe that they are doing a patriotic job in throwing obstacles in the way of an administration that has brought about a measure of return of prosperity to this country."

Ridicules Shouse.

Michelson ridiculed Shouse's recent Baltimore speech, in which the president of the Liberty League said that Roosevelt had as great authority as a dictator could ask and that this authority, delegated by a supine Congress, was an hourly menace to the liberties of the people. Michelson observed there was humor in Shouse's parallel between Roosevelt and Stalin, Hitler and Mussolini.

"For example," Michelson said, "imagine Stalin or Mussolini or Hitler having a bonus veto turned down by the legislative branch of their governments. Fancy these autocrats, who are pictured as the European prototypes of Franklin Roosevelt, having such important elements in their national programs as the NRA and the AAA are to the New Deal program set aside by a Supreme Court, and you can get a picture of the absurdity of such comparison as Mr. Shouse made.

"Of course, I, as a political propaganda dispenser, can appreciate Mr. Shouse's situation. He is a better propagandist than I, as is evidenced from the circumstance that he is paid three times as much for his services. But I contend that my job is harder than his. I have got to be logical enough to avoid making myself ridiculous in my efforts to put the Democratic case before the people. He, on the other hand, has only to satisfy his few wealthy patrons by issuing matter in the form he knows will please them most."

Michelson even cited the attacks made in Shouse's name against President Hoover, when Michelson himself was generally considered the author of Shouse attacks.

"My memory," wrote Michelson, "goes back to Mr. Shouse's virulent scorn of President Hoover because the latter would not listen to the advice of a thousand economists who sought to get him to veto the Smoot-Hawley tariff bill. I just wonder what is the Liberty League view of the Smoot-Hawley tariff bill today?"

Strange Associations.

Politics makes strange divorces as well as strange associations. The Michelson-Shouse political feud is taking on the air of a nasty family row in which an amicable voluntary separation has for political purposes at least, caused the participants to use the blows on each other that they had rained on an outsider.

The political significance of the Farley-Michelson attacks on Shouse and the Liberty League is that they are using the same tactics that Shouse, Raskob and Michelson used on Hoover. The concentration of fire on the Liberty League indicates that the Democratic administration is not underestimating the influence of an organization that includes two former Democratic presidential nominees in its membership and has demonstrated that it can collect a campaign fund either national political organization would like to have.

MARYLAND OFFICER DIED ON "NEEDLESS" RESCUE TRIP

Red Cross Chairman and Others Criticise Attempt to Cross Chesapeake Bay in Snowstorm.

By the Associated Press.

CRISFIELD, Md., Feb. 8.—Statements were made today that Sergt. Wilbert V. Hunter died "unnecessarily" although there was only praise for the Maryland State policeman who lost his life in a snow storm trying to take food to ice-marooned Tangier Islanders.

"I didn't think the trip was necesssary. I didn't think there was any actual need there," said J. Millard Tawes, Red Cross chairman. Hunter and 15 others started across treacherous Chesapeake Bay ice toward the island late yesterday. Maj. Enoch B. Garey of the State Police launched the expedition pushing a ton of food on sleds across the ice. Mayor W. H. Bradshaw said: "I would never have started under those conditions."

"He died at his post like a gentleman," Garey reported to Gov. Harry W. Nice.

The Governor has appointed a court of inquiry to investigate the circumstances of the expedition.

Hunter died of exposure and exhaustion. His body was recovered by the coast guard cutter Travis, which rescued three of five other members of the party suffering from exposure. Maj. Garey was one of the three the Travis crew picked up unconscious on the ice last night.

The cutter was unable to reach the islands after it had been disabled by a broken clutch. It turned back to Norfolk.

Constitutional power to engage in private business within the states it could not legally authorize its agency, the RFC, to do so.

Rights of Minorities.

"One of the purposes underlying the formation and development of the Constitution," the brief said, "was to protect the rights of a substantial minority of the people against the will of a temporary majority. It is submitted that if a temporary majority should come into power and determine that the Government should take over the business of the country, if the corporation under consideration is sustained, then this may be done by creating a corporation to buy for the Government the control of the entire business and industry of the country. For it is obvious that if the Government has the right through a corporation to buy preferred stock, it also has the right to buy common stock, and of course control of industry may be just as effectively obtained by means of loans and mortgages as by stock control. If the power exists there are no limits to its exercise . . . In short, if this law is sustained the private business of the country may be bought by the Government without a Constitutional amendment."

Inquiring as to whether there was any express or implied power of Congress to set up the RFC, Hughes dismissed the first part of the proposition with the statement that it must be admitted there was no such express power. As to implied power, he quoted clause 18 of Article 8 of the Constitution, giving Congress power to "make all laws which shall be necessary and proper for carrying into execution the foregoing powers and all other powers vested by this Constitution in the Government of the United States or in any department or officer thereof."

"Fiscal Agent of Government."

Hughes commented in his brief: "It is in the relation of this clause to some power expressly granted that the power to create the corporation must be found, if it exists. Anything done under this clause must be reasonably related to some of the express powers, for it is settled that while 'necessary and proper' does not mean indispensably necessary, it does mean reasonably related and necessary to the execution of the express powers and not distantly or remotely so related."

He dealt with the provision that the RFC was to be a depositary for public funds, and showed that in another clause of the act the Federal Reserve Banks were designated as depositaries for RFC funds, which, he argued, destroyed the pretext that the RFC was performing a legitimate governmental function in acting as depositary.

"It is common knowledge," Hughes argued, "that the RFC was not created to be a depositary of public money and was only created to be a fiscal agent of the Government for the purposes set forth in the act itself, which we submit are unconstitutional purposes."

The implied power claimed for Congress in behalf of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation Act was contrary to the ninth and tenth amendments, Hughes argued. He quoted from the Supreme Court in Schechter vs. United States (the decision invalidating the NRA): "Extraordinary conditions do not create or enlarge constitutional power."

He added the second proposition that a prevision of the Constitution means today exactly what it did at the time of its adoption, and quoted from decisions of the Supreme Court to that effect.

"To permit the Federal Government to engage in business through buying the stock of intrastate corporations or through procuring control of them by means of mortgages," Hughes argued, "violates the rights reserved to the people by the ninth and tenth amendments. The RFC act is entirely new. Nothing like it was foreseen or contemplated at the time of the adoption of the Constitution. . . . It is too firmly established to be disputed that the Federal Government cannot do indirectly what it cannot do directly. It can hardly be asserted that it has direct power to take over and operate the industries of the nation. We submit it may not accomplish the same result by the use of Federal money."

"Misuse of Public Credit."

Hughes attacked the legislation as a misuse of public credit for the benefit of individuals, which would be class legislation. He quoted from the Supreme Court opinion in Noble Bank vs. Haskell (219 U. S. 104) in which Justice Holmes said: "The use of public credit on a large scale to help individuals in business has been held to be beyond the line."

The brief continued: "Even in states, which have far greater power than the Federal Government, such a thing has been consistently held unconstitutional. The cases have invariably maintained the distinction between relief to the poor and destitute on the one hand and pecuniary aids or bounties to individuals or businesses on the other."

State Decisions Quoted.

Hughes then cited numerous state decisions holding invalid various appropriations for bounties to businesses and individuals.

"In all these cases," he continued, "it was argued that the payment to the specified industry would result in the public good. . . . The same argument was pressed upon the Supreme Court in an attempt to justify payments to farmers under the Government's contracts in the AAA case. That the RFC is engaged in business can hardly be denied. . . .

"To raise money by taxation for the purpose of investing in the preferred stock of private corporations or for the purpose of aiding private industries is an abuse of the power of taxation. In United States v. Butler (the AAA case) the Court said: 'A tax in the general understanding of the term, and as used in the Constitution, specifies an exaction for the support of the Government.'

"The power to appropriate is no broader than the power to tax and Congress may not make an appropriation for a purpose for which it cannot levy a tax. . . . the question whether the Federal Government has the power to finance the intrastate agriculture, commerce, industry and banking of the country is now submitted to this court for decision."

PROMOTION PLANS OF FIRM NAMED IN RECEIVERSHIP SUIT

Investors Put Nearly $50,000 Into Second Hand Buyers' and Sellers' Listing Bureau.

The enthusiaastic confidence of ...mes Maccallum Jr. in the future ... the "Second Hand Buyers' & Sel-...rs' Listing Bureau of America ...nc.," a business he conceived after ...he had made a fortune on an automobile gasoline gauge invention, led dozens of St. Louisans, attracted by the prospect of large profits, to in-...vest nearly $50,000 in it.

A charge that the assets of the company have been exhausted was made in a receivership petition against the firm filed by a stockholder Friday.

The plan, which eventually culminated in a stock-selling campaign, was originated by Maccallum a few years ago when he resided in an imposing residence at 5065 Lindell boulevard and was in the market for second-hand objects of art. Convinced that there are as many persons who wanted to buy used articles as there were who had them to sell, he set up a small agency to locate, for a fee, a prospective purchaser for any second-hand article listed for sale with his bureau. The seller was charged 50 cents for the privilege of listing his item and upon its sale paid, in addition 10 per cent of the price it brought.

Starting the Company.

With a degree of success in the preliminary venture behind him, Maccallum outlined his plan to friends and associates, including Willis H. A. Fahey, then a promotional salesmanager for the Shell Petroleum Co., who later became vice-president of the S. H. B. & S. L. B. of A., Inc. when it opened offices July 1, with Maccallum as president, in the elaborate quarters at 4030 Chouteau avenue, formerly occupied by the Chouteau Bank & Trust Co.

Before enough stock was sold to justify this auspicious beginning, Maccallum gave an illustrated lecture to a group of prospective investors at the Coronado Hotel, in which he set forth in glowing detail the opportunity for profits which awaited the investor who came in while the business was young. Each buyer of a $1000 preferred share received a bonus of 40 shares of common stock.

The plans included opening bureaus for buyers and sellers of second hand articles in 93 cities. The Chouteau avenue headquarters, thus far the only bureau, was opened at a cost of $20,000, according to the stockholder who has asked a receiver for the company, alleging it is useless to attempt to operate it further. The problem of getting business was attacked at once; a radio advertising campaign was begun and hundreds of solicitors, or as Fahey and Maccallum preferred to call them, "listing agents," were hired.

"Listing Agency."

The "listing agents" received $1 against their earnings, to provide transportation and meals for the day. This practice was discontinued when neither the men nor the dollar nor any business came back to the office. In its place was established a program of "pep talks" for new employes. H. E. Bloom, district manager of an established force of door-to-door canvassers, gave inspirational talks at several morning meetings.

After a deep emotional appeal, according to one witness, Bloom raised outstretched arms to his audience and shouted: "Go out, men! Go out and get me an order. Get me a dozen, a hundred orders." The meeting would be closed at this point with song. He supplied parodied words, copies of which would be circulated among the group. One, to be sung to the tune of "I'm Forever Blowing Bubbles," follows:

I'm foverer taking listings, taking listings everywhere.
The housewives smile, which makes it worth while,
And makes my profits pile and pile.
Out we go with vigor, the listings to prepare,
I'm forever taking listings—taking listings everywhere.

Radio Advertising Sketch.

To reach prospective customers, dramatic sketches were presented by radio. In one, illustrative of the tone of the series, an impoverished old man was saved from starvation and the humiliation of selling a shawl of great sentimental value, when the "listing agent" who solicited his patronage, advised him not to sell the shawl with which the old man was drying his tears, but instead to dispose of a lawn mower and a hitching post which the observing solicitor noticed in the front yard as he came in. This the unfortunate old man did, and it was implied in the sketch that he neither had to sell the shawl nor starve, due to the intervention of the S. H. B. & S. L. B. of A., Inc.

But the expected rush of customers and big profits did not materialize. Maccallum and Fahey reduced their salaries from $660 and $500 a month, respectively, to $500 and $400 a month; nevertheless an overhead of about $6000 a month in salaries and expenses continued. As to income, it was alleged in the receivership petition that the December receipts of the firm were $3.61; that the firm has lost $39,549; that no solicitor, at 25 cents for each listing he obtained, was ever able to average $5 a week.

Maccallum could not be reached yesterday, but Fahey denied various allegations of mismanagement in the receivership petition and pointed that the record of expenses drawn by officers of the company was available for inspection. "There were no high-power methods used in selling stock," he said. "If our plans have miscarried—and I think we can carry the business on—you will find we have executed a program exactly as outlined to investors."

73 PCT. OF SPECIAL STREET TAXES PAID

$7,530,000 of $10,350,000 in Assessments Collected in Last 10 Years.

The list consisted of 13 street improvements, all completed, and showed payments to last Jan. 9, the end of the first nine months of the city's fiscal year 1935-36. Payments between the end of the last fiscal year, last April 9, and Jan. 9 last, totaled $536,344.

Record of Projects.

The record of payments in each of the 13 widenings and improvements follows:

Olive street, widened from 60 to 100 feet from Twelfth boulevard to Channing avenue, completed in 1928: total benefit taxes. $1,392,894, of which $1,239,596, or 89 per cent, has been paid.

On the four largest widenings—Gravois and Natural Bridge avenues, Market street and Delmar boulevard—the Greater St. Louis Corporation, organized in 1930 to take over the city's special tax bills at a five per cent discount and advance the money for the widenings, purchased $5,516,265 in special tax bills, and has been paid a total of $260,561 in interest on these bills. On the other major widenings, the money was paid into court by the city prior to the formation of the Greater St. Louis Corporation.

IOWA PACKING CO. CITED ON COMPLAINT OF UNION

Des Moines Firm Ordered to Appear Before Labor Board in St. Louis.

The National Labor Relations Board, through Harold T. Garvey, director of the Fourteenth Region, yesterday cited the Iowa Packing Co. of Des Moines, Ia., to answer at a hearing in St. Louis Feb. 20 the complaint of union packing house workers that it has discriminated against union employes.

The company was charged with having urged its employes to join an organization known as Swift & Co. Employes' Representation Plan, and to have threatened to discharge any who joined the local union of the Amalgamated Meat Cutters and Butcher Workmen of North America. It was also charged with having threatened to shut down its plant in the event that a majority of the employes voted for the union rather than the employes' representation organization to represent them in collective bargaining.

It was alleged the practices of the company "burden and obstruct the free flow of interstate commerce." The hearing will be held before a trial examiner of the National Labor Relations Board, at the Federal Building, Twelfth and Market streets.

THREE MISSOURI G. O. P. MEETINGS IN CITY THIS WEEK

Committee Will Gather Wednesday to Fix Date and Place for State Convention.

Three Republican meetings of State-wide significance will be held in St. Louis this week, marking the unofficial opening of the 1936 national and State campaigns in Missouri. They are meetings of the Republican State Committee Wednesday, the Association of Young Republicans of Missouri Thursday, both at Hotel Jefferson, and the Republican Editorial Association Friday at the American Hotel.

The annual Lincoln day banquet of the Association of Young Republicans, held on or near Lincoln's birthday each year, is usually attended by most of the Republican leaders of the State and is regarded, particularly in the year of a presidential and general State election, as the opening of the year's campaign. Candidates for offices on the State ticket usually attend to sound out their chances for nomination at the party primary.

Session of State Committee.

The Republican State Committee, meeting at 10 a. m. Wednesday, will fix a date and place for the party's State convention, at which delegates-at-large will be elected and congressional district delegates ratified for the party's national convention at Cleveland in June. The committee will also set the dates for meetings to be held in the 13 congressional districts for the election of district delegates for the national convention.

Missouri has 30 votes in this year's national convention, and is entitled to four delegates-at-large and 26 district delegates, two from each of the 13 districts, each with a full vote. Sometimes, a larger delegation is chosen and each delegate has a fractional vote in the national convention.

Young Republicans' Meeting.

The annual meeting of the Association of Young Republicans will begin at 8:45 a. m. Thursday with a breakfast at Hotel Jefferson, given by Richmond C. Coburn, St. Louis lawyer and retiring president of the association. At 10 o'clock the 26 vice-presidents of the association will meet to elect new officers. Clarence A. Powell of Dexter, Mo., present treasurer, is expected to be elected president, in keeping with the organization's custom of elevating the treasurer each year to the presidency the following year. Miss Laura Patrick of Harrisonville is slated to be the new secretary and State Senator Ray Mabee of Unionville, treasurer. In addition, 26 new vice-presidents will be chosen, a man and a woman from each of the 13 Congressional Districts.

At noon, there will be a luncheon sponsored by the Federation of Republican Women's Clubs of Missouri, at which Mrs. Robert Lincoln Hoyal, Republican National Committeewoman from Arizona, will speak.

The general business meeting of the association will take place at 2 o'clock, followed at 3 o'clock by a joint meeting of various Young Republican clubs from St. Louis and outstate with the members of the State committee to discuss organization work and campaign plans.

Senator Austin to Speak.

United States Senator Warren R. Austin of Vermont will be the principal speaker at the annual banquet at 6:30 o'clock Thursday evening. Other speakers include Mrs. Hoyal, Congressman Dewey Short of Galena, Mo., only Republican Congressman from Missouri, and Branch Rickey, vice-president and general manager of the St. Louis Cardinals.

Tickets for the banquet are $1.75 each, obtainable now at the office of George L. Stemmler, Boatmen's Bank Building, or Wednesday and Thursday at Hotel Jefferson.

Coburn said to a Post-Dispatch reporter yesterday that the attendance at the banquet will probably exceed 1000 persons. At the speakers' table will be two of the candidates for the Republican nomination for Governor, former Attorney-General Jesse W. Barrett of St. Louis, and former Lieutenant-Governor Edward H. Winter of Jefferson City, the nominee in 1932; former Gov. Henry S. Caulfield, former United States Senator Roscoe C. Patterson of Springfield, and Fred Seaton of Manhattan, Kan., president of the Young Republicans of Kansas.

The more interesting part of the association meeting will probably be in the lobbies, corridors and hotel rooms, where members of the party will gather informally to discuss candidates, political trades and general features of the campaign.

Talk on Candidates.

Discussion is expected to center on the candidates for Governor. Besides Jesse Barrett and Winter, James J. Barrett of St. Louis, former private detective and now vice-president of an electric refrigerator concern, and Claude Leroy Lambert of Kansas City, head of a pharmacal firm, have announced that they would seek the nomination for Governor.

Henri Chouteau of St. Louis has announced his candidacy for Lieutenant-Governor and former State Senator Manvel H. Davis of Kansas City, also is expected to be a candidate for this office. Among those mentioned for other State offices recently were Rush H. Limbaugh of Cape Girardeau and former State Supreme Judge Conway Elder of St. Louis for the State Supreme Court.

The meeting of the Republican Editorial Association, to be held all day Friday at the American Hotel, will be attended by Republican editors from outstate and one of the principal subjects of discussion is expected to be the handling of publicity in rural Missouri newspapers in the coming campaigns.

PRINCE SERGE M'DIVANI AND HIS BRIDE

THE former Louise Van Alen who were married yesterday at Palm Beach, Fla. She was at one time married to Alexis M'Divani who was killed in an automobile accident in Spain.

OUISE VAN ALEN MARRIED TO SECOND MDIVANI PRINCE

Woman, Who Divorced Late Alexis, Becomes Third Wife of Prince Serge.

By the Associated Press.

PALM BEACH, Fla., Feb. 8.—Louise Van Alen of Newport and Palm Beach was married at noon today to her second Mdivani Prince. In the flower-bedecked Van Alen villa, with members of the family and friends watching, the 25-year-old society belle, divorced in 1932 from the late Prince Alexis Mdivani became the bride of her former brother-in-law, Prince Serge Mdivani, 33.

Thousands of carnations, mingled with ferns, filled the chamber in the home of Mrs. James Laurens Van Alen, the bride's mother, where the ceremony took place. Organ music preceded the service, read by Dr. William Edward Biederwolf, chaplain of the non-sectarian Poinciana Chapel.

The bride, great-granddaughter of the late Mrs. William Astor, was married to Prince Alexis Mdivani May 15, 1931, and divorced him at The Hague in 1932. Alexis later married Barbara Hutton, the Woolworth heiress, who in turn divorced him at Reno last year and became the bride of Count Court von Haugwitz Reventlow, Danish nobleman. Alexis later was killed in an automobile accident in Spain.

Prince Serge, born in Batoun, Ga., the son of Gen. Zakhart Mdivani, attended, with Alexis, the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. Later he went to California. He had been married before to Pola Negri, screen and stage star, and Mary McCormic, the opera singer.

TRUSTEE TO BE NAMED FOR SAUTER'S PARK

Amusement Firm Files Debtor's Petition for Reorganization in Federal Court.

Three years of poor patronage, resulting from the general business depression, has finally compelled the Sauter Park Amusement Co., operator of an amusement park at 8614 South Broadway, to file a debtor's petition for reorganization in Federal Court.

The petition, filed before Judge C. B. Davis Friday, set forth that the company had been unable to meet its debts as they matured. The petition was approved by Judge Davis, and the company was continued in control of its assets pending the appointment of a trustee at a hearing March 3.

The amusement park, which occupies nearly a city block, was known for many years as Mannion's Park. In 1925 it was purchased by the late Alois Sauter, father of the present owner, Gus A. Sauter. It is equipped wwith a roller coaster, dance pavilion, roller skating hall, merry-go-round, shooting galleries and other amusement devices.

The income during the four or five months a year that the park is operated has been insufficient to keep up payments on debts, according to Edward Greensfelder, attorney for the company.

The petition listed liabilities of $36,145, including mortgages payable, $16,000; accounts payable, $11,052; interest and taxes, $6996, and notes, $2097. Assets of $70,988 were listed, including land, $50,000; buildings and equipment, $18,012, and accounts receivable, $2976.

Heirs of R. W. Nichols Are Six Daughters and Two Sons.

The estate of Robert M. Nichols, an attorney, who died Jan. 8, was valued at $148,012 in an inventory filed in Probate Court yesterday.

Assets listed were notes secured by deeds of trust, $59,511; bonds, $63,225; real estate, $23,000, and chattels, $2276. Heirs are six daughters and two sons, Mrs. Violet Bradley, Robert W. Nichols, John M. Nichols, Mrs. Julia Anderson, Mrs. Adele Pollack, Mrs. Kathryn Elliott, Mrs. Dorothy Materne and Miss Anna Nichols. ROOSEVELT'S MESSAGE TO NEW YORK POLICE Services "Too Often Taken for Granted," He Says; Address Is Telephoned.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.—The Patrolman's Benevolent Association of New York City heard from President Roosevelt tonight that "law enforcement is all too often taken for granted."

In a telephoned address to the association meeting in Madison Square Garden, Roosevelt said that "unless there is security of person, as well as protection of material possessions, all of our efforts for social and economic betterment rest upon a foundation of sand."

The President's telephoned message:

"It is a pleasure to speak a few words tonight to those gathered in Madison Square Garden at the meeting of the Patrolmen's Benevolent Association of New York City. I wish it had been possible to extend this informal greeting to your members face to face, because both as one who has spent much time in the great metropolis of New York and as Governor of New York State for four years I came into close contact with your members, with your work, and with the progress and the ideals of your organization.

Protection of Home.

"I am sitting at my desk, close to an open fire, as thousands of others are doubtless doing tonight in their homes all over the United States. Most of us take our ease in our homes without giving much thought to the peace and the protection that surround us. We think too little of the activities of the members of the great police organizations which afford us this peace and protection.

"Law enforcement is all too often taken for granted. But all of us know that without the vigilance and the ceaseless routine of law enforcement agencies the enterprises of anti-social individuals and groups would disrupt and disorganize the business and the pleasures of life, as well as threaten the home itself. Unless there is security of the person, as well as protection of material possessions, all of our efforts for social and economic betterment rest upon a foundation of sand.

"All the complexities of transportation, of business, of trade, of commerce, of education, of entertainment, and of the mere moving of great masses of individuals from place to place at high speed during stated hours of the morning and evening, make the task of the New York City police officer of vital importance.

Their "Untiring Services."

"I know from experience how effective, how expert, and how untiring the services of the members of your association are. I am aware of the splendid morale of the New York police. I know of their traditions and of their justified pride in themselves and in the department. And I know a good deal about their problems, both as a great group of public servants and as individuals.

"The work that the Patrolmen's benevolent association does among its members and their families is in large degree devoted to the welfare of the thousands of individual persons who make up the great whole of the New York City police department, which among police organizations of the world occupies one of the highest places.

"And so I repeat that I wish I were on the platform at Madison Square Garden to greet you face to face, to congratulate you on the achievements of the Patrolmen's Benevolent Association does among further success in your fine efforts, and to assure your members that in the future as in the past I shall place my dependence upon you, just as many millions of your friends and neighbors do."

NEGRO GETS $501 POSTAL ACCOUNT BY MISTAKE

John Henry Lewis Keeps Paper and Is Arrested; Prisoner Said to Have Taken Out $100.

A postal savings account for $501 belonging to John Henry Lewis, Negro light-heavyweight boxing champion, was accepted at the Main Postoffice last Nov. 7 by John Henry Lewis, 60-year-old Negro laborer, the latter admitted to police yesterday after being arrested for Federal authorities.

The account was in a letter intended for Lewis, the fighter, who had been here the month before, and was sent by the San Francisco Postal Savings branch. The envelope was addressed to Lewis in care of general delivery, without further identification. It was handed to Lewis, the laborer, when he called for his mail at the general delivery window, and he identified himself by name by his discharge papers as a Spanish-American War veteran.

The prisoner, according to police, said he re-entered the account at a branch postal station here and since has withdrawn $100 from it.

FUNERAL TOMORROW

WILLIAM P. EVANS.

W. P. EVANS, TEACHER FOR 48 YEARS, DIES

Funeral Services Tomorrow for Former State Superintendent of Schools.

William P. Evans, principal of Rock Spring School and former State Superintendent of Schools, died yesterday of anemia. He had been a teacher in St. Louis schools for 48 years.

Mr. Evans, who was 75 years old, began his teaching career in Cass County 58 years ago. He obtained an A. B. degree at Washington University in 1884 and began teaching in St. Louis schools four years later.

He taught physics and mathematics at old Central High School and served as principal at Carondelet, Lafayette, Chouteau, Hodgen and Blow schools.

In 1910, he spent the summer vacation in an intensive campaign for the Republican nomination for State Superintendent of Schools. Winning the nomination, he defeated Howard A. Gass, Democratic nominee, and successfully opposed Gass' contest of the election.

Following his four-year term, he returned to St. Louis and became principal of Blow School, remaining there until last September, when he was transferred to Rock Spring School.

Mr. Evans resided on Telegraph road, St. Louis County, but during his illness had been at the home of Mrs. Robert E. Erwin, sister of Mrs. Evans, 6626 Vermont avenue. The body will remain there until 10 o'clock tomorrow morning when it will be taken to the Hoffmeister undertaking establishment, 7814 South Broadway, where funeral services will be held at 2 o'clock.

Besides his wife, he is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Warren C. Morris, Bunceton, Mo., and a son, William P. Evans Jr., a student at Westminster College.

STATE RELIEF BODY TO BUY 85,000 BUSHELS OF APPLES

Amount Purchased in Each Community to Be Pro-Rated on Total Now in Storage.

W. R. Martin, secretary of the Missouri Horticultural Society at Columbia, Mo., announced yesterday that the Missouri Relief Commission had been authorized by the Surplus Commodities Division of the United States Department of Agriculture to purchase 85,000 bushels of Missouri-grown apples for 65 cents a bushel.

The purchase price will be subject to a Federal Government inspection fee, to be paid by the owner of the apple orchard.

The apples to be purchased, Martin said, will be restricted to those now in cold storage, and the purchases will be in 100-bushel lots. The amount purchased in each community will be pro-rated on the basis of the total in storage throughout the State. Most recent figures, he said, show the total number of apples in storage in Missouri to be 1,500,000 bushels, of which St. Louis has 750,000 bushels.

SENTENCED TO WORKHOUSE ON DRUNKEN DRIVING CHARGE

Maplewood Man Had Paid for Damage Done to Car His Collided With.

Richard Watts, 3659 Commonwealth avenue, Maplewood, was sentenced to 10 days in the workhouse yesterday on a charge of driving when intoxicated. Police Judge Simpson at first ordered revocation of Watts' driver's license, then decided on the workhouse sentence when he learned the defendant lived in the county and hence had no city driver's license.

Watts was arrested after his car collided with one driven by Meade Woodson, 3658 West Pine boulevard. Woodson told the Court he didn't care to prosecute as Watts had paid him $20, covering the damage to his car.

BANKRUPTCY PETITION AGAINST KRISMAN-FREY JEWELRY CO.

Three Eastern Creditors Allege Firm Is Insolvent; Attorney Makes Denial.

An involuntary petition in bankruptcy was filed in Federal Court yesterday against the Krisman-Frey Jewelry Manufacturing Co., with offices in the Victoria Building, by three creditors, who alleged the company was insolvent.

Petitioning creditors and the amount of their claims were: Oneida, Ltd., Oneida, N. Y., $3078; Ostby & Barton Co., Providence, R. I., $2981, and the Bulova Watch Co., New York, $2335. Each alleged the amounts were due for merchandise. The petition also contended the jewelry firm had committed an act of bankruptcy by paying a debt to a St. Louis printing concern, with intent to prefer that creditor over others.

Joseph Boxerman, attorney for the Krisman-Frey company, denied in a statement that the firm was insolvent. He said a recent audit made at the request of the Jewelry Board of Trade, showed the firm was financially sound. The jewelry manufacturing company was incorporated in 1916 under the laws of Missouri, with a capital stock of $30,000. Harry E. Krisman is president.

In addition to his term in the Senate he served two terms as a member of the Missouri House of Representatives and was a member of the Missouri Survey Commission. He had an overseas service of two years and three months, serving as a pilot in the French Air Service and later with the Ninety-sixth United States Air Squadron.

"SEEKERS OF SPECIAL PRIVILEGES" ASSAILED

Farley Says They Are Source of Charge Roosevelt Policies Are "Socialistic."

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 8.—Postmaster General James A. Farley tonight assailed critics who call President Roosevelt's policies "Socialistic" as "certain sources which always seek and welcome special privileges at the hands of the Government."

Farley is chairman of the New York State and National Democratic Committees. He spoke before New York Postoffice employes at a dinner in his honor.

Reciting improvement of working hours and conditions of postal employes, Farley said the President had "maintained a constant and active interest" in the department.

"The President, as busy as he is, has also constantly and actively sought to improve all Government services and to make the Government as a whole more responsive to the needs of the people of this country," he said.

"His determination to do this and the efforts he has put forth in this direction have brought from certain sources which always seek and welcome special privileges at the hands of the Government the criticism that his policies are Socialistic and Communistic.

"But the frenzy into which these critics have worked themselves, and their hostile propaganda poured out from various sources and by devious ways, has not shaken him one iota in his conviction that the needs of every citizen and every group of citizens is entitled to just and fair consideration at the hands of the Government. . . ."

Discussing expanding facilities for air mail, the Postmaster-General said additional services would be provided in Alaska and that regular schedules between the United States, Great Britain and Continental Europe would be in effect by next summer.

Of the business side of the Postoffice picture, Farley remarked, "Waste and extravagance must not be permitted and ways must be devised to eliminate unnecessary costs. . . . We still lose more than 9 cents on every registered article we handle; more than 3 cents on every money order issued, and more than 11 cents on every C. O. D. parcel."

Some 3000 postal employes greeted him. Postmaster Albert Goldman presided. Other guests included William W. Howes of Huron, N. D., First Assistant Postmaster-General; Senator Kenneth McKellar, Tennessee, and Congressman James M. Mead of Buffalo.

COLGATE U. HEAD, ADDRESSING BANKERS, ASSAILS ROOSEVELT

Says President Has Little Regard for Constitution, Implies Greed for Political Power.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 8.—President George Barton Cutten of Colgate University implied in an address to the American Institute of Banking tonight that President Roosevelt has a "greed for concentrated political power."

Commenting on two quotations from the President's opening address to the current Congress, Dr. Cutten said: "Two woods—entrenched greed'—used in reference to certain of our citizenry, . . . meant such men as you are—or such men as you hope to be. . . . There is, however, another form of greed which is charged with danger to both the individual showing it and the community at large . . . and that is the greed for concentrated political power.

"So I come to the second quotation . . . 'in 34 months we have built up new instruments of political power,' and he intimates there are more to come. . . . Our greatest fear now is that the safeguard which the Constitution vouchsafed to us will be overridden and disregarded and through political greed we shall again have slipped back 2000 years and have concentration of power. . . .

"There is one thing I have had to admire in the President; amid many inconsistencies his attitude toward the Constitution has been most consistent. When the eighteenth amendment was with us he showed little regard for the Constitution and has shown little since."

MISSION TAKES UP PROPOSAL FOR U. S.-GERMAN AIR LINE

Delegation Said to Seek Agreement on Terminal and Landing Facilities.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.—A German aviation mission took up with Government officials today the question of establishing a commercial trans-Atlantic air service between the two countries.

There were indications that the United States was asked to extend to Germany, in return for reciprocal treatment, terminal and landing facilities in this country similar to those it recently granted to Great Britain, Canada and the Irish Free State.

The German delegation arranged to present an application to the Bureau of Air Commerce for landing rights in the United States for any service in which Germany might have a part.

Consideration of actual details of the proposed airway was left for a meeting Monday between the mission and officials of the Inter-Departmental Committee on Civil International Aviation, headed by R. Walton Moore, Assistant Secretary of State.

The German delegation is composed of Willy Fisch, chief of the general air force in the Air Navigation Ministry; Heinrich Thomas, representing the Reich Ministry of Posts, and Martin Wronsky, manager of the German Commercial Airline, Lufthansa, which operates in Europe and Latin-America.

They favor joint German-American operation of a service along the southern route across the Atlantic via the Azores.

GIRL SCOUTS GET $5393 FIRST WEEK OF CAMPAIGN

J. M. Lashly Calls Contribution "First Class Investment"; $24,000 Sought in Drive.

A total of $5393 was collected in the first week of the Girl Scout 1936 budget campaign for $24,000, it was reported at the first report luncheon yesterday at Hotel Statler.

Jacob M. Lashly, chairman of the downtown division in last year's campaign, who addressed the meeting, referred to contribution to the fund as "a first-class investment." "This small yearly budget ought easily to be secured in 10 days in the downtown section alone," he said. "This would leave the residential sections for the women to solicit from their friends the increase necessary for expanded activities."

MAYOR HOPES ARMORY SITE WILL BE CHANGED

Defers Signing Purchase Bill, Thinks Aldermen Might Reconsider.

Mayor Dickmann yesterday decided to defer signing the Armory site purchase bill, passed Friday by the Board of Aldermen, in the hope that the board might decide to reconsider its selection of the site on the south side of Market street, between Prospect and Spring avenues. The Mayor favors the proposed site facing Camp Jackson Plaza, east of Grand boulevard, between Pine and Lawton boulevards.

The Mayor said that, since the site purchase bill passed by a 21-6 vote, he had been told that some of the Aldermen had expressed regret that the Camp Jackson site was not chosen, and that they would be willing to vote for reconsideration at next Friday's meeting.

To insure receiving a Federal grant of $374,000, early action by the city toward construction of the Armory will be necessary. If the Aldermen do not reconsider and change their decision as to the site Friday, or if the Mayor learns before that time that there is no prospect of such a change, he will sign the bill as it stands and direct that bids be asked for the foundations. The bids will have to be in by Feb. 18, he said.

Bids for foundation construction for the Camp Jackson site were obtained recently by the Board of Public Service, which favored that location. The lowest bid was for about $14,000.

The city has $1,000,000 bond issue funds available for the Armory building and site, besides the $347,000 PWA contribution. The Market street site will cost $109,700 for 95,000 square feet. The proposed Camp Jackson site was estimated to cost $175,000 for 92,908 square feet.

GOV. OLSON REPLIES TO COL. M'CORMICK

Denounces Chicago Publisher Who Declared He Gave "Aid to Gangland."

By the Associated Press.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Feb. 8.—Gov. Floyd B. Olson in a statement issued today at Rochester, Minn., where he is recuperating after an operation, called Col. Robert R. McCormick, publisher of the Chicago Tribune a "journalistic charlatan."

McCormick in a talk last night at Columbus, O., asserted "Olson lent aid and assistance to gangland in its campaign of murdering editors and all who cross his path."

The trial of Isadore (Kid Cann) Blumenfeld for the murder of Walter Liggett, editor, Dec. 9, was in recess today and will be resumed Monday.

Olson said McCormick's "charge against me is false and he knows it. He makes the charge . . . because he hates me for what he calls 'ultra-radicalism.' He is a faker in his alleged championship of the freedom of the press. Dozens of papers have been suppressed because of their economic views without a word from Bertie. It is only when a scandal sheet has difficulty that Bertie comes to the rescue."

He alleged McCormick was silent when "Chicago was the world's worst cesspool of corruption and crime" and held him "morally responsible for the deaths of many persons" from dysentery during the 1933 world's fair because "he suppressed the truth."

A statement was made yesterday by an independent investigator that vice and crime were rampant here and the city was divided into four districts by gangsters. Oliver T. Naugle, foreman of the grand jury, today promised to investigate the charges.

"There's enough stuff here to keep us busy until next December," he said.

PATE DISBARMENT SUIT UP TO ANOTHER JUDGE

James A. Reeves of Circuit Court at Caruthersville Disqualifies Himself.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CARUTHERSVILLE, Mo., Feb. 8.—Circuit Judge James A. Reeves disqualified himself here today as trial Judge in the disbarment suit pending against State Representative Sharon J. Pate, who has been charged with professional misconduct by the Advisory Committee to the State Bar Committee.

In entering the order, Judge Reeves remarked that before going on the bench he had been a lawyer for "parties involved in this case," and added that he was familiar with the facts and issues.

The Court ordered Circuit Clerk Ernest Long to hold an election among members of the Pemiscot County bar for the selection of a substitute Judge. The Clerk was instructed, however, to hold execution of the order in abeyance, at the suggestion of George L. Stemmler and Grover C. Sibley of St. Louis, representing the Advisory Committee, who asked for time to get an opinion from the Supreme Court as to the validity of Judge Reeves' action.

Counsel for the committee did not indicate what form their appeal would take. Pending a decision, Judge Reeves took no action on the committee's request for a change of venue from Pemiscot County, filed last Thursday, nor on a defense motion to dismiss the application.

In the disbarment suit, the committee charged that Pate, as attorney for Pemiscot County Drainage Districts 6 and 8, devised a fraudulent scheme to permit owners of mortgages of tax-delinquent land to consent to judgments against their property for the full amount of the taxes, plus costs and attorneys' fees, and then buy it in at an execution sale for the amount of costs and fees. In this way, it was alleged, the taxes were lost to his clients, the drainage districts, and he enriched himself through fees.

Pate has asserted there was no justification for the charges.

U. S. LOSES IN GUFFEY CASE

Pittsburgh Court Has Doubt of Validity of Law.

By the Associated Press.

PITTSBURGH, Feb. 8. — The Federal District Court today repeated doubts of the constitutionality of the Guffey Coal Control Act and denied a Government petition for modification of an injunction restraining collection of taxes.

The Government had sought to require that the Pittsburgh Coal Co. and five other mining firms be required to file the tax payments with the clerk of the Court pending a decision in the suit.

The Court declared: "We granted the preliminary injunctions in these cases because serious doubt existed in our minds as to the constitutionality of the bituminous coal code."

'COME FIGHT IN OPEN,' BORAH'S CHALLENGE

Presidential Candidate Calls Favorite Son Plan a Sham—Replies to Fess.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.—Senator Borah tonight challenged forces against him to "come into the open." Prompted by objections to him by the former Republican chairman, Simeon Fess of Ohio,, he attacked reported plans of the Ohio party organization to seek a "favorite son" convention delegation as "sham and deception."

Fess has hinted there would be some walking the other way if Borah views prevail. He contends Borah is more on the New Deal than the Republican side.

Borah's statement in part follows:

"The State of Ohio has a law upon her statute books providing for a presidential primary. This law gives the people of the State a voice in selecting the candidate for the presidency. . . . The so-called 'favorite son' plan is a scheme to get around this law. . . . and deprive the people of any voice in selecting the candidate. . . .

"Rightfully or wrongfully, the Republican party has been charged in recent years with little sympathy for the average man or woman. The charge has often been made that, by reason of its long length of power, it became indifferent to the questions of popular government.

"There could be nothing more reassuring and nothing more in the interest of party success, than to comply with the laws of the different states where they exist and seek the instruction and guidance of the voters. . . .

New Deal or Old Deal?

"The ex-Senator from Ohio, Mr. Fess, has said publicly that he is very much opposed to my nomination. . . . Who is he in favor of nominating? . . . I am told he is for Mr. Hoover. . . . Why not declare his position? . . .

"The truth is . . . that the favorite son proposition is a sham and a deception. Likewise, the uninstructed delegate plan is to enable all kinds of trading and manipulating in the selecting of a man for the high office of the presidency.

"Mr. Fess also says that, if we are going to have the New Deal, then why not vote for President Roosevelt direct instead of for me. . . . It is important to know what kind of a deal Mr. Fess is for. . . . Is he for the old deal?

"My opinion is that, while the people may have their objections to the New Deal they are not going back to the old deal. They at least want a square deal and the first evidence of a square deal is to give them an opportunity to express themselves at the polls."

Borah Prepares to Enter Ohio Presidential Primary.

By the Associated Press.

COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 8.—Backers of Senator William E. Borah, candidate for the Republican nomination for the presidency, moved today for Ohio's support by obtaining petitions allowing him to enter a full slate of delegates in the May primary.

Friends of Col. Frank Knox, mentioned among other Republican presidential possibilities, await his expected announcement of a bid for the State's 52 delegates to the national convention next June.

The Republican State Central Committee will meet next week to decide whether it will carry out its plan for an unpledged delegation. The committee now anticipates abandonment of the uninstructed or "favorite son" plan. Friends of Knox are making a strong bid for the indorsement and insist he will obtain it.

SECOND GUARD FIRED AT JOLIET

JOLIET, Ill., Feb. 8.—Dismissal of a second guard, Charles Goodwin, at Stateville prison, where Richard Loeb was slashed to death recently by a fellow convict, was disclosed today by Warden Joseph Ragen, who said the guard was discharged for inefficiency and failure to carry out orders. He said the action had no connection with the inquiry into Loeb's death.

A few days ago Homer Talley, the other guard, was discharged following the escape and recapture of convict James Floss, who alleged he and Talley went to Chicago for a drinking party. The Loeb killing is scheduled to be investigated by the grand jury when it convenes Feb. 17.

SIX EAST SIDE CORPORATIONS GET HIGHER TAX VALUATIONS

Increases Total $1,304,000 Over 1935 Figures; Two Railroads Included.

Assessed valuations of six corporations in St. Clair County for 1936 taxes, due next April, were increased a total of $1,304,870, over 1935 valuation by the St. Clair County Board of Supervisors, meeting yesterday at Belleville.

The increases were: "Illinois Power & Light Corporation, personal and real estate, $799,000; Southwestern Bell Telephone Co., personal property, $301,425; Phillips Petroleum Co., personal property, $58,405; Rampo-Ajax Co., personal property, $6635; Alton & Southern Railroad Co., personal property, $113,710, and St. Louis & Ohio Railroad Co., personal property, $26,695.

John Costello, secretary of the board, told reporters that the increases in the case of the two railroads were due to advances made during the past year by the roads to the Aluminum Ore Co., amounting to $435,000 in the case of the Alton & Southern and $135,000 in the case of the St. Louis & Ohio River road. These advances, Costello said, were entered on the tax returns of the railroads as non-operating personal property.

Sixth Anniversary Today Of KSD Community Forum

Branch Rickey and Forrest C. Donnell to Speak as They Did in Its First Broadcast — Romberg to Change His Program Style — Dragonette to Take Radio Vacation in March.

JESSICA DRAGONETTE will be out of KSD's Friday night concerts for five weeks from March 6 through April 3. The soprano plans to leave New York immediately after the broadcast of Feb. 28 for a vacation in Arizona and California, and to return to the program the night of April 10. During Miss Dragonette's absence her place in the KSD concerts will be taken by Lucille Manners, the young NBC network colortura soprano who substituted for her in the same way last March.

Lucille Manners.

Sigmund Romberg, the composer, says that hereafter his Tuesday night programs on KSD will be straight musical broadcasts by competent singers and musicians, without any artificially created atmosphere. "We will present the music and the musicians on their own merits, with no 'dressing up,'" he declares. "Letters from listeners have dictated this change. We have found that they are a little tired of shows which try to create, through tricks in the studio, the idea that the music is coming from a 'club,' a 'barn,' a 'hotel' or some other scene when everybody knows we're in a broadcasting studio. All these effects have a tendency to detract from the music when the effects themselves are not musical." "Sigmund Romberg Week" is being observed by orchestras all over the country on the theory that anyone who has contributed so much to music as he has deserved to be honored at the height of his career. Songs and duets from Victor Herbert's "Sweethearts" will be sung by Frank Munn and Lucy Monroe in KSD's Album of Familiar Music tonight. Carmela Ponselle, the operatic contralto, and Charles King, juvenile lead in "Little Nelly Kelly" and "Hit the Deck" are billed by Ted Hammerstein for tomorrow night on KSD.

A man who made a business of killing jaguars in the South American jungles will be Phillips Lord's "three-a-minute thrill" guest Feb. 19 on KSD. He is Alexander Siemel. Next Tuesday night, Lord will present C. B. Torkelson who narrowly escaped being killed by a meteor.

'Little Red School House' New Program Today on KSD.

LECTURES by members of the faculty of Washington University, on topics of interest to the public, are scheduled again this week on KSD, at 1:45 p. m. Monday through Friday.

A new weekly program, "The Little Red School House," will be carried by KSD for the first time at 1:30 this afternoon. The scene of the sketches will be laid in a country school house in Western Missouri where the boys and girls, their parents and other villagers gather Sundays for half an hour of entertainment under the guidance of "Professor Beasley," the teacher. The principal role will be played by Martin Hughes.

The KSD program, "Memories in Melody," which was scheduled at 6:45 p. m. the first five week days, has been cancelled. It will be replaced Monday, Wednesday and Friday by a program called "Did You Know?"

Eighty-five years ago tomorrow, on Feb. 10, 1851, a letter was dispatched by stage to Chicago from Springfield bearing the news that the Legislature that day had enacted a bill creating the Illinois Central Railroad Co. The letter arrived in Chicago three days later, and its news was relayed to the local garrison and broadcast by cannon fire to the 28,000 inhabitants of the city. At 2 o'clock this afternoon, KSD will broadcast a program celebrating the eighty-fifth anniversary of that event. The program will be carried at the same time by WMAQ, Chicago; WDAF, Kansas City; WOW, Omaha, and WWJ, Detroit. It will be repeated at 4:30 over KSTP, St. Paul, Minn.; WEBC, Duluth, Minn.; WIBA, Madison, Wis., and WTMJ, Milwaukee.

KSD SISTER TRIO

MORIN SISTERS,

SINGING trio featured in KSD's Sunset Dreams broadcasts at 7:45 Sunday nights. Reading down, they are: Pauline, contralto; Evelyn, who sings the high parts, and Marge, pianist and "lead" singer.

COMING BACK

ED WYNN,

WHO is to resume broadcasting Thursday night on the CBS net and KMOX in a role based on Swift's "Gulliver's Travels."

Community Forum. On Air Six Years.

TODAY, at 3 o'clock, on KSD, the Community Forum will observe its sixth anniversary as a radio feature. Two of the speakers—Branch Rickey, president of the St. Louis Cardinals' baseball team, and Forrest C. Donnell, attorney—took part in the first Community Forum, on Feb. 9, 1930, when they conducted a Socratic dialogue on "Has Father Deserted the Home?" in which they discussed interference with normal home life due to demands on men for civic and other outside duties. This afternoon, they will comment on historical trends of the past six years. The Forum Instrumental Trio, consisting of Mario Silva, pianist; Louis Druzinsky, violinist, and Pasquale da Conto, 'cellist, will play "Solvejg's Song" from Grieg's second "Peer Gynt" suite; Mexicale Rose"; Brahms' "Wiegenlied" and "Why Dream," from "Big Broadcast."

Starting on another St. Louis station, which broadcast it for three years, the Community Forum, for the past three years has been a regular KSD Sunday program. Altogether, it has been broadcast continuously, without a break, 312 times. It has always been under the auspices of the Community Fund of St. Louis, and from the beginning J. Fullerton Place has been its master of ceremonies. It has been consistently based on the idea that it "provides a platform of the air where current discussions, interesting personalities and the better class of entertainment may be presented."

The Forum is dedicated primarily to discussion of social questions and the work of the welfare agencies of the city. It helps to promote campaigns of a charitable nature, and to publicize the more important civic undertakings. Officers of the city, State and Federal governments use it for announcements of importance.

During its six years, more than 700 speakers have spoken in Community Forum broadcasts, among them nearly all of the civic, professional and business leaders of St. Louis. Speakers from outside St. Louis have ranged from Oxford debaters and members of Admiral Byrd's Antarctic expeditions to foreign consuls, stars of stage and screen, noted singers to national sports champions and aviation record holders. Noted singers and musicians of the city have taken

Jack Benny With Fred Allen Wednesday on KSD.

JACK BENNY, the comedian, will be Fred Allen's Town Hall Tonight guest Wednesday night on KSD. An exchange of witty thrusts, similar to that when Allen and Portland Hoffa, his wife, took part in one of Benny's programs last summer, may be expected.

Charles Laughton, the movie actor, has promised to recite Lincoln's Gettysburg Address in a broadcast from England Wednesday afternoon just as he did in the motion picture, "Ruggles of Red Gap." The program will come from the movie sound stage at Elstree, England, at 5:15 o'clock on the WJZ net.

Ray Noble, Richard Himber and Guy Lombardo's orchestras, the Yale Glee Club and a movie scene starring Joan Bennett, are billed for the program at 1 o'clock this afternoon on KWK.

Mary Pickford Back in Radio Tuesday Night.

MARY PICKFORD'S new "Parties at Pickfair" program series is scheduled to open Tuesday night at 9 o'clock on the CBS network and KMOX. Plans are for Miss Pickford to act as hostess for informal gatherings in the living room of her home, Pickfair, at Hollywood, having as "guests" Hollywood's most noted actors, with Al Lyons' orchestra furnishing the music. Her home has been wired completely for broadcasting, but so that the appearance of the living room has not been changed.

Ray Perkins' Sunday afternoon amateur program, now carried by the CBS net and KMOX, is to be shifted Feb. 23 to the Mutual chain, including WLW, WGN and WOR, at the same time on the same day. Perkins will continue as master of ceremonies with the same orchestra, that of Arnold Johnson.

A full hour from 9 to 10 o'clock Wednesday nights on the WEAF network has been engaged for a new series planned to start March 11. It will follow Fred Allen's Town Hall Tonight, also an hour-long program.

April is expected to see the most elaborate daytime series thus far broadcast—an hour-long program on the CBS network at the same time five mornings a week, probably starting at 9:15 o'clock. Whether the program will be broadcast as a whole, or will be divided into four 15-minute consecutive periods, has not been decided. Involved in the plans is the fate of the Betty Crocker, Jack Armstrong and Betty and Bob programs. Whether they will be made part of the hour, or will be continued as now, is still a question. KMOX probably will carry the programs.

Morton Downey Billed to Replace Odette Myrtil.

MORTON DOWNEY, the tenor, who is singing in St. Louis this week, is to replace Odette Myrtil and Milton Watson on the program also featuring Mark Warnow's orchestra and the Pickens Sisters trio Monday nights on the WJZ net and KWK. The change will go into effect the night of Feb. 17. Downey has been singing with Lud Gluskin's orchestra Tuesday evenings.

Leslie Howard will play the role of "Mr. Wrigley" in his own comedy, "Murray Hill," at 1 p. m. today on KMOX. Howard wrote the play in 1927 and it was produced that year by the Shuberts in the Bijou Theater, New York. It has been performed in "Little theaters" and by stock companies under the title, "Elizabeth Sleeps Out."

As was told last Sunday, the Sherlock Holmes playlets are being broadcast at 9:30 Saturday nights by WLW, WGN and WOR, with Richard Gordon back in the title role and Harold West playing "Dr. Watson."

Capt. Tim Healey, whose adventure stories at 6:15 p. m. Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays, on the WJZ net, have been of the one-man variety, has changed the style of his programs. Now he is dramatizing his stories with the aid of a cast of well known NBC actors.

George Burns and Gracie Allen were obscure vaudeville performers until they chanced to meet backstage in a small theater at Union Hill, N. J., in 1926, and formed a partnership. Burns was appearing in a song and dance act with "Billy" Lorraine. Gracie was playing in Larry Reilly's Irish repertoire company. In partnership, they rocketed to fame in vaudeville and then in radio.

The Voice of Experience's broadcasting contract has been extended for two years. Frequently radio entertainers are given contracts for two, three or more years, but, ordinarily, a clause in the contract provides that it may be cancelled by either party at the end of any 13-week period. The Voice's contract stipulates that it can be terminated only at the end of a year of broadcasting.

KSD is now broadcasting brief market reports at 12:10 noon and 2:20 p. m. five days a week—Monday through Friday—and on Saturday at 11:55 a. m. only. The Producers' livestock reports at 12:45 noon daily except Saturday and Sunday are to be discontinued after the one next Friday.

MARY PICKFORD,

WHOSE "Parties at Pickfair" series will begin at 9 o'clock next Tuesday night.

Ed Wynn Returns Thursday Night in New Comedy Role.

ED WYNN'S return to the air will be in a wholly new comedy role, it is announced. He will play "Gulliver the Traveler," patterning the character after the central figure of Dean Swift's "Gulliver's Travels," a classic for 200 years. "The role will give Wynn opportunities to relate strange and amusing experiences in unusual situations and places," the announcement says. Wynn is helping in the designing of fantastic costumes, which he will change frequently during the broadcasts, which will come from the CBS network Playhouse in New York. Lennie Hayton's orchestra, a male quartet—probably the King's Men—and a women's chorus have been engaged to support Wynn. The 8:30-9 o'clock period Thursday nights on the CBS net has been cleared for Wynn, and he will start this week. Wynn gave an option on his services to his proposed sponsor for $2000, the money to be deducted from his first week's salary, which is reported to have been fixed at $5500 a broadcast. KMOX will carry his program.

General Motors Spring Showing Open All Week

Exhibit in Auditorium of Autos, Trucks, Household Appliances — Morton Downey and Benay Venuta, Radio Stars, Entertain Twice Each Evening.

The General Motors spring showing, which was opened officially in the Municipal Auditorium yesterday by Mayor Bernard F. Dickmann, will be open from 11 o'clock this morning until 11 o'clock tonight and the same hours every day through next Saturday. Admission is free.

The Auditorium has been made especially attractive by the background decorations sent here especially for this showing. All decorative coloring is in blue—in three shades. Surrounding the hall are sateen panels, 10 feet high, broken at intervals by light panels and ruscus trees.

The animated center piece, a particular attraction yesterday to adults and a magnet for children, consists of an oblong platform, surrounded by rail guards 12 by 20 feet. On it, a miniature automobile factory has been built, seemingly in operation, as smoke issues constantly from the chimneys. Two sets of miniature trains whirl around this platform, bringing raw material into the factory and taking away finished cars. The factory is lighted from within in the evening and a synchronized flashing of lights against black cut-outs of workmen gives the illusion of these men actually working — as seen through factory windows.

The Exhibits of Cars.

A large map hangs above this center piece showing the products —from each of the states in the country—which go into the fabrication of a motor car. A red light gleams through the state where the showing is being held. From the ceiling hangs a huge center banner with the inscription "building prosperity with greater values."

The motor cars shown, covering all price brackets and embodying various developments to give the 1936 car owner more comfort, speed, safety and economy, emphasize the wide variety of cars produced by General Motors.

A step or two takes one from one exhibit to another where the cars in the different price brackets may be compared in spacious, comfortable surroundings. Of special interest are the turret top, no-draft ventilation and fresh new styling of the Fisher bodies, and the knee-action wheels, hydraulic brakes and other mechanical features.

The showing is not, however, confined to automobiles. General Motors activities in developing refrigeration and air-conditioning products are on display, as well as such other household products as radio, fans, irons, lighting and pump machinery and the automotive products and accessories distributed by United Motors.

GM trucks are also being shown and there is a special exhibit by General Motors Acceptance Corporation and Fisher Body.

The cars shown include representative models of Chevrolet, Pontiac, Oldsmobile, Buick, La Salle and Cadillac.

A stage show is presented twice each evening at 7:30 and 9:30, starring Morton Downey, the internationally known radio tenor, and Benay Venuta, also a radio star and featured in the Broadway success, "Anything Goes." They are supported by the Muny Opera girl chorus, the Twelve Girls About Town and the Three Queens.

Plymouth Designs Car for Those Who Must Use Wheelchairs

For the benefit of "shutins" who are permanently or temporarily confined to wheel chairs, engineers of the Plymouth division of Chrysler Corporation, working with designers for a Pasadena body-building firm, have developed a new Plymouth sedan equipped with a built-in invalid chair, which can be rolled into and out of the car without disturbing the chair's occupant.

The rigid construction of Plymouth's safety steel ody made it possible for engineers to design the special sedan without a center door post on the right side. This provides the extra width necessary to permit the special invalid chair to be moved into the car on a pair of grooved rails attached to the car door sill. Four small auxiliary wheels, which fit into the grooved rails, are lowered by a lever in the chair's back.

Once the chair has been rolled into position beside the driver's seat, it is clamped securely into position. When out of the car, it can be rolled easily from place to place on a conventional set of pneumatic tired wheels.

At the same time, a 1935 Pontiac eight sedan, driven by Pat Wheeland, placed third in the 4-A group, with 22 miles per gallon.

Covering the distance of 352 miles from Los Angeles to Yosemite, the Pontiac Six used 14.7 gallons of gas and the eight consumed 16.0 gallons for the trip.

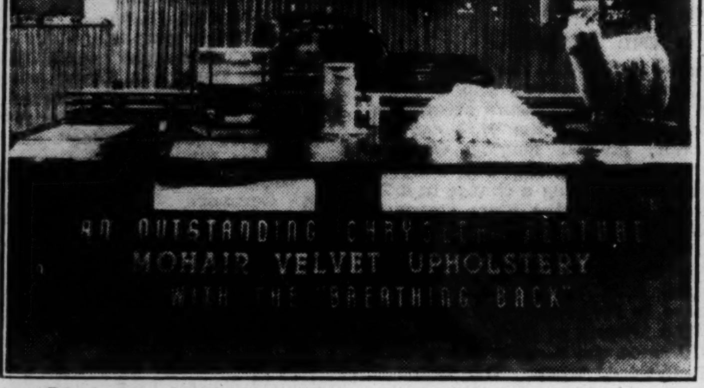
This Mohair "Breathes"



Display by L. M. Stewart, Inc., 3228 Locust boulevard, of the process of manufacturing mohair velvet fabric used in Chrysler and Plymouth cars. The "breathing back" mohair upholstery has a shorter pile, or nap, than that formerly used, and the new process of weaving makes the cloth much more durable. A feature of this mohair is its porous back, which permits the elimination of dead air in the cushions when they are depressed, thereby providing coolness in hot weather. The fiber used in the manufacture of mohair comes from the hair of the Angora goat. Eighty-five years ago there were only nine Angora goats in the United States, but today, because of the demand for chair fabrics, there are more than 4,000,000, 70 per cent of them in Texas.

Rural Free Delivery Cars Yearly Travel 406 588,800 Miles

Automobiles used on rural free delivery postal routes travel approximately 406,588,800 miles a year, according to W. R. Tracy, vice-president in charge of sales for the Hudson Motor Car Co., Detroit, reporting an increasing demand for Terraplanes for this service. New 1936 Terraplanes are now being used on rural routes in 21 states.

"Cars on rural mail routes," said Tracy, "meet the most exacting conditions to which a car can be subjected. They must cover their routes every day in the week regardless of weather. They must pull out to the side of the road at mail boxes where sometimes the mud or snow is hub deep. They must travel side roads that many times keep even the farmers' cars weather bound.

"The average rural free delivery carrier covers approximately 12,000 miles a year on his route and, of course, drives the car for his own private use when off duty. With all this, his car must be in the best of condition at all times. There can be no failure, for the mail must go through.

"Reports from dealers cite many comments from rural carriers on the utility of the Terraplane for mail carrying. Using the 'Electric Hand,' the front compartment is left entirely unobstructed and may be used for parcels so that they can be reached easily."

There are now 1,355,296 miles of rural routes in the United States, covering 45 per cent of the nation's total highway mileage, according to figures of the Postoffice Department. These 1,355,296 miles are covered by 34,858 cars, which average 38 miles daily.

Declares Winter Proves Benefits Of "Knee Action"

"Thousands of motorists this winter have discovered the full benefits of the knee action ride for the first time," Ralston, Oldsmobile vice-president and general sales manager, declares.

"These drivers are those who rarely if ever drive off pavement. Their driving is limited to city street or smooth paved highway.

"But the cold winter, which has seen ruts and bumps of ice and snow formed on all heavily traveled roads, has demonstrated the advantages of knee action wheels, which move up and down independently of each other and soak up shocks through big coil springs.

"Knee action definitely gives an improved ride on even the smoothest streets. This has been proved to motorists all over the world.

"But the rougher the road the more noticeable this improvement is."

Warns Never to Run Car Engine in Garage With Doors Closed

With the season of carbon-monoxide deaths here again, motorists are warned by Dr. D. P. Barnard, assistant director of research for the Standard Oil Co. of Indiana not to run their automobiles behind closed garage doors.

Warming the average engine in a single car garage, with doors and windows closed, will produce a concentration of carbon monoxide enough to cause certain death within two or three minutes at the most, he declared.

"Carbon monoxide is an odorless, non-irritating gas, which is formed wherever any carbon-containing material is burned without sufficient air being present for complete exhaustion," the expert says. "It has about 250 times as much affinity for the red corpuscles of the blood as oxygen, with the result that it quickly saturates the blood. Extensive insufficiency of oxygen permanently injures the brain and other organs.

"The presence in the air of only one part carbon monoxide in 500 causes collapse within 30 minutes to an hour, and one part in 200 brings collapse in two minutes, almost immediately followed by death.

"Despite adjustment of gasoline volatility to seasonal requirements and higher anti-knock ratings in fuels to reduce carbon monoxide, the hazard of poisoning is still grave.

"The only safe rule in operating an internal combustion engine is never to run it in an enclosed space, unless the exhaust is conveyed outside through a leakproof line and the ventilation is perfect.

"Applied to the automobile, this means, 'never run the engine of a car in a garage with the doors shut.'"

Chrysler Develops Special Steel for Its Automobile Springs

Riding ease of Chrysler cars has been brought to a new stage of development in the 1936 models. A factor in this improved riding is a spring leaf design made possible by a new steel named by Chrysler "Amola."

This steel is the result of months of research and experimenting by Chrysler engineers with metallurgists of the leading steel companies.

The problem was to get steel of very high elastic limit, to combat the settling or loss of arc of a spring through long use. A spring that loses its arc naturally loses its elasticity and springiness, with the result that the quality of ride deteriorates in direct ratio to spring deterioration. Carried to extreme, this results eventually in a hard and bumpy ride.

"Amola" steel has an elastic limit considerably higher than the steel previously used in Chrysler springs, which already had a high elastic limit. The new steel, as used in the Chrysler tapered leaf springs, can be subjected to a pressure of many tons per square inch without the springs losing their arc or their springiness, or settling or breaking.

As a result, Chrysler spring leaves are made thinner than has been the conventional practice, and the ends of the spring leaves are tapered in thickness. The thinner and more flexible ends distribute the lead-to-leaf load over a far larger bearing surface than where thicker, stiffer and untapered leaves are used. In the latter case, the contact area generally is small.

Western Auto Supply Acquires Warehouse on Market Street

Building With 50,000 Square Feet of Space to Facilitate Expansion by Company.

The Western Auto Supply Co. has closed a long-term lease of the modern, fireproof warehouse at 3830 Market street which contains approximately 50,000 square feet of floor space. Extensive alterations have been made, and the warehouse is now occupied by the company.

H. E. Clark, district manager, says that the building was especially well adapted for his concern's operations as it is of unusually strong construction, has two freight elevators and docks and trackage to unload three freight cars at one time.

The warehouse lease was executed, he said, because of the rapid growth of the company's "Associated Stores," a department added early in 1935 to its already extensive chain operations. The "Associate Stores" are in the smaller towns and cities, and are owned by their operators, who are given franchises to use the Western Auto Supply Co. name and an exclusive privilege to sell its brands of merchandise. There are 70 of these "Associate Stores," mostly in Missouri, Kansas and Oklahoma. Clark said that the new warehouse facilities were expected to result in an increase to 50 or more the "Associate Stores" in the St. Louis territory.

The Western Auto Supply Co., which owns and operates 174 Western Auto Stores of its own, in addition to the "Associate Stores," in 28 states and 103 cities, is said to be the oldest and largest distributer of automotive accessories and kindred products in the world. It started in Kansas City 27 years ago in a small store. Today, its stores dot the country from Boston to El Paso and from Duluth, Minn., to Miami, Fla. The concern's total sales volume in 1935 was reported as nearly $20,000,000.

The first Western Auto Store was opened in St. Louis at 811 Washington avenue in July, 1926. There are now six stores in the St. Louis area, including one in Maplewood and another in East St. Louis.

Western Auto Supply Acquires Warehouse on Market Street

Building With 50,000 Square Feet of Space to Facilitate Expansion by Company.

The Western Auto Supply Co. has losed a long-term lease of the mod-rn, fireproof warehouse at 3830 Market street which contains approximately 50,000 square feet of loor space. Extensive alterations have been made, and the warehouse s now occupied by the company.

H. E. Clark, district manager, ays that the building was especial-y well adapted for his concern's operations as it is of unusually trong construction, has two freight levators and docks and trackage o unload three freight cars at one ime.

The warehouse lease was xecuted, he said, because of the apid growth of the company's "Asociated Stores," a department add-d early in 1935 to its already ex-ensive chain operations. The "Asociate Stores" are in the smaller owns and cities, and are owned by heir operators, who are given fran-hises to use the Western Auto Sup-ly Co. name and an exclusive priv-lege to sell its brands of merchan-ise. There are 70 of these "Asociate Stores," mostly in Missouri, Kansas and Oklahoma. Clark said hat the new warehouse facilities were expected to result in an in-rease to 50 or more the "Associate tores" in the St. Louis territory.

The Western Auto Supply Co., which owns and operates 174 West-rn Auto Stores of its own, in ad-ition to the "Associate Stores," in 8 states and 103 cities, is said to e the oldest and largest distributer f automotive accessories and kind-ed products in the world. It start-d in Kansas City 27 years ago in small store. Today, its stores dot he country from Boston to El Paso nd from Duluth, Minn., to Miami, la. The concern's total sales vol-me in 1935 was reported as nearly 20,000,000.

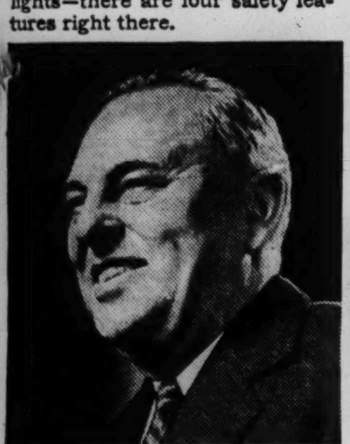
"'Just What the Doctor Ordered'— FOR MY FAMILY"
Says Thomas D. Woolhouse, Cranford, N. J.

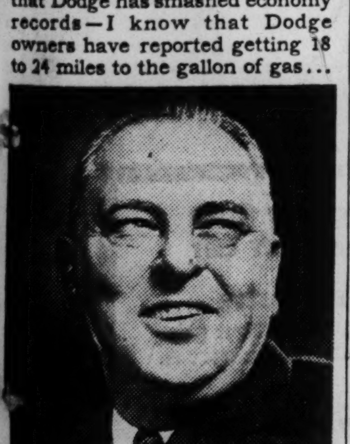
The popular phrase "Just what the doctor ordered" fits my big, new Dodge to a "T"—so far as my family is concerned.

My wife demanded safety, and I don't know where I could find a car with more safety provisions. The frame of that Dodge is twice as rigid . . . and, with its safety-steel body, genuine hydraulic brakes, and safety-beam headlights—there are four safety features right there.



My son was impressed by the quick responsiveness of the new Dodge—its get-away and pick-up—and its ease of handling; and my daughter insisted that we have a good looking car and she's pretty proud of driving the new Dodge "Beauty Winner."

I have to foot the bills, of course, and while all these things sold me on Dodge, I didn't overlook that Dodge has smashed economy records—I know that Dodge owners have reported getting 18 to 24 miles to the gallon of gas . . .



. . . and saving up to 20% on oil. I have averaged over 19 miles to the gallon. I think it's the perfect family car and we had no trouble in our family getting a unanimous decision on Dodge.

Chevrolet Extends Million-Dollar Used Car Plan for Month

The success of Chevrolet's million-dollar used car disposal plan as an aid to dealers, and the widespread public endorsement of it as a contributor to traffic safety, have led to its extension through February, W. E. Holler, vice-president and general sales manager of the Chevrolet Motor Co., states. The plan originally was announced for January only.

Under its provisions, Chevrolet is paying its dealers for every unsafe old car taken in trade and scrapped. Besides helping to clear the streets and highways of the traffic hazard which such vehicles represent, the program is making for a more wholesome car merchandising situation, Holler asserted. This is being reflected in Chevrolet's sales records.

Commenting on a picture showing L. C. Sumpter, local Chevrolet district manager, junking three old cars that were a traffic hazard, C. E. O'Meara, Chevrolet zone manager, said yesterday that scenes like it were going on all over the country. They are only a part of the Chevrolet old-car junking program.

"At least 25,000 cars whose further operation would be a menace to their owners and the public at large will be retired permanently this month, and the probabilities are that the figure will run even higher, for dealers are co-operating with a will," O'Meara said.

"Here in St. Louis, Chevrolet dealers have been especially active. The removal of 1000 dangerously old vehicles from the streets in a city of this size should definitely reduce the hazard from traffic mishaps. For next to the driver himself, the condition of the vehicle is the most important factor in traffic safety."

O'Meara explained that the actual junking was supervised by the Chevrolet district manager who certified that the car was destroyed in accordance with the terms of the agreement. His report to Chevrolet is the basis of remuneration to the dealer.

Cadillac's Certified Craftsman's League Beginning Second Year

The Cadillac Certified Craftsman's League is going into its second year. Its first anniversary will be marked by presentation of diplomas to more than 2000 Cadillac-La Salle service specialists, "the class of '35," who recently completed a 12-month course of service study.

The League was founded by Nicholas Dreystadt, general manager of the Cadillac Motor Car Co., a recognized authority on service as well as manufacturing.

"At the Cadillac-La Salle factory we train the men who build our cars to do things the Cadillac way," says Dreystadt. "After those cars reach the hands of owners, it becomes equally important that they be serviced the Cadillac way.

"The League was organized, of course, to assure a uniformly high grade of service work on all Cadillac and La Salle cars. It has proved an unqualified success and will be continued as a permanent activity."

Each month examination papers are sent by W. A. Houser, general parts and service manager, to all service men who have applied for membership. Each paper presents 25 technical service problems. Solutions of the problems are obtainable from various sources; from the Cadillac-La Salle technical manuals, from the technical publication issued monthy by the parts and service department at the factory, or from special service bulletins.

The papers are graded at the factory by service experts. The minimum passing grade is 85 per cent. Service men who maintain that grade for six consecutive months are given gold pins. This pin, however, does not confer membership in the League. It merely marks the half-way milestone in the service man's progress toward membership and may be recalled if he fails in any subsequent examination. Full membership is gained only after the applicant has submitted 12 examination papers of passing grade. Many of the men who are to receive the 1935 diplomas, have received grades of 95 per cent or higher.

Roy Cole Becomes Chief Engineer for Studebaker Factory

D. G. (Barney) Roos, vice-president in charge of engineering of the Studebaker Corporation, announces the appointment of Roy Cole as chief engineer in direct charge of all engineering.

Cole has been connected with the automotive industry for many years in posts of importance. His most recent connection, before going to Studebaker, was as chief engineer for Dodge.

W. S. James continues as Studebaker's chief research engineer; J. R. Hughes as chief body engineer; O. C. Kreis as consulting engineer in charge of experimental production.

High Wheels Are Optional on Dodge's 1936 Commercial Cars

Special wheels 20 inches high, necessary in mountain and rural districts where muddy and rutted roads require greater axle clearance, are offered as optional equipment on the new 1936 Dodge half ton commercial cars.

The commercial car on which these high wheels may be used has a special gear ratio of 4.8 to 1 to offset the larger circumference of the tires that are 5.25 by 20 inches.

Pedestrians Carry Lights.

Pedestrians in Normandy, France, must carry lights at night. The County Council has ordered that anyone walking along an unlighted highway must carry a lantern, so that he will not be run down.

Standardized Traffic Rules for Walkers as Well as Drivers Urged

Gov. Hoffman of New Jersey Would Teach Pedestrians to "Think on Their Feet."

Peace in the Civil War constantly being waged between autoists and pedestrians is being advocated by Gov. Harold G. Hoffman of New Jersey, formerly Motor Vehicle Commissioner, as a means of reducing the "ghastly toll of motor accidents."

Standardization of traffic laws governing motor vehicles and pedestrians alike is sorely needed as the first step towards obtaining this peace, Gov. Hoffman states in an article he has written for The American Magazine. But, he adds, regulation must be "psychological as well as physical." People must be taught good manners; they must learn to think on their feet. The New Jersey Governor even seriously advocates "sleeve lights" for those who walk at night.

"Current warfare between those in cars and those on foot is responsible for 67 per cent of the 96,000 city traffic accidents in the United States in the last three years and for millions of broken collarbones, fractured ribs, gashed faces and all the rest of the bloody inventory of the traffic accidents," Gov. Hoffman writes.

Nation-wide standardization of traffic laws for walkers and riders might readily be brought about by acceptance of the Model Code recently proposed by the National Conference on Street and Highway Safety, he declares. This code aims to simplify and bring order out of the confusion of a thousand and one conflicting traffic regulations in the various communities. Walkers and riders have equal rights under the code, but such rights must be exercised with care.

"But we need 'consumer acceptance' of pedestrian regulation," he adds. "We've got to sell the idea to the community on the basis that everybody benefits by it. In other words, we are faced with a sales and advertising problem."

Automatic 'Cruising Gear' Now Available on LaFayette De Luxe

The automatic cruising gear is now available on de luxe LaFayette models of the Nash line. Hitherto the gear has been available only on the "400" and Ambassador series.

Thus LaFayette is the first in the lowest-priced car class to adopt this innovation, which is designed for gas, oil and engine economy.

"Gasoline mileage is increased up to 25 per cent through use of this gear," C. H. Bliss, vice-president and director of sales of Nash Motors Co., said, "and oil economy may be as much as 50 per cent. Wear on the engine is reduced about one-third, thus prolonging the life of the motor in proportion. The efficiency of the gear has been proved on more expensive cars and is now available to the great volume of motorists on the low-priced de luxe LaFayette.

The automatic cruising gear is in principle a fourth speed forward, except that it shifts by itself when the car speed exceeds 45 miles an hour. At this point the gear engages and the motor slows down about one-third, but the car speed is maintained as it was.

As a result, the car can travel at 60 miles an hour with the motor turning over at a speed which, in conventional gear, would mean 42 miles an hour. The fuel saving is obvious, as is also that of lubrication and motor wear.

Total of 17 Billion Gallons of Gasoline Sold in U. S. in 1935

Total gasoline sales for 1935 are estimated at 17,000,000,000 gallons, a 6 per cent increase. Of this amount, 12,000,000,000 gallons were leaded. Approximately 72 per cent of all gasoline now being marketed contains lead. In 1933, the leaded total was 4,297,000,000 gallons. In 1934 it was 10,698,000,000 gallons. In slightly more than two years, from June, 1933, to October, 1935, the consumption of leaded gasoline rose from 19.64 per cent to 68.9 per cent.

Premium gasoline gained 11 per cent in national sales in 1935.

St. Leger toured the world twice with the Cherniavski Trio and with Melba, whose accompanist he was for four years. Four Famous Scientists Speak On Air Tuesday Night.

SEVERAL world-famous scientists—among them Albert Einstein, Dr. Robert T. Millikan, Sir William Bragg and Guglielmo Marconi—will speak during a broadcast at 9 p. m. Tuesday on the WJZ net. His KMOX program, at 8:15 a. m. weekdays, is called "Try to Stump Me." He relies on a musical library said to contain 20,000 songs in challenging listeners to ask for a song that he cannot sing.

Presentation to Senator Gerald P. Nye of North Dakota, who heads the Senate's munitions investigation, of the Cardinal Newman Award will be broadcast on the WEAF network next Sunday, at 4 p. m. The award is made annually to some American in recognition of his outstanding contribution to encouragement of human life in science, literature, art, humanitarianism or government.

Experimental radio programs for children are being prepared for the CBS network, and probably will be put on the air before long in the hope of devising broadcasts which will meet the general approval of parents and psychologists. Prof. Arthur Jersild, the phychologist of Columbia University, who was appointed consultant on CBS children's programs, is taking an active part in the preparation, as are the network's continuity censor and the director of the American School of the Air broadcasts. When the program goes on the air, it is probable that women's clubs, parents and teachers will be invited to listen and write in their comment.

Starting Feb. 22, KSD will carry the new WEAF network series starring Ethel Shuta, singer; George Olsen's orchestra and "guest" performers scheduled for 9:30 Saturday nights. Their program title will be "Celebrity Night."

Another of the Republican party's political playlets will be broadcast by WGN at 8:30 Tuesday night. Ralph Kirberry, "The Dream Singer," is featured by WGN at 11:15 Tuesday mornings. Nine of the regular concerts by the Cincinnati Symphony Orchestra, Eugene Goosens conducting, will be broadcast by the Mutual network at 7:30 p. m. Saturdays. The first was scheduled last night and another is listed for Feb. 15. WLW is not carrying them, but listeners might try for them on WGN (720) and WOR (710).

Toscanini will conduct next Sundays' New York Philharmonic concert, for which he has programmed Brahms' Second Symphony, three movements from Goldmark's "Rustic Wedding" symphony and Moussorgsky's vivid "Pictures at an Exhibition" as transcribed by Ravel. Gladys Swarthout will be the soloist with Victor Kolar's orchestra, featuring the great mezzo ario from "Samson and Delilah." The 9 o'clock concert next Sunday night will bring as soloist Suzanne Fischer, the young American soprano who made her Metropolitan Opera debut recently after a career at the Statsopera in Berlin and the Opera Comique in Paris.

The Radio Personalities programs at 1:30 p. m. have been discontinued. Their place on KSD is taken by network and other musical broadcasts.

A general discussion of the Olympic Games by Ted Husing, stars of the winter and summer contests and sports writers is scheduled at 7:30 p. m. today on the CBS net.

"Broadcasting and the Public" is the title of a public forum scheduled on the CBS net at 9:45 p. m. several days a week. Invitations have been sent to James A. Farley and Henry P. Fletcher, chairmen of the Democratic and Republican national committees, respectively, to speak Thursday and Friday. George H. Payne, member of the Federal Communications Commission, will be the speaker Saturday. The forum was planned to be a feature of Boake Carter's nightly broadcasts, but was made a separate feature because of the network's policy against selling time for political discussions. Carter, however, will interview the speakers.

The Famous Jury Trials two-part broadcasts on WLW are still scheduled at 9 p. m. Sundays and Mondays. A new program of restful music, called Sunday at Home, will be carried by WLW at 3:45 p. m. today.

GARMISCH-PARTENKIRCHEN, Germany, Feb. 8.—The United States suffered two major reverses in the fourth winter Olympics today as the hockey team, strongly favored to reach the final, bowed to Italy in a stunning upset, and Donna Fox, pilot of the leading four-man bobsledding team, narrowly escaped serious injury in a spectacular crackup on the Olympic chute.

These developments overshadowed such other competitive results as Canada's third successive victory in defense of its hockey crown and the smashing triumph of Germany's Christel Cranz in the Slalom and the combined downhill-Slalom skiing championships for women.

Americans Lose Bruising Game.

America's hockey defeat, a shock to the experts, came in a wildly exciting, bruising game that went to two extra 10-minute periods before Giovanni Scotti scored the goal that gave the Italians a 2-1 victory.

For the first time, the Americans found their unpopular but highly effective heavy body-checking matched by the opposition and as a result tempers were on hair triggers throughout the game. Ill feeling cropped out early and stayed late while partisans in the crowd, biggest that has yet turned out for the hockey, alternately jeered and cheered.

The defeat, first for the United States in three matches, left in doubt the final standing for the first round robin series.

The deciding goal came two minutes before the end of the second 10-minute extra period after both teams had counted within three minutes of each other in the third session. Mario Zucchini, Italian spare, tore down the ice and drove the puck at Tom Moone, American goal tender, from close in. As the disk rebounded off the goalie's pads, Giovanni Scotti with a lightning-thrust shoved the puck into the net.

Signs as Card For 17th Time

JESSE HAINES.

HAINES, CAIN SEND IN SIGNED CONTRACTS TO ST. LOUIS CLUBS

By J. Roy Stockton.

Signed contracts of Jesse Joseph Haines, the grand old gentleman of the Cardinal pitching staff, and Merritt "Sugar" Cain, a member of Rogers Hornsby's hurling corps, were received at the Sportsman's Park baseball offices yesterday. Haines, the oldest member of Frankie Frisch's squad, in years and in service, will be starting his seventeenth year as a Cardinal, while it will be Cain's first full season as a Brownie.

Cain, who was obtained from the Athletics last summer, along with Ed Coleman, in a trade that sent George Blaeholder to Philadelphia, won only nine and lost 13 games during the campaign, but there were extenuating circumstances and Hornsby considers him a valuable member of his staff. It will be remembered that on Aug. 16 the right-hander struck out 13 Philadelphia batters at Sportsman's Park, the best strikeout performance of the season in the league.

Cain Has Will-to-Win Spirit.

"I like Cain's spirit," Hornsby said, after announcing the receipt of the signed contract. "He's a good man on the club. He wants to win, and he's as interested in the ball game when he's on the bench as he is when he's out there. Connie Mack told me when we made the trade that I was getting the best pitcher on his staff, but he and Cain had had some kind of a row and Connie had made up his mind to get rid of him.

"Cain occasionally gives the impression that he is nonchalanting—that he doesn't care whether he pitches or not, but he isn't that way at all. Last year there was illness in his family and instead of telling his friends about it, he just brood-

WASHINGTON U. LOSES, 42-30, TO WASHBURN IN VALLEY GAME

By James M. Gould

Of the Post-Dispatch Sports Staff.

TOPEKA, Kan., Feb. 8. — The Washington University basketball team here tonight ran into subzero weather and a very "hot" Washburn College combination. The result of the mixture of the temperatures was disastrous. While the mercury sank to nine below, the score of the Kansas Ichabods soared as the game went on, and at the conclusion thereof, Washburn was the winner b ya score of 42 to 30. It was the second Missouri Valley Conference defeat for the Bears in two nights, and in that company, Coach Hellmich's team now can show but tw ovictories as against four reverses.

Fee, with 13 and Capt. Bethel with 11 points, led in scoring for Washburn, whiles Hafeli was "tops" for the Bears with nine points. There were times when the Bears appeared to have a chance but the work of the Washburn forwards in the final half was responsible for the one-sided victory.

Bears Lose Lead.

Play in the first half was fast and furious, the Bears starting at a fast pace and assuming a 6-2 lead. But, after six minutes of play, Washburn got going and managed to tie it up. Washington, led by Hafeli, again took a nadvantage and ran it to 12-7 with eight minutes of play remaining. Then Coach Holm decided to send in Capt. Paul Bethel, a non-starter. The wisdom of this move soon was shown when the leader of the Ichabods, in the last five minutes, scored 11 points on five field goals and a free throw. He put Washburn ahead, 13-12, with two minutes to go.

There was plenty of roughness in the game and substitutions were frequent, no fewer than 17 players taking part in the first period, Washburn furnishing nine.

The defense of both teams was looser than usual, which accounts for the heavy barrage of goals in the opening half. Washburn specialized in long shots because of the alertness of the Bears under the enemy basket. All of Bethel's first-period goals were from far out.

Each of the teams missed five free throws in the first half, so failure to make them good had no effect on the score at the half.

Quick field goals by Sauer and Ozment opened the second period and gave the Bears a one-point lead, but Fee's set up and goals by Elliott and Raskam nullified that lead, and again the Bears trailed. The Ichabods began to click in earnest after Washington's opening goals and, after four minutes of second half play enjoyed a 29-19 lead.

Martintoni Is Missed.

The Bears were badly upset in team play by Martintoni's absence, but fought on gamely, getting few shots in the first six minutes of the half. Mier made good on one of these, as did Hafeli. With 12 minutes left, the Ichabods, by virtue of a rushing attack, led by 12 points and seemed able to score whenever they were in the mood. But the Bears rallied after Martintoni returned to the game and held the foe fairly well.

However, the long lead laid up by the Washburn rush was too long to overcome and, in the last few minutes of the half, the Ichabods ran pretty wild and thus gained revenge for the 36-29 defeat the Bears handed them in St. Louis.

Notes of the Game.

Immediately after the game the Bears left by bus for Ottawa, Kan., there to catch a train for Tulsa, Ok. Monday night they are scheduled in Stillwater, Ok., for a game with the Aggies, whose habitat

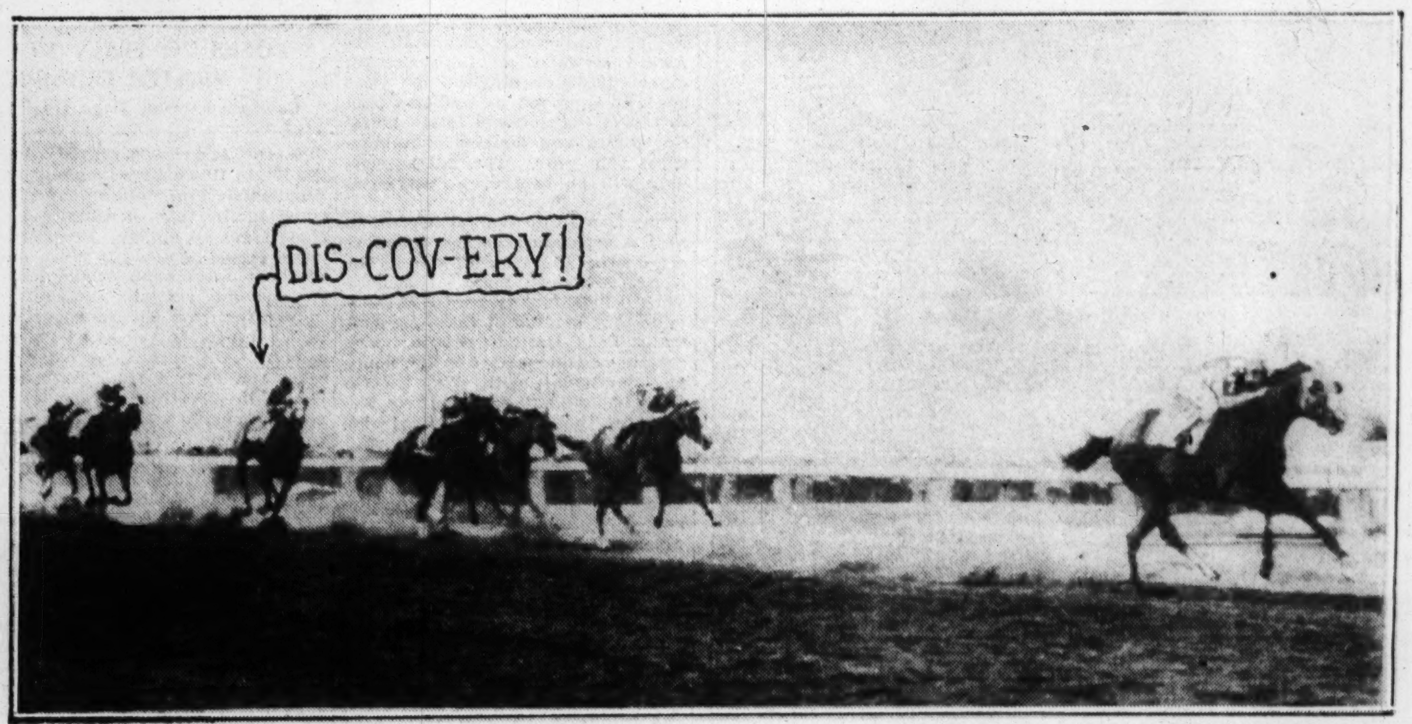
$146,799 Was Bet on This Race, and the Favorite Finished Fifth



—Associated Press Wirephoto.

Finish of the San Antonio Handicap at Santa Anita, California, yesterday, showing America's 1935 handicap champion, discovery, badly beaten as Time Supply wins, followed by Pompey's Pillar, Ariel Cross and Rosemont. The mutuel department handled $146,799 on the race which was witnessed by 45,000 persons. Discovery, at odds of 7 to 10, carried the bulk of the money, as well as 138 pounds of rider and equipment. He conceded 22 pounds to the winner.

HANDICAP CHAMPION NEVER CLOSE TO LEADERS

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 8.—Record-smashing Time Supply pounded the mighty Discovery and a fine field into crushing defeat today before 45,000 wildly shouting fans at Santa Anita.

Leaving Alfred G. Vanderbilt's 1935 handicap champion far behind in fifth place, Time Supply won the $7500 San Antonio Handicap and set a new track mark of 1 minute 49 2-5 seconds for the mile and one furlong.

Pompey's Pillar, W. R. Coe entry, finished second, six lengths back. H. C. Hatch's Ariel Cross was third and the Foxcatcher Farms Rosemont fourth.

Discovery, the heavy favorite, never was a contender.

Before the largest crowd in Santa Anita history, Time Supply, flashing the sky blue and gold silks of Mrs. F. A. Carreaud, jumped into an early lead. He gave way at the half-way point to Prince Abbott but rallied to thunder down the stretch an easy winner.

His time beat the record of 1 minute 49 3-5 seconds set by Riskulus in 1935.

Cavalcade Withdrawn.

Scotch Bun, stablemate of Discovery, was sixth, a length back; Azucar, Fred M. Alger Jr.'s 1935 Santa Anita Handicap winner, seventh; Prince Abbott, owned by J. B. Partridge, eighth, and Special Agent, of the Brookmeade Stable, ninth.

Cavalcade, pride of Mrs. Isobel Sloane's Brookmeade string and slated to resume a long standing feud with Discovery, was scratched. Trainer Bob Smith said the great chocolate charger had not recovered from a bruised hoof.

Mrs. Silas B. Mason's Head Play, another entry, likewise was withdrawn.

Time Supply's victory was worth $6000 in purse money to his owner. He paid $9 to win, $4 to place and $3.60 to show for a $2 ticket. Pompey's Pillar paid $19.20 and $7.60; Aerial Cross $4.

Wagering on the Handicap totaled $146,799, with most of the money slapped on Discovery to win. The Vanderbilt champion's defeat came just one week after a victory in the San Carlos Handicap.

"Upon inspection of Cavalcade this morning, in getting ready for this afternoon's race," Smith said, "we found he favored the foot which he injured slightly the other day when he threw a shoe, and we deemed it only fair to the public not to start him.

"It has always been the policy of Mrs. Isobel Sloane to have only a fit horse carry the colors of the Brookmeade stables to the post," Smith continued.

$831,322 Bet for the Day.

Speculation quickly arose whether the "Chocolate Soldier" might not also miss the big $100,000 added Santa Anita Handicap Feb. 22.

"If he does not train soundly he will not be started," Smith said.

Pompey's Pillar finished a length ahead of Ariel Cross. Rosemont and Discovery were far behind.

The fans wagered $831,322 on the card's eight races, the second largest amount handled at the track in its history.

INDIANA AND PURDUE VICTORS IN BIG TEN GAMES

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Feb. 8.—Indiana's smooth-passing basketball machine, with Ken Gunning and Vernon Huffman doing most of the shooting, rolled over Bill Haarlow and Chicago tonight, 42 to 24, for its seventh straight Big Ten victory.

Haarlow, pretty well stopped in four previous games, turned in a great lone-handed performance, but couldn't match the shooting of Gunning and Huffman. The tall Maroon leader connected for seven field goals and a free throw for a total of 15 points, boosting his collection for the season in conference competition to 97 points.

Gunning and Walker, working in for frequent short shots, scored 15 and 12 points, respectively.

8500 See Purdue Beat Iowa, 39-38.

By the Associated Press.

IOWA CITY, Ia., Feb. 8.—Purdue kept its Western Conference record clean here tonight, defeating Iowa, 39 to 38, before a crowd of 3500 persons.

The Boilermakers' victory was assured in the final 15 seconds as Paul Malaska, guard, dropped in a basket from far out on the court.

Wisconsin 38, Butler 28.

MADISON, Wis., Feb. 8.—Wisconsin overcame an early lead and checked a second-half rally to defeat Btuler 28 to 24 in a nip-and-tuck basketball game here tonight.

NEW YORK U. FIVE LOSES AGAIN, TEMPLE WINNING, 34 TO 31

Billikens Are Walloped By De Paul, 53 to 37; Dave Mattis Injured

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, Feb. 8.—It was a hard-playing St. Louis University basketball team that fought for 40 minutes here tonight to hold its own against a better balanced and better playing De Paul University five but the Billikens were outclassed in every respect. The final score was 53 to 37.

By losing to the Demons, the St. Louis quintet dropped its second contest in consecutive nights and also lost its second game to De Paul, which trounced the Billikens earlier this season in St. Louis.

Fouling Frequent.

The game was filled with fouls from the start. The playing was fast which may in a small way account for the large number of penalties called against the Billikens.

Dave Mattis was injured in the second half of the game and was forced to the bench. Red Henry Krause and Les Cagle were also forced to retire from the contest via the personal foul route.

It didn't take the local team long to prove its superiority over the Billikens. After some five minutes of fast and furnious floor work play, the Demons slowly drew away from the St. Louis five and soon ran up an 18-7 lead.

But the Blue Clad five was far from through. Led by Dave Mattis, who netted three field goals in rapid order, the Billikens soon made the tally board read 18-15, in De Paul's favor.

Krause and Cagle Ejected.

However the game began getting rougher and rougher and fouls were being called freely against the Billikens. "Red" Krause then was forced to the bench with four personal fouls against him. Later, Cagle followed him.

Before the half was over the De Paul team had tallied 12 points on fouls and was out in front, 29 to 18. In the second half it was the Billiken five that made good most of its four tries. Coach Mike Nyikos' team scored eight of its 19 points by this route.

The Mound City team tightened its defense and only trailed the Demons by four points in the second half.

Missouri U. Fans Cheer Referees as Tigers Lose, 43-33

By the Associated Press.

COLUMBIA, Mo., Feb. 8.

THE University of Missouri's "Booers" reversed themselves tonight and cheered the referees when they called fouls on Tiger cagemen tussling with Nebraska University.

The change in tactics came after Missouri's new deal athletic regime, perturbed by self-confessed notoriety as the best booing section in the Big Six Conference, made a plea for restraint of Bronx cheers at basketball games.

Before tonight's game started, Student President John Oliver led the spectators in a full-throated Missouri boo and then pleaded that further efforts be consigned to the waste basket. The Tigers lost, 43-33.

DI MAGGIO REFUSES YANKS' SECOND OFFER

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 8.—Joe Di Maggioo, former outfielder of the San Francisco Seals, returned a second contract today for his first season with the New York Yankees.

No Soccer Games In St. Louis Today

FOR the first time since the opening of the season here, early last October, no Sunday soccer games are scheduled for St. Louis this afternoon.

The Shamrocks were to have played the strong Chrysler Club of Detroit at Sportsman's Park but the playing field is better suited to ice hockey. Business Manager Phil Riley considered it dangerous to life and limb to attempt to play and called the match off.

All Municipal League group championships have been decided and the play-offs, junior and senior, will open next Sunday.

Los Angeles Asks for Franchise In National Pro Football League

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 8.—Applications for franchises in the National Professional Football League were received from Los Angeles and Buffalo at the opening session of the annual meeting of league officials today.

Harry Myers, representing the Los Angeles American Legion, made the bid for the coast team. He said games would be played in Gilmore Stadium, where the Legion successfully conducted a pro league last season. Green Bay and Detroit drew a crowd of 20,000 there recently, he said.

No definite action was taken on either application. The officials were reported to be divided over the Los Angeles proposal.

Approval and support was given to proposed games between an all-star Eastern college team and the league's Eastern champion at New York and an all-star college team against the league's Western champion at Chicago.

The rules did not come up for discussion today. No important changes are expected in this line tomorrow.

Neither did the officials get to a discussion of a proposal by Lud Wray and Bert Bell, officials of the Philadelphia Eagles, for a three-month trip with two playing squads, to start at the West Coast at the end of the playing season next fall for a series of games in Hawaii, Australia and a half dozen European countries.

Today's session was spent in hearing routine reports and arranging the 1936 season schedule. This was not completed when the meeting broke up.

WRAY'S COLVMN

"Meet Me in Berlin."

STELLA WALSH is in St. Louis, today, but not to avenge her defeat, suffered here on the occasion of a previous visit, when Helen Stephens dropped out of the clouds to conquer the world champion woman sprinter.

The Polish flyer is here as a member of a visiting basketball team. Efforts to induce her to remain over for the national women's track and field championships this week were without avail. Nor would she consent to a match race with Miss Stephens.

STELLA WALSH

"Miss Stephens will get her chance at Berlin," she was quoted as saying recently. "I am not training for any events before the Olympic games. Besides, I would not race in St. Louis under any circumstances."

Her explanation of that stand is that she was misrepresented when she failed to appear here for a meet in which (it had been announced) she would run against Helen Stephens. Efforts to have her suspended failed when Miss Walsh showed that she had told promoters that her studies would prevent her appearance here.

Look for Record at Berlin.

ST. LOUIS fans would like to see a re-match between the Missouri and the Polish sprinters, at two or three distances. Miss Walsh contends she will win at 100 meters, but Miss Stephens has surpassed the best time Miss Walsh has ever made at this distance. The Fulton girl is improving, while Miss Walsh has probably reached her peak.

Their meeting at Berlin will be

PUNCH MUST BE BOLSTERED IF TEAM HOPES TO REGAIN LEAD

PROBABLE LINEUPS

ST. LOUIS	Pos.	TULSA.
Murray	Goal	Ceryance
Carbol	L. D.	Radley
Matte	R. D.	Hughes
McPherson	C.	Desjardins
Paddon	L. W.	Powley
Walker	R. W.	Foxworthy

Spares: St. Louis—Swenson, MacKinnon, Purpur, Breckheimer, Burmister, Palangio, Teel, Oddson or Johnson; St. Paul—Halderson, Headley, Coleman, Chouinard, Maracle, Wakeford, Kucher and Bailey.

Bent on continuing their newly started winning habit, the Flyers tackle the Tulsa Oilers at the Arena tonight, the game being scheduled to start at 8:30 o'clock.

In the hope of getting more scoring punch into the team, Coach Alex McPherson has announced that he would use Harold Johnson, newly acquired forward. Johnson hurt his ankle in his first practice session with the team last Wednesday night and was unable to take part in the Flyers' 1-0 victory over St. Paul Thursday. Since then the injury has been reported healed and Johnson is slated to play tonight.

It is more scoring that the Flyers need, a peek at the most recent figures of the Association including games of last Thursday, discloses. For in 33 games they have scored 74 points as against 93 for St. Paul, playing two fewer games. St. Louis has yielded 58 goals to opponents which would indicate that defensively the clubs are equal. St. Paul has been scored against 60 times.

Oscar Hanson, St. Paul forward, has taken the individual scoring lead with 33 points, three more than Vic DesJardin, center of the Tulsa club while McPherson is tied with Bobby Burns of Oklahoma City for fourth place with 26 points. Pete Palangio is fifth with 24.

With only 15 more contests remaining on the regular schedule the Flyers will have to step to catch St. Paul, now four games ahead of St. Louis and having two more games than the Flyers to play. Also Oklahoma City is a distinct threat to St. Louis' hold on second place as the Warriors are only two games, or four points, behind.

The re-arranged forward lines of the Flyers performed well Thursday night; at least the team won, something it had been unable to do for six contests so McPherson plans to keep the formation of the lines with the exception of Johnson moving into the third line at right wing with Burmister at center and Breckehimer at left wing. That will send Bill Oddson to the bench.

Following tonight's contest, the Flyers were scheduled to play Wichita Tuesday but that game has been postponed because the Arena is unavailable for hockey that night. Saturday the Flyers play in Tulsa then return home to oppose Kansas City next Sunday night.

KANSAS CITY HOCKEY GAME IS POSTPONED TILL THIS AFTERNOON

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Feb. 8.—The Kansas City-Oklahoma City American Hockey Association match scheduled here tonight has been postponed until tomorrow afternoon because of unfavorable weather, Bill Grant, association president, said today.

GORDON TEEL.
whose goal gave the Flyers a victory over St. Paul Thursday night, the first the team had scored in six games, and checked their descent. Teel for three seasons teamed on a line with McPherson at center and Paddon at left wing, but he was dropped to another trio of forwards. The change apparently helped him. He has scored five goals and had four assists this season.

Woman Fan Finds Herself On Thin Ice When Talking Hockey; Gets Information

By W. J. McGoogan.

Among the hundred thousand people who have viewed the St. Louis Flyers in their American Hockey Association games this season are many new fans, judging from the letters of inquiry received at the club's office, as to the various hockey problems.

One of these from a feminine fan asks a number of questions and states that she has heard many people sitting about her at hockey games asking for the same information.

This letter was referred to Eddie Rodden, who refereed the game between the Flyers and St. Paul Thursday night and the Post-Dispatch, thinking the information might be of general interest, publishes herewith the questions and answers. Those concerning rules were answered by Rodden, others by persons involved.

QUESTION—Almquist, St. Paul goalie, is charged with two penalties. What does a goalie do to get a penalty? Does he serve it, or does someone else sit it out?

ANSWER—A goalie can commit a foul by tripping an opposing player, hitting with a stick, or fighting. He serves the penalty and another player on his team has to tend the net while he is absent. Or, a referee may fine a goalie instead of sending him to the penalty box.

Q.—Has Murray ever had a penalty? A.—Not this season.

When Checks Bounce Back.

Q.—What is the difference between a legal and an illegal check by defense men? A.—A defense man may body check an opponent with any part of his body from the hips down, except that he may not use his knee, or kick. He can't elbow or use a high stick, that is, carry his stick across his shoulders to stop an opponent, nor can he charge into him, that is, hit him with his shoulders as a football player tackles a runner.

The woman hockey fan states she observed an occasion where a Flyer checked an opponent and was sent to the penalty box, while a rival did the same thing to Purpur a few minutes later and there was no penalty. Rodden says that was probably due only to the interpretation of the rules by the referee on the plays in question; that he thought the Flyer defense man offended, while the other player did not.

Q.—Are fouls and offsides the same? I say they are different, but they could occur on the same play. Is that right?

A.—In a measure they are the same, because an offside play is an illegal play, but in hockey the only penalty is that play is stopped and the puck is faced off where the offside occurred, whereas when a foul, such as an illegal check, tripping, fighting, etc., is committed, the offending player is sent to the penalty box for two or five or 10 minutes or may be expelled for the rest of the game. An offside and a foul could occur on the same play because when an offside is called one player might start a fight with another while play is halted. That is just as much of a foul as if play were going on.

Poke Checking Is Defined.

Q.—What is poke checking?

A.—That means when a player is carrying the puck down the ice, an opponent tries to poke it away from him with his stick.

Q.—What is back checking?

A.—Back checking is the art of a forward in getting back to help his defense after his side has rushed the opponents and lost the puck. The moment he sees that his side's forward rush is stopped he is supposed to turn and get back quickly to aid the defense.

Q.—What do they do with tie games?

A.—In the American Association tie games count for nothing. They are not replayed. In some leagues each club figuring in a tie is credited with one point in the standing.

Q.—Suppose the Flyers should tie for a place at the end of the season, would they play off ties or play another game, and suppose the Flyers had no tie games with the team with which they finished even, what would they do then?

A.—If the Flyers should finish in a tie for the last playoff position, that is, third, the league probably would arrange a game or games to break the tie. If the Flyers tied for first or second place, of course, that would mean little as the three leading teams go into the playoff for the championship anyway.

Q. Why do the men carrying the puck go between the defense men? Do they have to, or are they just trying something?

A. They're just trying an old offensive maneuver in hockey. A forward tries to split the defense, and if he gets through he is able to pick up the puck and have a shot at the goal.

Not Picking on the Flyers.

Q. Why does the referee allow the visiting team to stand in a straight line across their goal when a face-off is made near the goal? He won't let the Flyers do that. Are the Flyers allowed to do that when they are the visiting team?

A. Rodden's answer is that members of each team have to be five feet behind the puck when it is dropped, all except the centers, of course. If you saw a referee permit a team to line up across its goal mouth it must have been legal whether the team was the Flyers or the visitors. A visiting team has no privileges that the home club does not have, or vice versa.

Q. How do they make ice? How is it kept that way? How do they get rid of it?

A. Ice is made by a mechanical process. There are miles of pipe under the terrazza floor of the Arena filled with cold brine which freezes water poured on top of the floor. It is kept frozen so long as desired by the brine in these pipes. When it is desired to get rid of the ice they flush the pipes with warm brine, chip the ice off the floor and sweep it into a large pit at the south end of the building.

Q. Is the blue line made of paint? How do they keep it from wandering about?

A. The blue line is made of paint. After the first flood of water is frozen, the blue lines are put down and more water frozen on top of them, which keep the lines stationary, except when the surface ice melts. When this happens, the lines become fuzzy.

Q. How does Matte pronounce his name?

A. He pronounces it like "mat," as a door mat. He says he is of German extraction and the real family name is Metz, which was changed to Matte some 50 or 60 years ago. Reasons unknown.

COLLEGIATE TENNIS AGAIN ON CLAY COURTS

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 8.—An attempt to return the intercollegiate championships to grass courts from clay was decisively beaten today by a two-to-one vote at the fifty-fifth annual meeting of the United States Lawn Tennis Association.

By a proxy vote of 30,125 to 16,325 the meeting awarded the tournament for the second year to Northwestern University, Evanston, Ill. Award of dates and sites for all other 1936 championships were speedily approved, as well as a plan to revive the national interscholastic singles and doubles championships this year. The latter probably will be held at Forest Hills, N. Y., next September.

The Davis Cup Committee, which held a separate meeting, failed to act on the allocation of ties in the North American zone. Holcombe Ward, chairman, said intense rivalry for the holding of the Cuba-Australia and United States-Mexico matches has developed in the South and Southwest, with New York, Philadelphia and Los Angeles bidding for the anticipated final between America and Australia.

The skirmish over the intercollegiate tournament was precipitated by Philadelphia delegates and supported by Julian S. Myrick, former president of the U. S. L. T. A. Prior to last year, the tournament had been played on the turf courts of the Merion Cricket Club here from 1900 to 1934.

Other tournament awards follow: Men's, women's and veterans', Sept. 3-12, West Side Club, Forest Hills, L. I.; National Doubles, Aug. 24-29, and Public Parks, Aug. 17-22, both Boston; Clay Courts, June 15-20, Chicago; 1937 Men's-Women's Indoor, March (dates undecided), New York.

Walter Merrill Hall, first elected in 1934, and all other 1935 officers were re-elected.

DATES CHANGED FOR FIGURE SKATES MEET

The three-day figure skating carnival of the St. Louis Skating Club, originally scheduled for March 18, 19 and 20, has been set back to March 25, 26 and 27 in order to avoid conflicts with carnivals in Boston and Buffalo, Erwin P. Hilts, club president, announced yesterday.

The new dates for the carnival, to be held at the Winter Garden, will make it possible for a number of Eastern and Canadian figure skaters to accept invitations to appear in St. Louis. The club will send out invitations after Olympic team skaters have returned from abroad.

U. S. HOCKEY TEAM LOSES TO ITALY IN WINTER OLYMPICS

utes, the Americans rushed down the ice in five-man waves but little Augusto Gerosa, Italian goalie, was equal to the task, brushing aside shots from all angles. In that one torrid period he made 14 saves, most of them spectacular, while Moone stopped only six long shots.

John Garrison put the Americans in front after nine and one-half minutes of the third period. He had been shifted from defense to center in an effort to develop a scoring punch and responded by taking the puck in a rebound off a defense in front of the Italian goal and slipping it into the net, past the prostrate goalie.

The Americans' cheers were short-lived. Mario Zucchini took the puck three minutes later and charged straight through the American defense to beat Moone in 12:30.

Bobsled Overturns on Last Curve.

Fox suffered minor injuries to his hand and knee and his three American teammates were badly shaken up when their sled overturned on the hazardous Olympic bob run during a practice spin. Fox, an undertaker in New York's Bronx, was taken to a hospital, but physicians said he would recover in time to participate in Olympic competition.

The accident, one of several that marked the reopening of the chute for practice, came on the final curve of the course. Fox lost control when the sled struck a soft spot and overturned.

Max Bly and James Bickford of Lake Placid, N. Y., and Richard W. Lawrence, the other members of the team, were thrown heavily onto the ice and hard-packed snow but escaped injury.

Lawrence said that a badly constructed approach to "seekurve" where the sled spilled was chiefly responsible. He said the ice squares built into the curve start too suddenly, making it difficult to control the sled at high speed. Later Olympic officials promised to re-construct the approach in accordance with American wishes.

A half dozen other spills marked the practice descents of both four-man and two-man teams. One member of the Rumanian team suffered several broken ribs in a bad smash-up on Bavaria curve, where most of the accidents have occurred.

Americans' Time Eclipsed.

The American four-man sled piloted by J. Hubert Stevens of Lake Placid, N. Y., was clocked in 1:30 and 1:24.32 in two trial runs while Fox's crew was caught in 1:27 in first trip down the chute. These times were eclipsed by at least a half dozen outfits from other countries.

America's two-man teams, officially named today, made good showings in trial runs in the afternoon. Alan Washbond and Ivan Brown of Keene Valley, N. Y., were timed in 1:30.64. Richard W. Lawrence of Branchville, N. J., and Gilbert Colgate Jr. of New York in 1:29.76.

Although Canada wound up its first round-robin hockey series with a perfect record, the Dominion stars ran into stubborn resistance from Austria and were hard-pressed to win by a 5-2 count. The Canadians scored four goals in the opening period but Austria never quit trying and had the satisfaction of scoring twice on the defending champions. Oskar Nowak tallied both goals.

Fraulein Cranz, youthful member of a prominent Freiburg skiing family, made a show of the field in winning the slalom and combined tests.

The German girl made the two descents of the tricky, zig-zag slalom course in total time of 2 minutes, 22.1 seconds to beat her nearest rival, Kathe Grasegger, also of Germany, by more than 11 seconds.

Germany, picking up 36 points in the slalom and combined events, took a wide lead in the race for the unofficial team championship with 58 points. Norway was second with 28.

N.A.A.U. BASKET TOURNEY ENTRIES CLOSE MARCH 11

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

DENVER, Colo., Feb. 8.—Plans for the National A. A. U. basketball tournament to be staged here the week of March 15, began taking shape today as entry blanks were mailed to potential participants.

Held out as an inducement to more capable teams is the fact that the winner and runnerup of the tournament will be invited to compete in the Olympic tournament in New York, where the team to represent the United States in the Olympic games in Germany will be selected.

As host last year, Denver staged one of the most successful A. A. U. basketball tournaments in history with 46 teams competing through a week of sensational play. A larger number of entrants is expected this year because of the Olympic angle.

The plan of selecting an official All-America team, inaugurated at the conclusion of last year's tourney will be carried out again, with individuals named to the honor each receiving a trophy emblematic of the choice.

Entries will be accepted until March 11.

CHICAGO, Feb. 8.—W. Lawson Little Jr., amateur golf chapion of both the United States and Great Britain, was married here tonight to Miss Dorothy Hurd.

The simple ceremony at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Robert Maxon, was attended by only a few close friends and relatives.

Johnny Goodman of Omaha, Neb., former National Open golf champion, served his golfing friend as best man.

Little won the British and United States amateur golf championships in 1934 and 1935 and was awarded the Sullivan Memorial Trophy last year as the outstanding amateur athlete in the nation.

Little is the son of Col. and Mrs. William Lawson Little of San Francisco.

Patty Berg Wins Miami Golf Title With 4-3 Victory Over Miss Miley, in Rain

By the Associated Press.

CORAL GABLES, Fla., Feb. 8.—The meteoric career of 17-year-old Patty Berg, Minneapolis' red-haired school girl, hit another high point this afternoon as she won the fourth annnal Miami Biltmore women's amateur golf tournament.

In a drizzling rain swirling along on cold, gusty winds, the plucky youngster, 1 down at the end of the morning's 18 holes, paraded through 15 holes of the afternoon round in one stroke under par to defeat Marion Miley of Lexington, Ky., 4 and 3, in the 36-hole final.

It was the second straight victory in Florida for the Minneapolis youngster, who took up golf five years ago and improved, so swiftly she reached the final of the 1935 national.

Afternoon Play Decides Match.

Last week at Punta Gorda, she defeated more experienced golf stars to reach the final, where she upset Mrs. Maureen Orcutt Crews of Miami, five-time Metropolitan champion.

Miss Berg's game was ragged during the morning round. Tee shots and woods found sand traps at three-fourths of the holes and one long putt after another hung at the lip of the cup. She took 87 strokes, five over par, for the round and found herself one down to the tall, brunette Miss Miley, whose medal figure was 87.

In the afternoon, however, Patty won the first in par to square matters, halved the next in bogey figures and bettered par by one stroke at the third to go 1 up. She was not headed thereafter, as pars and birdies that atoned for bogeys clicked monotonously from her clubs.

Even Par for Last Six Holes.

Her medal card for the out nine this afternoon was 39, against 44 this morning, while Miss Miley needed 45, one more than her 44 of the morning. Miss Berg was even par for the last six holes of the match, the Kentuckian slipping two over.

To the winner goes for one year the Grace L. Doherty Challenge Trophy, which already bears the names of Mrs. Opal S. Hill of Kansas City, the 1933 winner; Mrs. Crews, who triumphed in 1934 but yielded to Miss Miley in yesterday's semifinals, and Jean Bauer of Providence, R. I., last year's winner who fell by the wayside early in this tournament.

the outstanding feature of the women's Olympic games and a new low for the 100 meters probably will be recorded.

Building Up Braddock.

JIMMY BRADDOCK, world champion by virtue of Max Baer's collapse, is growing bigger and perhaps better in Florida, where he is building up for his expected fight with Joe Louis—or Max Schmeling—next September.

Jimmy, who was a light-heavyweight in his prime—and not a champion even at the 175-pound figure—now weighs over 200 and expects to weigh about 195 when he defends his title.

Jimmy will be in his thirty-second year then; and when athletes of that advanced athletic age take on weight it usually is for worse and not for better.

The build-up usually is accompanied by internal fat which hampers the vitality and slows up the speed. A Braddock weighing 180 pounds would be far more effective than one weighing 195 pounds. Fighting Louis is going to be something different from battling a slow, over-confident, one-handed fighter such as Baer turned out to be.

Braddock is reported to be training privately and boxing some. He would be far better off if he got into the ring and fought once a month from now to the time of his September appearance. That, of course, is impossible. Madison Square Garden wouldn't run the risk of an accident to its champion or of having him shown up by some clever foe.

Braddock's alleged championship margin is thinner than a sheet of cellophane—and as easy to see through, when analyzed.

The Other Lewis.

BRADDOCK might even have difficulty in winning the light-heavyweight title. There is another Lewis on the job in this class, also a Negro—John Henry Lewis, who won his title here. Braddock came up in the 175-pound class and couldn't get anywhere, as far as that title was concerned.

It is doubtful if, in his day as a light-heavyweight, they had as good a fighter as John Henry Lewis, who can box, hit hard and fast and can take it. He showed all of that against Bob Olin.

A great many observers feel that Braddock would have his troubles with Lewis as well as with Louis. We'd like to see him qualify against John Henry before tackling Joe.

But that, of course, can't be. The big money to be gained with Joe might be kicked into the discard for a few thousands, if John Henry won from Braddock.

The Plague of White Hopes.

LED by Jack Dempsey, old-time fighters and promoters are combing the tall timbers for white hope heavyweights. They realize the gold mine to be discovered if they can unearth a white boy able to give Joe Louis a fight. If Louis wins the title, the white hope business will become a major industry.

Three former champions are trying to develop a winner—Dempsey, Jeffries and Willard. In addition, promoters are scouring the woods for talent or grinding material through the hoppers of "white hope tournaments" to see what comes out.

It is unlikely that anything of importance will result. No Slave of the Lamp appears on call, to provide the seekers after quick riches with the necessary white champion.

It Happened Once Before.

IN 1910, when the aged Jeffries was flattened by Jack Johnson, the same feverish activity developed. White men of all sizes were exploited.

There was Lute McCarthy, the handsome young fellow from Springfield, Mo., who did fairly well until a blow to the heart killed him in Canada.

There was the "Cave Man" Al Palzer, who could hit ferociously if the target would stand still, but who was punched out of the race early.

There was the stylish Englishman, Colin Bell, who couldn't take it.

There was Tom Kennedy, who later on made a good movie fighter.

There was the 300-pound engineer, Carl Morris, who couldn't fight a lick but who never knew when he was whipped.

There was the pathetic Fred Fulton, the futile Frank Moran and the gigantic Jess Willard.

Not a fighter in a car load, although Willard did beat Jack Johnson and finally "regain the championship for the white race"—from an aged Negro, wearied by his exile from the United States, who weighed 25 pounds above his fighting weight and who, so Johnson said, laid down for Willard to win.

That last statement we don't believe. Willard was in good shape and won on his merits, when Johnson did everything his condition permitted to win the fight—and couldn't.

But even Willard, the king of all this white hope squad, was just a puppet when a real fighter came along—a little fellow weighing 55 pounds less, who slammed the giant to the canvas seven times in the first round and took his crown away in jig time—Jack Dempsey.

Looking back at the history of the last white hope epidemic, we are constrained to believe that no amount of artificial exploitation will produce a real fighter. They're not made—they just happen.

No Night Game Stampede.

SEVEN night games increased the Cincinnati club's 1935 home attendance by some 130,000 patrons—which more than equals the entire attendance at the Browns' 77 home games last year.

Still, not another club in either major league thought enough of this to follow in the footsteps of Larry MacPhail and Crosley. The only night games in either league next season will be the seven games played at Cincinnati.

Major league baseball men in a large majority frown on night baseball and on efforts to improve receipts by showmanship or trick merchandising.

Night baseball has been their pet aversion—they believe baseball was made for sunshine and they have resisted efforts to stampede them in favor of night games, even a few of them.

Also, they are bitterly opposed to the synthetic double-header so dear to the heart of Sam Breadon. They even fought the Cardinal farm idea.

In fact it has occasionally seemed that baseball magnates were too conservative for their own good, especially when innovations designed to aid in supplying information and comfort to the customers, were concerned.

Sometimes one feels like giving Organized Baseball a substantial boot to accelerate it, in its own interest. If there is any virtue in the old adage "Make haste slowly," the major leagues are headed right. In some respects even the snails whizz by them.

"Cain has plenty of courage. In the last game of the season we were playing Cleveland and one of Cain's pitches got away from him and Knickerbocker thought the pitcher was trying to knock him down. It was just an accident. Nobody was trying to knock anybody down at that stage of the race. But Knickerbocker got sore about it and told Cain what he'd do if he threw another one close to him. So Cain ups and knocks Knickerbocker down sure enough with the next one. I like to see a man like that who won't let anybody challenge him and get away with it."

VENZKE DEFEATS MANGAN IN MILE RACE AT BOSTON

PENN STAR SETS MEET RECORD IN HUNTER MILE; TORRANCE LOSES

BOSTON, Feb. 8.—Gene Venzke, the Pennsylvania star who has been trailing the crack milers for some 0 races, gained his first major victory of the season tonight. He fought off Joe Mangan's stirring bid and raced to the Hunter Mile tape in 4:14.4, the fastest indoor time ever recorded in Boston.

Mangan, who led Venzke and the world record holder, Glenn Cunningham, in last week's Wanamaker mile, was a yard behind Venzke when the bell sounded for their last turn about the 12-lap Boston Garden track. The former Cornell star launched his closing spurt in the backstretch and pulled almost even with Venzke on the final turn.

Venzke managed to hold his slim lead during the blistering dash to the finish line and he had three inches on Mangan when he snapped the tape.

Two Other Starters.

There were only two other starters in this forty-seventh renewal of the Boston Athletic Association's featured event, Glenn Dawson of Tulsa, Ok., who finish third about 30 yards behind, and the National Intercollegiate champion, Archie San Romano of Kansas State Teachers' College, who was a half lap away when Venzke gained his thrilling and unexpected victory.

San Romano, Venzke, Mangan and Dawson raced in that order for eight laps. Venzke and Mangan jumped the field on the ninth and Dawson pulled up in to the show position on the tenth turn about the track that was reconditioned for this event.

Mangan, noted for his blazing finish, made a magnificent bid for victory as he came around the final turn and tore into the flat, but the victory-starved Quaker was determined to repeat the smashing victory he registered in this event last year. Tonight's time of 4:14.4 wiped out the Boston record of 4:15.2 made by Joey Ray in this race back in 1925.

Eddie O'Brien, Syracuse's Olympic hope, thrilled the 10,000 crowd by forcing his way into the lead with two laps to go and racing on to a 12-yard victory over Herman Stewart of Amherst in the "600." He was clocked in 1:15.9. Two New Yorkers followed them home, Milton Sandler in third place and Timmy Ring, former Holy Cross star, last.

Torrance Loses.

Another startling upset was registered in the shot put, which ended with Dimi Zaits, Boston College's ineligible New England intercollegiate champion, throwing the 16-pound ball five and a quarter inches beyond the best heave made by Jack Torrance of Louisiana State, holder of the world's indoor and outdoor records.

Zaitz' winning try measured 51 feet 2½ inches and Tony Geniawicz of Dartmouth, the I. C. 4-A. titlist, placed third with a 47 ft. 10⅜ inch toss.

Sam Allen of Oklahoma Baptist University, expected to set a new world record tonight in the 45-yard high hurdle, was nosed out by Phil Good of Bowdoin in the final. Good equalled the indoor mark of 5.8 seconds in each of his three flights over the timbers. Ed Siegel of Brooklyn, gained an eyelash triumph over the two great Negro stars, Eulace Peacock of Temple, and Ralph Metcalfe of Marquette, in the Briggs 50-yard dash, in 5.6 seconds.

Peacock was the broad jump winner with a 23 feet 6⅜ inch leap, three and three-eighths inches better than the best try made by Stanley T. Johnson og M. I. T.

Ray Sears of Butler University and Joe McCluskey of the New York A. C. repeated their Millrose games duel, the former winning the Billings two-mile event by five yards in 9:22 flat. There were nine starters in this race, but the only other finisher was Frank Nordell of Cleveland, who lost about 40 yards when he halted to assist Harold Manning of Wichita, Kan., after they collided during the second lap.

The sky-rocketing Negroes, Albert Threadgill of Temple and Cornelius Johnson of Los Angeles Compton Junior College jumped 6 feet 7 inches to deadlock the high jump. George Spitz of the New York A. C. finishe din third place, an inch lower.

Pole vault honors were captured by Eldon Stutzman of Syracuse, who soared 12 feet 6 inches, a quarter foot higher than the runner-up, Oscar Sutermeister of the B. A. A.

Holy Cross, while gaining its eleventh strainght victory over Boston College's quartet, turned in the fastest team mile of the games, 3 minutes 24.8 seconds, juts before Chuck Hornbostel, former Indiana star, set a new meet record for the Billings "1000' by defeating Harry Williamson of North Carolina University by five yards in a 2:13.8 race. Hornbostel, last year's winner here, was third, behind Williamson and Bill Ray of Manhattan when he started the final lap.

CHUCK KLEIN'S PAY AGAIN CUT; TO GET $12,500

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Feb. 8.—Charles "Chuck" Klein, who kicked up quite a fuss before agreeing to accept $30,000 for his baseball labors in 1934, took a second straight salary cut today by signing a 1936 Chicago Cub contract for $12,500.

After some correspondence with his Cub bosses, who tried to get him for years and then succeeded by paying $125,000 to Philadelphia for his contract in the fall of 1933, the big outfielder decided to take the offer. Under the Cub bonus system, he will have a chance to boost that salary if he approaches anything near the form that made him one of the greatest hitters in the game at Philadelphia.

Klein, except for a flash here and there, such as his winning home run in the fifth game of last fall's world series against Detroit, has been a great disappointment since joining the Cubs. Because of injuries and a downright dislike for the architectural makeup of Wrigley Field, home of the Cubs, the former Philly home run king has suffered his worst batting slumps. In 1934, he played in 115 games and hit .301 after a great start; last season, he batted but .293 in 119 games, winding up the season on the bench. If his slump continues, his batting average may come close to the bowling marks he is hanging up on his Indianapolis alleys.

WASHINGTON U. FIVE LOSES TO WASHBURN IN VALLEY GAME

Suspicious persons can glory in or wonder at the fact that the Bears invading party consisted of 13 persons.

Attendance 300.

Because of the cold and a rival attraction in the form of a high school title game, only a few hundred, a very few hundred, saw tonight's game—say 300.

Coach Hellmich changed his starting lineup slightly when he began the action with Douglas at guard instead of Mier. Fee and Lee, Washburn forwards, are small men, which was the reason. It was Douglas who opened the scoring.

The Bears handled the ball better than in any previous game this season.

The longest shot of the first half was Martintoni's shot almost from midcourt. This made the count Washington 9, Washburn 6.

Capt. Bethel of Washburn hasn't been starting recent games. He didn't start tonight but, getting in the game, he was a scoring power in the last minutes of the first half. He personally conducted his team into the lead.

Martintoni, Washington captain, injured his leg late in the opening half and had to retire. Williams went in at guard and Mier shifted to center. Martintoni was not badly hurt.

MISS PAGE WINS U. S. SQUASH TITLE

A Boy and Branch Rickey.

ROCHESTER and Columbus farm hands were playing a spring exhibition game at Avon Park, Fla. One of the pitchers threw a curve, the batter foul-tipped the ball and it split the finger of the young man who happened to be catching.

Where was Jones? He was in the clubhouse, changing sweat shirts. Where was Smith? In a pepper game in the most remote corner of the park.

Branch Rickey, general manager of the far-flung Cardinal organization, was in the grandstand, watching and seeing all.

"Ray," Rickey shouted to Manager Blades of Columbus, "where is Narron?"

Thirty yards away from Rickey a young man straightened up like a buck private when he sees the Colonel. Rickey saw him, but he pretended that he didn't. Branch repeated the question several times, looking here, there and everywhere except at that rigid young man, who stood with head erect, shoulders squared, stomach in, chest out.

Narron had started professional baseball as a third baseman, but Rickey thought he saw catching ability in the young man and at Branch's suggestion, Narron had swapped his infielder's glove for a catcher's mitt. And now Rickey wanted to see how far he had progressed.

Finally the pointers were so many that Uncle Branch had to look at the young man.

"Narron!" Rickey challenged.

"Yes, suh," from Narron, as he tried to be taller, stiffer and more barrell-chested.

"Narron, are you ready?" An exhibition game was being played. It was something for the spectators to be entertained by an exchange of words between the renowned Branch Rickey and his players and the stands were appropriately silent.

"Mr. Rickey," Narron replied, "Ah stays ready."

He'll Climb the Ladder.

SAM NARRON is on the 1936 spring training roster of the Cardinals. He has moved from Albany, Ga., in a Class D league, jumping over C, B, A, A-1 and AA to the major league. He may be back in the minors by April for more experience, but if Rickey has made no mistake in measuring the boy, it will be difficult to keep Sam out of a Cardinal uniform. And the young man will never have to worry about his contract.

Sam Narron lives on a farm near Middlesex, N. C. He is 21 years old and for many years he has been the head of the family which includes his mother, himself and three younger children. Sam hitch-hiked in the spring of 1934 to Ray Doan's baseball school at Hot Springs, Ark. A Cardinal scout recommended him and the Cardinals signed him. He played that year at Martinsville, Va., in the Bi-State League.

In 1935, as told, Narron was at Avon Park camp. He was signed to a contract that called for $125 a month. The fickle exigencies of the moment necessitated the transfer of a certain kind of a ball player to Albany, Ga., and the finger was pointed at Narron. He climbed into the automobile of Scout Frank Rickey and journeyed to Georgia. Sam was sorrowful. They needed that $125 at the little Carolina farm house at Middlesex. But the transfer to Albany meant that the pay check would have to be revised. Instead of $125 a month, Sam would get only $90, the top in the league. Thirty-five dollars was a flock of money in Middlesex. But mingled with the sorrow, there was no resentment. There was no feeling that the Cardinals hadn't done right by him. He talked freely to Scout Frank Rickey as the automobile made the many turns, usually on two wheels.

A Profitable Ride.

THEY couldn't put in that 40 acres of this or that after all. And the younger sister couldn't have that new pair of shoes. And they'd have to get along without that team of mules. But it would just be for a year. He'd climb back to that $125. He'd show 'em at Albany and he'd be up there.

Sam didn't know it, but he was doing himself a lot of good, when he declined to mix any part of resentment with the full 100 parts of sorrow over that $35.

When the 1935 season ended at Albany, a telegram arrived at the little Georgia city for Sam Narron. It instructed him to report to the Cardinals at Sportsman's Park. Largely because there had been no resentment mixed with the sorrow, Sam Narron had been able to lead the Georgia-Florida league with a batting average of .349.

It didn't take Sam long to make up for that $35 a month cut that had been made necessary by the transfer to the Class D Albany club. During his three weeks or so with the Cardinals he was paid at the rate of $400 a month. The $35 a month cut totaled only $175 for a five-month season and his extra earnings for the three weeks with the Cardinals amounted to approximately a no-resentment net gain of $300.

Two Different Pods.

NOW we come to the latest development in the story of Sam Narron. Visualize, if you can, a Dizzy Dean, with a salary cut from $400 a month in the fall of 1935 to a salary of say $250 a month in the contract offered for 1936.

Nobody told Sam Narron that Branch Rickey had given him that $300 September assignment with the Cardinals as a reward for having a fine disposition in the spring. But it actually was that. It was a reward for the fine spirit that made possible the excellent showing at Albany. But it is natural for a young man who makes $400 a month in September to plan things for the little Middlesex farm house with the plans predicated on a $400 a month income. There must have been, therefore, more sorrow in that Carolina home when the $250 contract arrived, a contract designed to prevent further sorrow if it should become necessary to send Narron, say to the Texas League, for more experience.

Sam Narron signed the contract. For four days he pondered with himself over the disappointment at seeing the $400 of September, reduced to the $250 a month of 1936. But again it was only sorrow — no resentment. Here's the letter that accompanied the signed contract, signed after a delay of four days:

"Dear Mr. Rickey:

"I want to apologize to you for not signing my contract and sending it back to you. I hope you won't think hard of me for not sending it back, for I know you have been a friend and a father to me in the last two years. And I hope it will be so for many more years.

"Yours truly,
"SAM NARRON."

After associating with ball players and managers and club presidents and business managers for 20 years, you get to know something about their insides and how they work. And it is easy to be sure that this Sam Narron boy will never have to worry about his contract affairs. Branch Rickey will be representing Sam Breadon and the Cardinals, but Sam Narron will have equally capable representation. He'll have Branch Rickey, too.

BOXERS HANDLED BY KEARNS AND DEMPSEY TO BOX IN CHICAGO RING

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Feb. 8.—Those old ex-battery mates, Jack Dempsey and Jack Kearns, are going to glare at each other from opposite corners of the ring after all.

Red Burman, Baltimore red head, managed by Dempsey, and Hank Bath, Fort Morgan, Colo., heavyweight protege of Kearns, were matched today for a 10-round battle in the Chicago Stadium next Friday night. They were scheduled to box in Madison Square Garden a month ago, but the New York State Athletic Commission held it up pending clearing of a reported difficulty Kearns had with the California Commission.

Both factions were offered 25 per cent, but when Dempsey held out for 30 per cent, the difference almost shelved the attraction. The Kearns-Dempsey feud became an underlying factor because Dempsey was not agreeable to accepting a lesser sum than would go to the man with whom he has had a famous misunderstanding for many years. Matchmaker Jim Mullen and Nat Lewis effected a delicate compromise, with the result that all is even in the purse money.

Bath, an Appolo-like youngster, weighing 188 pounds, made a stunning impression in his sensational 10-round fight with Billy Treest, a thunderbolt from Batavia, Ill., two weeks ago. Floored three times along the route, Bath got up to make a courageous finish that won the admiration of the fans.

The weather turned colder during the afternoon and a bitter wind arose, handicaping the skaters in the later events.

Sunday the finals will be held in the 440-yard dash, mile, half mile and five-mile events for men, along with others for juvenile, junior and senior boys.

Indignant at the small bulls sent into the ring in a bull fight in Puebla, Mexico, yesterday several thousand fans stoned the matadors and set fire to the bull ring.—News item.

YOU'D think it was a wrestling game
That made the customers exclaim:
"Mexicans never shall be gulls!
We want bigger and better bulls!"

You can't blame them for beefing about the size of the bulls, but burning up the bull ring is carrying the thing a little too far.

A Philadelphia scribe, Mr. Isaminger to be exact, complains that Connie Mack dropped three pitchers a week after the roster had been issued. Maybe if he had waited much longer there wouldn't have been any roster.

Connie already has the old A's practically down to the franchise and a roster without any names wouldn't be so hot.

But spare your country's flag," he said.

WESTERN WINS AND IS ASSURED OF TITLE TIE IN "ABC" LEAGUE

The Western Military Academy basketball team assured itself of a tie for the "ABC" League championship by defeating Burroughs, 35 to 26, yesterday afternoon at Burroughs. The victory was Western's fourth in league play against no defeats and the Cadets only have two more league games before the season closes.

Western just about sewed up the game in the first two periods when it counted 19 points to 10 for Burroughs. However, Burroughs rallied with 14 points in the third period to be on the short end of a 25-to-24 count going into the final eight minutes. In the last quarter, Burroughs only scored two points to 10 for Western.

Western can clinch the championship next Wednesday provided it wins from Country Day at Country Day.

MAERIEL'S VICTORY BOOSTS HIS FLORIDA DERBY CHANCES

DEFEATS SIX ELIGIBLES FOR STAKE IN FIRST START OF YEAR

By the Associated Press.

HIALEAH PARK, Fla., Feb. 8.—A new threat for the Florida Derby developed here today when Maeriel, mud-loving son of Ariel in the silks of De Witt Page's Maemere Farm, made a show of eight others of his age in the Bahama Handicap of seven furlongs.

The brown colt, a prominent performer in 1935 stakes competition but away from the races since November at Pimlico, streaked home a winner by six lengths in 1:25 3-5 under 124 pounds, two less than carried by Warren Wright's disappointing favorite and topweight, Crossbow II.

W. C. Stroube's Texas-owned silks were borne to the place by Bay Bubble, which beat Fred J. Ryan's Sachem by a length. Crossbow II, after a good break, dropped back and finished a length out of the picture. Maeriel, ridden by Eddie Litzenberger, paid $23.10 in earning a purse of $2930.

A steady rain and mist made the weather the most abominable of the meeting, and the attendance was reduced somewhat. Fewer than 10,000 fans were on hand.

Of the nine starters—the rain and resulting mud resulted in four scratches in the headliner—all but Bay Bubble and Columbiana are Florida Derby eligibles.

Bay Bubble Bursts.

Bay Bubble rushed first away at the break, with Maeriel quickly drawing into second position. This pair moved away from the others in the first quarter mile. Maeriel swung past the early pacemaker after turning into the stretch. The colt drew away with little effort. Sachem surprised by holding third money safe virtually all the way.

Joseph E. Widener, president of the Miami Jockey Club, paid tribute to the memory of the late King George in the annual Bahama day program, dedicated to the neighboring British island possessions, The Bahamas.

Workman Is Injured.

Jockey Raymond "Sonny" Workman, veteran Washington favorite, was thrown from the back of the crazy acting Miss Otis while in the paddock for the first race. Workman, scheduled to return to the saddle following his recent suspension, was badly cut about the mouth and it was reported that he needed several stitches in his lip. He canceled his mounts for the day.

Long-shot players broke on the right foot when Movie Lad led home the field of maiden three-year-old fillies in the six-furlong opening contest. The $26.70-for-two shot dominated the running from the drop of the flag and greeted the judges two lengths clear of the timidly-ridden Sprinkle. The latter was slow to get into stride. She finished gamely and beat The Millay by a length and a half for second money.

The photographic finish was used in the juvenile dash, with the $25.20-for-two hazard, Happy Road, ridden by Gilbert, taking a nose decision from Maedic. Hi-Lad was a poor third. The first two horses had the issue between them almost from the start. Gilbert added to his prowess as a two-year-old rider by pushing Happy Road's nose in front at the wire. Balkanese was bothered just after the break. The time was :34 2-5, a high-class effort in the three-furlong dash over muddy going.

Bright Haven Likes Mud.

Bright Haven, thoroughly at home in the going and under light weight, made a show of his company in the six-furlong third event. The Sage Stable five-year-old, hustled away to a long lead by Bobby Merritt, merely toyed with the field. He galloped home by half a dozen lengths in 1:11 2-5. Fidelis closed powerfully to overtake Polish Beau for the place, three lengths splitting the pair. Bright Haven was a $5.20 favorite.

Coequel avenged her recent defeat at the hands, or feet, of Corinto by leading that gelding to the wire in the one-mile fourth race. The pair finished three parts of a length apart, with Chasar, coupled with Corinto as the Mrs. Denemark entry, five lengths farther back. Beaver Dam was fourth and last. Only three interests were represented in the race, therefore there was straight betting only. Coequel, with the better of a shift in weights, led Corinto all the way, holding on gamely in the drive to the wire to pay $3.40.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

COLUMBIA, Mo., Feb. 8.—Scheduling of three baseball encounters with St. Louis U. at St. Louis on May 8 and here on May 21 and with Washington at St. Louis on May 9, was announced today by Don Faurot, chairman of University intercollegiate athletics.

A game with Washington here May 18 also is being sought. The Billiken and Bear games will fill the places left open on the M. U. schedule when Kansas U. cancelled four games after deciding not to organize a baseball team this season.

RED RAIN MAY BE UNABLE TO RUN IN DERBY

By the Associated Press.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Feb. 8.—The coldest winter in 20 years already is casting a shadow over the prospects for early spring training of promising three-year-old thoroughbreds pointed toward the Kentucky Derby.

Derby hopefuls engaged in winter campaigns at Southern tracks may have a distinct advantage, turf followers said, unless the weather man relents.

Vacationing horses spending the winter at ease on farms in the bluegrass and elsewhere will have to go through weeks of "legging up" before they can be started on the strenuous grind they must undergo to be ready for the big race.

The Derby comes early this year, May 2, and fitness may go a long way toward offsetting any shortcomings in class. Also, with Southern and Pacific Coast tracks offering fat purses, more of the topnotch three-year-olds, potential and otherwise, are engaged in winter campaigns than ever before.

Grand Slam, Balladier, Hollyrood, Jean Bart, Coldstream, Ned Reigh and others are snowbound in the North, but they are outnumbered by candidates racing at Hialeah, Santa Anita and the Fair Grounds.

The campaigners include Tintagel, winner of the Futurity; Joseph E. Widener's Brevity, which some say may turn out to be the best of the crop, after all; Cross Bow II, Bright Plumage, Bold Venture, Black Highbrow, Split Second, Silver Fleece, Bright Light, Grog, Higher Cloud, James City, Maeriel, Bow and Arrow, and the Fighter.

There is no general agreement among the experts as to the 1935 juvenile champion, and the Derby at present is regarded as a wide open race, which might be won by most anybody's horse.

Some handicappers rated C. V. Whitney's Red Rain at the head of the 1935 juvenile class; others were divided among Grand Slam, Ned Reigh, Tintagle, Coldstream, Brevity and Hollyrood.

One bookmaker advised that Red Rain may not be nominated because of hoof trouble, chose Grand Slam as this year's winter book favorite. Brevity, Tintagel, Ned Reigh, Hollyrood and Coldstream also have plenty of backing for that distinction.

Muny Athletic Meeting.

The February meeting of the Municipal Athletic Association will be held Wednesday at 8 p. m. at the Kings-Way Hotel. Final arrangements for the Valentine Party to be held at 4844 South Broadway will be discussed.

PALM ISLAND IS BEATEN A HEAD BY JULIA GRANT AT NEW ORLEANS

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 8.—Julia Grant, heretofore regarded only as a sprinter, carried her speed for a mile and 70 yards under the light weight of 100 pounds today to win the New Orleans Handicap at the Fair Grounds.

Racing in the silks of R. A. Coward, the four-year-old daughter of General Grant set all the pace but she was all out at the end to beat Clyde Troutt's Palm Island, winner of five of his last six starts, by a head. Mrs. J. Chesney's Cristate was third.

H. Spears broke Julia Grant into the lead and she quickly opened up a four-length advantage. The margin was cut to two lengths at the three-quarter mark as Francis Polk brought Palm Island into a contending position. Two lengths still separated the pair at the head of the stretch. In the run for the judges, the Coward filly just managed to hold on long enough. She paid 9 to 2.

In the big game, Kerley had 220, Bob Volz 230 and Bud Rice 233. The latter opened with a 145, but came back with counts of 233 and 218 for a 596 total. Hinckley with 560 was best for the Wrays. V. Scratched—Cavalcade, Head Play.
Mutuels—Time Supply, win $9, place $4, show $3.60; Pompey's Pillar, place $19.20, show $7.60; Ariel Cross, show $4.

Time Supply was in tight quarters rounding the first turn but was saved and moving up gradually headed the field after leaving the backstretch to open up a good lead in the run home and finish far in front. Pompey's Pillar bore out a trifle at start but had speed enough to retain a forward position and came gamely through the stretch to beat Ariel Cross. The latter was never far from the pace and cut through an opening in the stretch to finish well. Rosemont was bumped at start and dropped back early but made up ground steadily and was going well at end. Discovery met with some interference around the first turn, was taken to outside to race under slight restraint, made a strong move around far turn to loom up dangerously approaching stretch turn but swerved a trifle after entering stretch and tired under his weight in the final drive. He was not punished at any stage. Special Agent and Prince Abbot dropped out of it when the real racing began. Azucar met with interference at start and was never dangerous.

CROSSBOW II IS NOMINATED FOR LOUISIANA DERBY

Crossbow II, Blue Bud, Zuni, Professor Paul, Whipowill, High Santa and others of the better grade of three-year-olds are regarded as most probable starters in the Louisiana Derby to be contested at the New Orleans Fairgrounds track on March 28, according to a recent communication from Cliff Abbo, a Louisiana Jockey Club official. Abbo is also a placing judge and publicity director of the Fairmount Jockey Club.

The signed nomination blank has been received by Racing Secretary Dick Leigh from Warren Wright, owner of the Calumet Farm, whose hopes are pinned on Crossbow II. The nomination of Blue Bud came from Mrs. E. E. Keller. Both Wright and Mrs. Keller are racing their horses now in Florida.

Professor Paul, owned by Mrs. J. Chesney, scored two stake victories at a distance of a mile at Narragansett and Agawam.

Others regarded by Abbo as Derby material now quartered at the New Orleans track are: E. K. Bryson's Carvola, Pumice Stone; Mrs. H. Torriento's High Santa; M. M. Shields' Speed Limit; C. Troutt's Palm Island; O. H. Cheer Jr.'s Whipowill; Imperial Farms' Imperial Bill, Imperial Pal; Lone Star Stable's Fra Diavolo; H. Herendeen's Paplay; B. Park's Rustic Lassie; F. C. Haller's Amijo; J. Zoeller's Isenberg, Miles Standish; J. G. Salyers' Bon Centimo; F. J. Letellier's Dilwin; A. Barrera's Skotchy; M. Goldblatt's Early Call.

Virtually all of the foregoing have been winners during the current Louisiana Jockey Club meeting and give evidence of developing into worth-while candidates for the rich prize, which is the oldest of winter derbies staged in the United States. Incidentally, the Louisiana Derby is the last to be staged this year, before the time rolls around for the renewal of the Kentucky Derby.

Six Top Drivers In Midget Auto Races Tuesday

The six leading drivers of the Midwest Racing Association, who will compete in a special championship series arranged by Promoter Earl Reflow as the featured event on his midget auto program at the Arena Tuesday night, will arrive in St. Louis today and tomorrow.

Reflow has exacted a promise from all drivers entered that they will be here by Monday evening, thus assuring there will be no difficulties with getting cars into St. Louis because of road conditions Tuesday.

The program, which brings the sport back to St. Louis for the first time this year, will be staged over one of the finest tracks ever laid for midget racers. Workmen will begin construction today and specifications call for a dirt and cinder oval that will be used by the midget racers Tuesday and the women track stars Wednesday.

THREE GIRLS WILL DEFEND U. S. TITLES IN ARENA TRACK MEET

HELEN STEPHENS WILL HEADLINE NATIONAL A. A. U. INDOOR PROGRAM

By Damon Kerby.

Ed Waite, Washington University sprinter, will not be available to furnish competition for Ralph Metcalfe in a special 100-yard exhibition race on the National A. A. U. girls' indoor championships next Wednesday night at the Arena. Waite last night told the Post-Dispatch that he is not "withdrawing" from the match race, for the very good reason that he had not agreed to run.

"I sprained a foot playing touch football last fall," said Waite. "When Coach Hellmich told me that Dr. Norman Rathert wanted me to run against Metcalfe, I told him that I have not run since the injury and could not meet Metcalfe. I am not withdrawing. I never entered."

Dr. Rathert said yesterday he was making an effort to provide opponents for Metcalfe, who will open his Olympic year preparation with his St. Louis exhibition.

In connection with the men's end of the program, names of members of Washington and St. Louis University track men who are eligible to take part in the special intercollegiate relay—distance of which has been changed from a half-mile to a mile—were made public.

Members of College Teams.

St. Louis University's relay team will be picked from the following men: Al Eberle, Roy Eckburg, Dan Wolken, Bob Shea, Maurie Pierce and Leon Charrock. Washington University track men available for the Bears' relay team are Lackland Bloom, "Bushy" Lind, Frank Wright, Jimmy Johnson and Oscar Conrad.

Star sprinters from the two squads will be chosen to meet in an intercollegiate 100-yard dash. Other exhibition races on the program will be a 100-yard dash and a half-mile relay for high school athletes. Nine schools of the district are represented in the entry list.

Three girls who won national indoor championships at the meet here last March will return to defend their titles. They are Helen Stephens, defending titleholder in the 50-meter dash, eight-pound shotput and broad jump; Evelyn Hall of Chicago, victor in the 50-meter hurdles, and Alice Arden of Brooklyn, N. Y., winner in the high jump.

"We Shall Meet, But—Etc., Etc."

Stella Walsh, who won two other events at last year's meet—the 200-meter run and the basketball throw—will not compete, according to her own quoted statements. Last year's victorious 400-meter relay team, the Vi-Tone Laurel A. C. of Toronto, Can., will, at least in part, return. Some of the girls who were members of that quartet will be back, this year as representatives of the Supreme Ladies A. C. of Toronto.

An out-of-town star, name previously not mentioned, who will be here is Sallie Core of New Orleans. She will compete in the shotput, 50-meter dash and 200-meter run.

When the date of the coming meet was announced, Dr. Rathert said that girls' track teams would enter from New Brunswick, Me.; Milwaukee, Wis., and from the West Coast. These teams have not been mentioned among the late entries, but Dr. Rathert expects additional entries to arrive today and tomorrow.

Entries Open for Ozark District Basket Tourney

Entry blanks have been mailed to eligible teams for the annual Ozark A. A. U. basketball tournament to be held at the Sherman Park Community Center, beginning March 6, William A. Hellmich, tournament chairman, announced yesterday in declaring the entry list officially open. The last day to enter will be Feb. 26 at 5 o'clock.

Teams wishing to enter should file their lists with the tournament chairman at the City Recreation Department office, Room 330, Municipal Courts Building.

Invitations were mailed to all of the teams in the four leagues affiliated with the A. A. U. They are the Municipal Basketball Association, the Sunday School League, the Y. M. H. A. League, and the three divisions of the Industrial Y. M. C. A. League. Entry blanks were also mailed to eligible college and independent teams in the Ozark district.

The entry fee for the event has been reduced from $10 a team to $2.50. Only nine players can be on a squad and all of them must have been registered with the A. A. U. by Jan. 24.

Games will be played on March 6, 7, 9, 10, 11 and 12, with Sunday, March 8, being an open date.

The St. Louis Pabs won the title last year and were sent to the National A. A. U. tournament at Denver, Colo. The winner of this year's meet will also be sent to Denver for the national event if enough money is raised in the local meet.

About 30 teams are expected to enter the tournament.

One, Possibly Both, Will Go To World Table Tennis Tournament

Robert "Buddy" Blattner, left and Richard Tindall, right, St. Louis table tennis stars, who have a chance to represent the United States team in the world table tennis tournament to be held at Prague, Czechoslovakia, March 10 to 16. One is certain to go to the event, and both will make the trip if sufficient funds are raised.

Officials of the United States Table Tennis Association announced that the team selected to compete against the European stars would consist of Sol Schiff of New York, James McClure of Indianapolis and either Blattner or Tindall, or both of the last two, provided the association had enough money to send them.

The St. Louis District Table Tennis Association has decided to aid the boys and it will sponsor a tournament Feb. 15 and 16 to raise a "fighting fund." All players except the first eight in St. Louis are eligible to compete in the event with a 50 cents entry fee. First round play will be Saturday, Feb. 15, and the final will take place Sunday, Feb. 16, at the Merchants' Exchange Building. Tindall and Blattner will give an exhibition preceding the final match.

Tickets to the tournament will cost 25 cents and may be purchased at the club headquarters. Entries for the benefit of the "fighting fund" can be made by calling COlfax 9479.

A collection from members of the Metropolitan League netted $20 in addition to an amount turned in from 22 entries. All contributions should be sent to the St. Louis District Table Tennis Association, Fighting Fund, 125 Merchants' Exchange Building.

SOCCER SHOTS
by Dent McSkimming

After a long interruption forced by the air of uncertainty regarding America's Olympic plans, and adverse weather, the St. Louis Olympic soccer committee, headed by Chairman John "King" Finnegan will begin to function this week, Finnegan announced yesterday.

"We were very anxious to get something done long before this," said Finnegan, "but circumstances over which we had no control held us up. We really haven't lost much ground, since all of the players who could make our St. Louis team have been actively engaged in league games and are in top physical condition. Soccer must pay its own way in Olympic Games competition and I have been informed that this means we must raise $10,000 nationally. I don't know as yet what our quota will be but I feel sure that if we can put a first-class team in the field we will bring in whatever is reasonably expected of us in intercity trial matches."

Under present plans, the team which survives these intercity matches will be sent to Berlin, strengthened by half a dozen players selected from other sections. The Olympic soccer matches at Berlin are to be played in August.

Hughie Hill is expected to make his debut at outside left for the Shamrocks Sunday. Here is a true genius at ball manipulation, but when the occasion requires, he can play straight, fast football, as he did in the Western cup finals last season and against the Scottish League all-stars.

There is danger in having too many "fancy" footballers in one team, but that's one thing Capt. McNab is dead set against. Watson, Hill, Roe and Gonsalves do love to play hide and seek with the ball.

Will it be wise for Manager Tom Palmer to break up his halfback line to get Ralph Tracy into the next cup game for the Marre club? Tracy was obtained recently from the Hellrungs. He is a very valuable player and the Marre defense could stand strengthening. Palmer has an important decision to make.

One reason for the "piling on" of goals by the Shamrocks last Sunday may be found in the announcement of the management before the game that a bonus would be paid for every goal scored. The bonus is to be split between all players, regulars and reserves.

"Red" Sanders, one of the most useful of the Hellrung forwards in their cup game of three weeks ago, was stricken with appendicitis. He is reported on the road to recovery following an operation.

True to expectations, Heidelberg of Pittsburgh, Slavia-Bartunek of Cleveland and Sparta of Chicago are coming along as the most serious challengers of the Shamrocks' right to the Western soccer championship. And there is always the chance that the Marres or the Ben Millers will upset somebody's apple cart. It's the most evenly balanced Western cup championship race in many years.

The English Football Association has prepared a movie reel on soccer which is proving highly popular and helpful abroad. It is intended for use all over the world and it is hoped the United States Football Association will bring it to this country soon. Here is what an English scribe says about the film:

"It struck me as an absorbing and workmanlike study of the finest points in our fine national game . . .

"Even if the film does not make great players, it must help the public to a deeper appreciation of the game, and help polish up the standard of amateur play.

"There are two versions, one for public cinemas, the other for schools and private coaching. The series of six one-reelers deal separately with correct movements and tactics in every phase of the game, demonstrated by soccer's big shots.

"The schools version is straightforward comment. The pages of the F. A. instructional handbook leap to life in these splendid studies . . . This soccer show is in reach of all schools—all elementary included."

MILLERS HOPE TO SURPRISE SPARTA TODAY

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, Feb. 8. — Wretched ground conditions for tomorrow afternoon's first round national soccer cup match between the Ben Millers of St. Louis and Sparta of Chicago were unavoidable in view of adverse weather, but indications tonight were that the match would be played as scheduled.

Manager Frankie Vaughan of the St. Louis team said upon arrival here that he believes poor field conditions will do more to hamper Sparta's nice passing game than it will to disrupt the longer swinging game of his club.

"Under perfect playing conditions we might be a poor match for Sparta," said Vaughan, himself a former star player. "But, an uneven surface should take a great deal out of their machine-like maneuvering without doing us a great measure of harm. My team, with Larry Kickham and Joe O'Meara ready to start, may pull the biggest cup match surprise of the season."

This first round game was originally scheduled for Jan. 19 but has been set back three times.

DISTRICT BASKET TOURNEY TO OPEN FEB. 24; TEAMS TO BE SEEDED

Plans for the tenth annual St. Louis district high school basketball tournament to be held at Washington and St. Louis universities the week of Feb. 24 were released yesterday by Otto P. Rost, chairman of the tournament committee. For the first time in the history of the event, teams will be seeded.

Under a rule made by the Board of Control of the Missouri State High School Athletic Association the tournament committee is empowered to seed the four strongest teams. Ballots have been mailed to the coaches asking them to select the eight strongest teams in the Regional and the Class B championships. Then on Feb. 18, the committee will meet at Soldan High School to select the four from each division which have the highest ranking.

16 "A" Schools to Compete.

The first seeded team will be put in the No. 3 position, the second team in No. 11 position, the third team in No. 15 and the fourth in No. 7. Since there are only 16 of the "A" schools competing in the regional the committee will not have much trouble with the pairings, for there will be eight first round games.

Teams considered of "A" classification are eligible to compete in the State meet at Columbia, March 12, 13 and 14, provided, of course, that they come in first or second in the St. Louis regional tournament. The "A" teams follow:

Beaumont, Blewett, Central, Cleveland, Christian Brothers, Kirkwood, Maplewood, McBride, McKinley, Normandy, Ritenour, Roosevelt, Soldan, St. Louis University High, University City and Webster Groves.

The winner and runner-up of the "B" championship will receive trophies, but will not be eligible to go to the State meet. The 15 "B" schools entered follow:

Bayless, Brentwood, Burroughs, Chaminade, Clayton, Eureka, Fairview, Ferguson, Hancock, Jennings, Principia, St. Charles, St. Louis Country Day, St. Peters of St. Charles and Wellston.

A public drawing of both divisions will be held Feb. 20 at Soldan.

Eight-Minute Quarters.

Starting Monday, Feb. 24, the tournament will be held four days at Washington University. Then the scene will shift to St. Louis University where the semifinals will be played Friday night and the finals, Saturday night. The times of the games will be made known when the pairings are drawn.

Following a recommendation of the basketball coaches, the quarters of the games have been lengthened from seven to eight minutes and there will be an intermission of 10 minutes between halves. The double referee system also will be used for all games.

Last year the tournament was held at Maplewood High School. Beaumont was the regional winner and Soldan the runner-up.

St. Louis and St. Louis County are considered as two districts by the State Association. Two teams will go to the State meet from the two districts and 14 from other regions to make a total of 16 which will compete in the State tournament.

YOUNG DEMOCRATS PLAY ROYAL HEARTS FIVE IN MUNY GAME WEDNESDAY

The Royal Hearts, only undefeated five in the Municipal Basketball League, will oppose the Young Democrats in the feature of the three league games scheduled for Wednesday night at the Sherman Park Community Center gymnasium. The Royal Hearts won the first-half championship without defeat, and have won all of their second-half contests.

The complete schedule for Wednesday is: United Service vs. Bill Binigs, 7:30 o'clock; Hellrung & Grimms vs. Y. M. H. A., 8:30 o'clock; and Young Democrats vs. Royal Hearts, 9:30 o'clock.

There will be an admission charge of 25 cents.

Six New Schools Are Admitted to Southern Group

By the Associated Press.

RICHMOND, Va., Feb. 8. THE Southern Conference last night voted to admit six new schools to membership—William and Mary, University of Richmond, Citadel, Furman, Davidson and Wake Forest. The "Graham plan" was adopted by a 6-to-4 vote.

Announcement of the conference action came at the after-midnight end of an evening session. Two of the eight schools which had sought admission to the conference, Presbyterian and Centre, were refused admission.

The vote on the Graham plan followed previously expected division with the presidents of six schools who had formerly approved it voting for the plan.

JACK SRENCO RETAINS "Y" HANDBALL TITLE

Jack Srenco successfully defended his title as the champion handball player of the Downtown Y. M. C. A. in the final played on the "Y" court yesterday afternoon by defeating Frank Zander, 21—9 and 21—16. Paired with his old teacher, Mike Cunningham, Srenco also won the doubles by winning two straight games from S. Wolff and Jack Britt, 21—19 and 21—17.

W. B. Cohn won the Class A singles championship by coming from behind in a hard-fought match to defeat J. Zawadski, 19—21, 21—13 and 21—13. David Vitt defeated Clarence Horner, 21—11 and 21—10, to win the Class B singles title.

Srenco seemed to have little difficulty in his first game with Zander, but the latter came back in the second game and forced Srenco to the limit in a game filled with thrills and long rallies.

Srenco and Cunningham will probably enter the National Y. M. C. A. four-wall handball championships which will be held in Minneapolis Feb. 19 to 22.

ROBINSON, WITH 100, LEADS POINT SCORES IN INDUSTRIAL LEAGUE

The spotlight in the Y. M. C. A. Industrial Basketball League is now focused on Division No. 1, where Wagner Electric and Fouke Fur are tied for first place. The Monsanto East St. Louisans have defeated every team in the division in their last three contests and are now threatening the leaders.

In next Wednesday night's six-game program, the East St. Louisans meet Fouke Fur in the feature game. In the two previous meetings of these teams, each has won a game. A victory for Fouke will probably keep the five remaining in a tie with the Wagner team, which should win from International Shoe.

In Division No. 2 Wohl A. C., having the pennant won, will take on Stix, Baer & Fuller in a contest to keep in shape for the finals, which will start after next week's contests, provided Division No. 1 does not finish in a tie. In the other game in this division U. S. Engineers and Wabash will battle for second place honors. A victory for the Railroaders will place them in a tie with the Engineers for this position, and as they have each won a game in their previous engagements this promises to be the feature game of Division No. 2.

The high scorers follow:

Player—Team.	FG.	FT.	F.	T'tal.
G. Robinson, Monsanto St. Louis	45	10	3	100
Jack, Wohl A. C.	32	11	7	75

McAvoy Is Ready to Meet Louis If Schmeling Fails to Return

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 8.—Jock McAvoy, British light-heavyweight king, wants to take on John Henry Lewis, Jack Peterson and Joe Louis in that order, he said on his return from England yesterday.

He's matched to fight Lewis for the American 175-pound crown May 8 If that fight can be shifted to an early March date, McAvoy will dash back across the ocean to battle Peterson for the British heavyweight title.

Then, in the event something should prevent Herr Max Schmeling from keeping his June date with Joe Louis, the trim Britisher will offer himself as a substitute.

The match with John Henry Lewis first was billed April 3, then moved back to May. This is agreeable to Lewis, but not to McAvoy's manager, Dave Lumiansky.

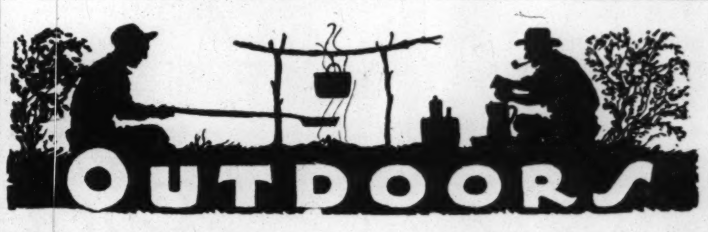
"We're offered £3000 to fight Peterson," said Lumiansky. "If we aren't able to to have the fight held in March we'll hop on the next boat for England to meet Peterson. But we want to meet Lewis first."

Gus Greenlee, Lewis' manager, and Lumiansky will sit down today and try to iron out the situation.

McAvoy, who now weighs around 170, just what he expects to scale against Lewis, said he was not kidding about the Joe Louis angle.

"In England we've been hearing Schmeling isn't coming back here to fight Joe Louis. If he doesn't and I whip the American light-heavyweight and the British heavyweight champion, I feel I'll be entitled to the shot."

If McAvoy fights Lewis in March he'll take two warm-up bouts in the meantime. Lumiansky showed offers from Chicago, Boston, Montreal, Los Angeles, Philadelphia and Pittsburgh.



A Wildcat Hunt.

"WORD that the 'varmints' had returned to their former haunts in the rugged hill country sent a party of us after the wild-cat or baby lynx," writes Larry Bauer of the Associated Press.

"Trailing these animals with dogs over the rocky ridges in the night affords something different from the usual 'coon or 'possum hunting available in the Ozark region.

"Efforts to take one of the animals alive failed when the native dogs lost interest and left the tree in which the cat crouched while a member of the party went after trapping gear.

"As soon as the dogs departed, the cat, a female, showed signs of leaving, too, despite the beam of a flashlight played upon her. One of the fellows brought it down with a rifle shot.

"Death of the predator disappointed Blaine Tuxhorn, our host who had his heart set on taking it alive.

"Tux has a hunting and fishing lodge on the Lake of the Ozarks.

"Six men and one woman set out from the lodge at 10:30 p. m. Soon the dim trails vanished and we scrambled through woods and dry creek beds. Boots began to chafe tender heels and rest periods were frequent.

"Occasionally one of the hounds yelps, but it is not the howl that spells 'treed.' A rabbit whisks by and startles the group. One member sits down and mumbles in his beard about those "damned boots." Three others reconnoiter across a ridge and scare up a razorback hog.

"We spread across a point with water on each side and "beat" the bush. The girl does her part as well as the men. Actions of the dogs indicate the trail is getting hot. We can hear Tux cussing about a cat getting through the line. Approaching a big cove, we run out of territory to scour and are about to give up when Ed Philsinger yells, "Tux, here's one of those cats!"

'Out-Hounds' the Hounds.

"HE HOLDS his light on a tree top near the water where the beam found the lynx. A pair of eyes peer down angrily from a ball of striped and spotted fur perched in a high crotch. Ed, sweeping the trees with his light, had outhounded the dogs, which came trooping in later to bark a little.

The cat, weighing around 18 pounds, was the first killed in the region in a long time. Ira Crabtree, a native of the hills, never saw one, although he remembers when a panther was killed in the same district.

"Besides being known as the bay lynx (lynx rufus) the cat operates under the aliases of red lynx, wildcat and bobcat and is found in many states. It is about the size of the Canada lynx."

Big Mouth Black Bass.

IN ONE area of the United States that master of the "fin dance," the big-mouth black bass, has not been exploited and still flourishes, for the most part never lured by feathers.

This is the great "black water" country of the Old South.

It stretches over the southern part of South Carolina, across South Georgia, takes in virtually all of Florida, the Southern regions of Alabama and Mississippi and reaches over into Louisiana.

There are relatively few sportsmen who know that some of the finest bass fishing on the continent can be found with little effort and within hailing distance of railroad or highway in the Old South.

Recently some observant sportsmen have begun giving it some thought, and, particularly in Georgia, something is being done about it.

Zack D. Cravey, Georgia Game and Fish Commissioner, has announced that this spring he plans to send a rod-and-camera expedition to "explore" the waters of his own State.

The "explorer," Chief Clerk Louis Wright of the Georgia Game and Fish Department, plans an extensive tour of the southern quarter of his State, fishing and photographing.

Wright has fly fished the Ogeechee and writes of the "dynamite" that exploded in his face when a fine bigmouth struck his lure.

Tarpon Fishing.

A GREAT, silvery fish leaps skyward, shimmers a moment in the sun glare and returns to battle. To novices having a go at sea angling for the first time, the beauty and thrill of that flash over blue water may make them forget momentarily that on the end of the line is a king of the deep—the tarpon.

There will be newcomers, of course. And by next year these recruits will be returning veterans. There is perhaps no sport in the world that converts one so quickly and completely. Many of these fishermen, old and new at the game, will head for Port Aransas, Texas, where right now guides are overhauling boats and gear for the 1936 season.

The first time a reel whines with the vicious rush of a big fish there is a new tarpon enthusiast. It is a fight that requires finesse as well as stamina. Imagine a fish weighing 100 pounds or more being brought to boat on an 18-pound test line. The thrills provided are enough to send addicts to the far corners of the earth.

STELLA WALSH TO PLAY TODAY IN BASKET GAME AT MAPLEWOOD

Stella Walsh, Polish Olympic track and field star, surrounded by a team that has won 14 consecutive games, will oppose the Shaw-Stephens American Legion five of Maplewood this afternoon on the Maplewood Senior High court.

At 1:45 p. m. the program will open with a men's game between the Young Democrats of the Muny League and the Hi-Pointe five. A second men's game, involving the Polish Falcons and the Muny champion Royal Hearts, will bring the affair to a close, following the girls' contest.

According to Commander Leslie Evans of the Shaw-Stephens Post, it is a mere coincidence that Miss Walsh will appear here in the role of a basketball player only three days before the National A. A. U. women's track and field meet, an invitation for which Stella has turned down.

Miss Walsh, who has played forward regularly for the Blepps-Coombs team for several seasons, is reported to be a star basketball player.

Another important player in the Blepps-Coombs lineup will be Mary Doljack, sister of the former Detroit outfielder. Mary is one of Cleveland's greatest allround girl athletes. The rest of the squad will be composed of Frances Sobczak, center; Catherine Benda, forward; Jean Simms, guard; Mary Bennett, forward; Ann Smith, guard, and Rose Grueza.

Probable lineups:

SHAW-STEPHENS.	Pos.	BLEPPS-COOMBS.
M. Dueker (2)	R. F.	Stella Walsh (8)
Mertensmeyer (3)	L. F.	Mary Bennett (10)
Moon (13)	C.	Frances Sobczak (11)
Rudis (6)	R. G.	Mary (Whitey) Doljack (7)
McGuigan (11)	L. G.	Jean Simms (5)

Reserves: Shaw-Stephens — Carpentier (77), D. Dueker (5), K. Dueker (7), De Greef (8), Rogers (9), Frillman (10), Anderson (12); Blepps-Coombs—Catherine Benda (6), Ann Smith (3), Mildred Benyes (12), Rose Grueza (4).

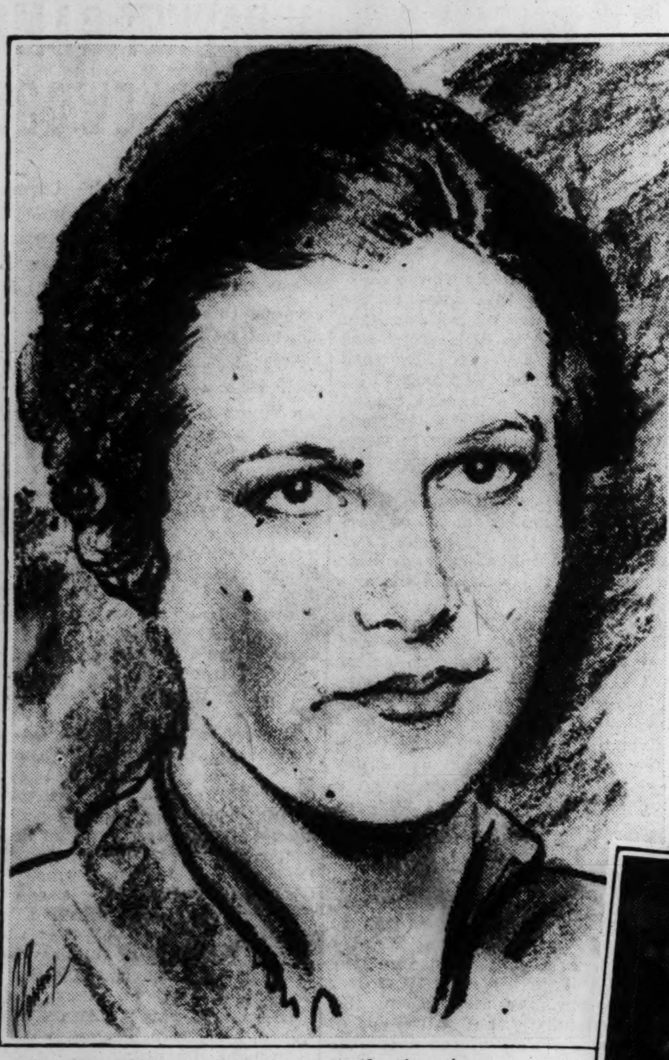
DRAMA-MUSIC-MOVIES



Cornelia Otis Skinner who returns to the American Theater tomorrow night.

Cornelia Otis Skinner

Returns in One-Woman Show

CORNELIA OTIS SKINNER, whose visits to the American Theater have become annual affairs, returns tomorrow night for the first of four programs of dramatic monologues. Her two long plays this year are "Mansion on the Hudson" and "The Wives of Henry VIII," both of which have been presented here before.

"Mansion on the Hudson," depicting the women who successively rule over a large New York estate, will be given tomorrow and Tuesday evenings and at the Wednesday matinee. Accompanying it on each occasion will be the new monologue, "Christmas Morning," relating the humorous and human happenings on that occasion, and "Luxury Shop," which assembles the clients of a fashionable French modiste. "The Wives of Henry VIII" will be accompanied by "The Vanishing Red Man," a new sketch which Miss Skinner has written, to report the experiences of a clubwoman of the Southwest. All the monologues, incidentally, are of Miss Skinner's authorship.

Although she had stage experience with a regular theatrical company early in her career, the actress long ago established herself as an individual performer. So used is she to having the stage all to herself that last summer at rehearsals of "Candida," which she played with a White Plains (N. Y.) stock company, she found herself creating a general atmosphere of stampede by breaking in on cues of other players.

As a consequence, she is sticking to one-woman dramatics, and her distinguished actor-father, Otis Skinner, is following in her footsteps this season. On his lecture tour, which included the Principia in St. Louis, he has given dramatic readings from his successful vehicles in the past. The father and daughter, despite efforts of booking offices to keep them apart, played in Fort Worth, Tex., recently on the same day.

In both "Mansion on the Hudson" and "The Wives of Henry VIII," Miss Skinner depicts six women, with full change of costume for each individual. "Mansion on the Hudson" runs for nearly an hour and a quarter, with the actress on the stage an hour and three minutes of that time. Costume changes are made in a maximum of two minutes, the lapses being filled in with musical selections.

The next definite booking at the American after this week appears to be Walter Hampden in "Cyrano de Bergerac" for March 9, 10 and 11.

Lovely Distances Of Los Angeles Are Studio Worry

By H. H. NIEMEYER

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 8.

LOS ANGELES is a city of magnificent distance. Biggest city in the world, geographically, according to the local Chamber of Commerce, which takes time out from talking about the climate every now and then to broadcast other "firsts." Lately, with most of the rest of the country deep in snow and southern Californians fighting off the heat, the conversation and the pamphlets have been given over pretty much to the weather. But they do have a lot of distance out here. The studios are miles and miles apart and transportation, unless you roll your own, is rather poor. That's one reason we dare say why you never hear any Angelino bragging about his street cars.

So the visitors must have their minds kept off the transportation thing. Everyone who rates any attention at all is never allowed to suffer. The casual visitor, who looks important, is taken care of by the real estate interests who have something pretty snappy in the way of a hillside lot to sell. Ready cash visitors have the gold mine sellers to fall back upon for long rides up into the mountains, but it is really the big studios which have the transportation question down to an exact science.

You see, it is rather important that visiting newspaper people who might, later, have a chance to write a little piece for their papers about the size of the waves provided for a "Mutiny on the Bounty" or the number of tumble-weeds used in a "Petrified Forest," be well taken care of. "A studio car will be at your hotel at 8:30," the scribe is told. And it's there, if not with bells on, at least with a high polish and a chauffeur dressed up like a cinema palace doorman.

But taking care of visitors is only a small part of the studio transportation question. Practically unknown and unsung, it is one of the important cogs in the picture-making industry. Companies with oodles of actors have to transport them to "location." Stars must have cars when they demand them.

BACK of the stages on the Paramount lot is an office where ennui is practically unknown. Therein is a mass of telephones which keep ringing pretty constantly day and night. Whatever the call is, the answering clerk takes it as a matter of course. Surprise and shock are unknown. If someone wants a car to take a trained cobra out into the country for a screen test, or if Mae West needs transportation for herself or her pet Scottie or her colored maid, it causes no comment. The request is recorded, a chauffeur is handed a note with direction and dashes out to the garage for a truck or a sedan,

They call it the fetch-and-carry office around the studio. One Mr. Joe Robbins is its chief, and when he isn't at a telephone himself he is out in the machine shop building another car. His fleet at the moment consists of 20 trucks, 25 passenger cars and a half-dozen busses. The latter are used to carry the extra people and bit players to and from location. In an emergency he knows where he can rent as many more vehicles as may be called for. Once, with three or four pictures being made at one time outside the studio, he had 200 cars of one sort or another under his command.

It's funny, but nothing—well, practically nothing—ever happens to a studio car. Five or six years ago one of Mr. Robbins' trucks got run into by a city garbage wagon. The studio driver was so ashamed that he quit his job and it is considered lese majeste, or something to refer to this incident. Robbins says that his regular cars have gone several million miles—7,500,000, we believe he said, but then, remember, he is a studio man and his department is closely allied with the publicity department—with only $50 worth of damage.

As a matter of fact, that isn't as impossible as it sounds, for all of the studios have their transportation units mechanically set so as not to exceed 43 miles an hour, which keeps 'em under the legal speed of 45.

The drivers are ready at all times to hop off for anywhere on no notice at all. To Mexico City; to a jungle below the border; to New York or Salt Lake. They usually keep a spare toothbrush and a collar on hand in case of formal job like taking Miss West or Marlene Dietrich somewhere.

FOR the top-notch passengers there is a fancy line of limousines with French horns, gardenias and what not. But any driver will do, for they are all handy at any job. Some of them have been at the studio for 15 years.

Last summer, after one of them had taken Claudette Colbert a couple of hundred miles, he came back and was given the job to haul three elephants into the mountains for a scene in a new musical. Not in the same car which had served for Claudette, of course. Far out in the wilderness when the truck was skirting a cliff, the elephants began to weave. With their eyes closed, they swayed in rhythm from side to side. It's rather dangerous, but it seems elephants do that whenever they get dreamy and homesick for India.

The driver climbed over and banged them on the toes with a crank and requested them to stop. Now, elephants prefer Hindu language, but they understand, also, the kind of English usually reserved for hard-boiled army mules. They stopped.

At some time or other, every one of Robbins' drivers has been to Death Valley. A rather unpleasant trip in mid-August. Most of 'em have been snowed in at Truckee and Lake Arrowhead, too, but Death Valley in the summer is considered the worst trip. Winds and sand blast the varnish off the trucks then and the tires are always blowing out.

Another tough assignment is carrying lunches to the companies that are working on location. If the company happens to be within a couple of hours of Hollywood the meals are sent out from here. That's Robbins' job. He has shipped as many as 1000 box lunches at a time. The tough part comes when the driver is held up somewhere by a puncture or something. The pleasantest of actors, the least temperamental of directors and the easiest pleased stage crews have been known to become raging maniacs because their lunches were 20 minutes late.

So, you see, making motion pictures is a complicated business. There is a lot to it that the public doesn't know about besides turning a camera crank. Transportation is one of the big problems. We'll tell you about some of the others at another time.

Margaret Sullavan and Ronnie Cosbey in "Next Time We Love," at the Ambassador.

New "Follies" Broadway Hit

The second "Ziegfeld Follies" which the Shuberts have taken to Broadway is living up to the "Ziegfeld tradition." In its second week at the Winter Garden, it has been a sell-out since opening, despite cancelation of two performances when Fannie Brice, the topmost star, developed laryngitis. The newest revue to use the celebrated name makes many bows to the great producer's methods. Tall, languorous showgirls, dressed, rather than undressed as Ziegfeld would have had them; spectacles of color and trick staging, and plentiful satire on institutions and persons. Fannie gives the audience new editions of the problem child, burlesqued modernistic dances, and her eye-rolling species of drollery. Gertrude Niesen and Duke McHale of last season's Municipal Opera, Harriet Hoctor, Hugh O'Connell and Josephine Baker are the "names" in the cast.

Brahms' First Symphony to Be Played This Week

BRAHMS' First Symphony will be featured on the all-orchestral program of the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra on Friday afternoon and Saturday evening, under the direction of Vladimir Golschmann.

The First Symphony, also known as the C Minor Symphony, was completed in September, 1876, after Brahms had worked for 18 years on it. First performed at Carlsruhe in November of the same year, it met hostile criticism, and was even hissed a year later at Munich. Critics in this country brushed aside its importance when they heard it in 1878. Today it is indisputably among the great symphonic creations.

Golschmann has selected Mozart's Cassation No. 2 in B flat, never performed in St. Louis before, to open the program. Developed from a series of dances and closely resembling the serenade in form, the Cassation was written when Mozart was 10 years old, and the marvel of the age.

The second and third numbers on the program are Debussy's Prelude to "L'Apres Midi d'un Faune," composed in 1892 and one of the most popular works in modern music, and Tschaikowsky's Overture—Fantasia, "Romeo and Juliet."

At Orchestral Hall in Chicago next Sunday afternoon, the St. Louis Symphony will give the first concert of its second tour of the season, which includes eight other cities in Illinois, Iowa and Missouri. Brahms' First Symphony will be the major offering in Chicago. The next regular concerts here will take place Feb. 28 and 29, with Scipione Guidi, concertmaster, as soloist and Golschmann conducting.

This week's program in detail:

Jooss Ballet At Opera House Tuesday Night

The Jooss European Ballet, now on its first American tour, will be presented at the Municipal Auditorium Opera House Tuesday evening by the Civic Music League, as the fourth attraction of its current season.

Virtually unknown until 1932, the director of the ballet, Kurt Jooss (pronounced "Yohs") became famous by winning first prize in the contest of the Paris Archives Internationale de la Dance. His presentation was "The Green Table," a satire on the League of Nations, which is on the program here.

Jooss' creations incorporate satire, wit, romance and realism, approaching the dramatic form, yet in the language of bodily rhythm. "The Big City," also on the program here, is to the music of Alexander Tansman in "Transatlantic Sonatine," a style comparable to that of American jazz. Two other ballets here will be "A Ball in Old Vienna," featuring the waltzes of Joseph Lanner, a contemporary and rival of Johann Strauss and "Ballade," recreating the old French court, to the music of an old French folk melody in free variations. Musical interludes during the program will be played on two pianos by F. A. Cohen and John Colman.

Vienna Choir Boys' Program Next Sunday

The program to be presented by the Vienna Choir Boys, at the Municipal Auditorium Opera House at 3 o'clock next Sunday afternoon, will be built around a one-act comic operetta, "Reconciliation," by Mozart, who once directed the organization himself. Both male and female roles are taken by the boys, ranging from the ages of 8 to 14 years old, with elaborate costuming. The full program for the choir is:

Hepleti sunt (for eight parts)—Jacobus Gallus (1550-91)
Tenebrae Factae sunt
Da Vittoria (1548-1613)
O Salutaris Hostia—J. Nascus (1560-1600)
"Reconciliation"
(One-act operetta by Mozart.)
From "The Magic Flute" — — — Mozart
(Excerpts from Finale of Act II.)
Lullaby — — — — — — — Brahms
The Nightingale — — — — — — Schubert
Roses from the South (waltz) — Strauss

Harold Lloyd, tiger of the prize rings, "The Milky Way," Shubert.

"Ode to Liberty" As Little Theater Special

"Ode to Liberty," Sidney Howard adaptation of a French satire and the play in which Ina Claire appeared on Broadway and a road tour last season, will be played by the Little Theater in six special performances, beginning March 16, under sponsorship of the League of Women Voters. Depicting a situation in which a wealthy woman hides a fugitive Communist in her house, it is characterized by frothy discussion of the political philosophies of today. General tryouts, in preparation for the casting of "Ode to Liberty" and "The Cherry Orchard" will be held at the Little Theater at 8 o'clock tonight.

St. Luke's Musical Tonight.

St. Luke's Dramatic Society will present "Paddy, the Next Best Thing," musical adaptation of the popular comedy, at the American Theater at 8:15 o'clock tonight. The cast is headed by Louise Bawn and Joe Kenney.

Fredric March as Bothwell.

Fredric March will play the Earl of Bothwell opposite Katharine Hepburn in the screen version of "Mary of Scotland," soon to go into production.

"Rose Marie" Changed For Better on Screen

Popular Operetta Has New Atmosphere With Outdoor Setting, Real Indians—Friml Music Retained in Picture Now at Loew's.

By COLVIN McPHERSON.

THE splendid thing about "Rose Marie" at Loew's is the way in which the producers have gone beyond the limitations of the stage to realize the inspiration that conceivably belonged to Otto Harbach and Oscar Hammerstein II, when they wrote the original book. For "Rose Marie" is now a music drama of the big North woods, pure and simple. The welcome Friml melodies come back so clear in the sharp, aromatic air that they shake off the disuse of the latest decade. Lakes, trees, trails, echoes—the new "Rose Marie" is made up of these. And when the "Totem Tom-Tom" number is staged, it is done by real Indians, a horde of them, and they go into one of the biggest stomps it has ever been the privilege of cinemagoers to see. No mere spectacle, mind you, but something genuinely interpretive and with an eagle dance worthy of some great artist, say Ted Shawn. What matter, then, if Hard-Boiled Herman, Wanda and a whole armload of indoors fol-de-rol have been tossed in the crystal waters of Lake Tahoe, State of California? The spirit of "Rose Marie" is there, and of all versions I have ever seen or heard, I take this one. "Rose Marie" herself now is an opera singer, a temperamental terror who flirts with the Governor-General of Canada and the assembled Canucks in Montreal, but finds she has a little home-work in her own backyard, since her brother has killed a man or some such thing. So she sets out to find him, away away off somewhere. And Nelson Eddy of the Canadian Mounted Police, is out to get his man. Same man. Circumstances and screen play writers conspire, therefore, to have Jeanette and Nelson eating beans together on an unchaperoned tour of the tall timber. The brother is found, law surmounting love, and Nelson presumably takes him off to meet the fate of Danny Deever. Certainly, there are no better voices for the sound track than those of MacDonald and Eddy. Even if the story doesn't always make sense, even if some process shots (Nelson and the Mounties singing) don't hook up half well, even if Miss MacDonald has to undergo one of those cafe competitions, such as Grace Moore and Lily Pons have already suffered, "Rose Marie" is more than 90 per cent a grand motion picture. In observance of Lincoln's birthday, Loew's is showing a Chic Sale reading of Mary Raymond Shipman Andrews' familiar "Perfect Tribute," fiction story of the Gettysburg Address.

THE MILKY WAY. Whenever a picture directed by Leo McCarey comes to the screen, I, for one, expect it to be uproariously funny. For the comedy genius whose "Ruggles of Red Gap" won many honors last year, sets a pace that sooner or later has every member of the cast running wild. "The Milky Way," at the Shubert, is no exception. It is lavishly amusing every minute after the ice is first broken. With all respect for Harold Lloyd, Adolphe Menjou, Verree Teasdale and Lionel Stander, the mirth is not primarily due to them, or to the screen story. In fact, "The Milky Way" is nothing more than the tale of a mama's boy who becomes a prizefighter. Yet McCarey makes everything and everybody worth a laugh, with no let-up. Even dainty little Helen Mack, late in the picture, can make a face and rock the house. Best of all is a sequence where Lloyd, hiding a colt in a taxicab, whinnies for the driver, to quiet suspicion. It has never been topped. After the "Milky Way" or before—it makes no difference—is a second picture called, "Another Face," which falls flat by comparison.

NEXT TIME WE LOVE. Without Margaret Sullavan as the star, the Ambassador picture, "Next Time We Love," doubtless would seem far less sensible. With Miss Sullavan, one of the few real actresses among the younger women on the screen, it becomes plausible, even emotionally strong. The subject of the narrative is the difficulties which arise when two successes happen in the same family. Miss Sullavan wins fame as an actress, her husband, James Stewart, as a foreign press correspondent. They are separated for years at a time and finally reunited only with Stewart at death's door. Not highly involved, "Next Time We Love" still keeps a sustained interest. The Ambassador's second picture, "Waterfront Lady," shows a refined, well-dressed girl living with her dear old drunken dad among the docks. And a young man, leaping from the law into the ocean, comes up nearby. You guessed it, romance.

KING OF THE DAMNED. A well-staged, although not unduly exciting, prison drama is being run off at the Fox. "King of the Damned" comes from British studios, with a cast composed of British actors and two American export stars, Helen Vinson and Noah Beery. The locale is a jungle island in the Caribbean, where rascally governors are exploiting convict labor for private gain. In such a sorry state, Convict "83," Conrad Veidt, becomes the man of destiny. A bloody revolt and the prison falls to his efficient administration. But retribution comes in the form of a British cruiser. More fighting and a lawful, but hopeful, solution. The atmosphere of the picture is convincing, even if the plot is not. "Whispering Smith Speaks," the second film, is one of those in which a son goes out on his own, in the railroad business, and shows his father a trick or two.

THE LADY CONSENTS. The Ann Harding-Herbert Marshall affair at the Orpheum is likely to fool you for a reel or two. For it starts out being enormously clever, with fresh, delightful dialogue and interesting situations. It is, I might add, about a wife and a husband, and another woman. After a while, "The Lady Consents" becomes just a great many interesting situations with very slight logic. And the way out comes as a complete surprise, both to the audience and the principals. "It's a Great Life," the second picture, brings the CCC boys to the screen. The only important ones are Joe Morrison and Paul Kelly.

REALTY MARKET'S VARIOUS GAINS IN 1935 SET FORTH

SHORTAGE EXISTS IN SINGLE DWELLINGS

Rents Are Up Ten Per Cent Over Those of 1934 in Three Out of Four of Every Urban Center.

Twenty-sixth semiannual survey of real estate market shows selling prices higher in every section; gives first general measure of rent rise. Majority of cities show business property rates up; first such report in 10 years where lower interest rates have penetrated, there is the new home building.

Decided upturn for real estate in every section of the country, with earning power of existing buildings—index of real estate health—measurably rising is top news of the Twenty-Sixth Semiannual Survey of the Real Estate Market released today.

The survey, covering 275 cities, is made by the National Association of Real Estate Boards from confidential reports by its local member boards.

It finds notable:

A. Dominance of the factor of favorable mortgage supply as affecting amount of new home building. People who are ready to build a house can in many communities get a mortgage loan at interest costs perhaps 1 per cent lower than last year, and on terms that enable them to take advantage of land prices before they rise further. In these communities new roofs are rising by the fifties, even the hundreds.

Many communities still report that only the borrower who needs no more than a 50 per cent loan finds any financing source open.

B. Wide variations in degree of real estate's recovery as between communities where distressed properties have been dumped and those where the market has had orderly management.

Principal Elements of Market.

The following are the principal elements of the market as shown in the 275 cities:

1. Real estate is selling at prices higher than a year ago in 60 per cent of the cities of the country. The rise has reached 82 per cent of the very largest cities.

2. Turnover is more rapid than a year ago in 91 per cent of all cities over the 100,000 population mark,

85 NEW INDUSTRIAL FIRMS IN CITY IN 1935

114 Others Made Expansions; Total Investment Involved $10,924,000.

Industrial investments totaling $10,924,300 resulted from the establishment of 85 new companies and expansions by 114 established concerns in the St. Louis industrial district in 1935, according to the annual review issued yesterday by the Industrial and Research bureaus of the Chamber of Commerce. The industrial capital invested was $3,801,350, or 53.4 per cent greater than for 1934.

The number of new companies established in 1935 represented a 16.7 per cent decrease compared with 1934, and 114 established industries making expansions compared with 120 in 1934. Additional employes required as a result of new industries and expansions in 1935 totaled 1873, compared with 8052 in 1934.

Construction, or proposals for the construction, of new factory and warehouse floor space dropped below the previous year, amounting to 529,400 square feet in 1935, compared to 878,250 square feet in 1934, a decline of 39.7 per cent. Existing floor space absorbed totaled 1,700,820 square feet, compared with 1,766,228 in 1934.

An analysis of 1935 showed the new industries established to be made up of 12 general types. The food and beverage industry led, with the establishment of 14 concerns. Others in order were: Drugs, chemicals and allied products, 8; clothing, 8; building materials and supplies, 7; furniture fixtures and office supplies, 6; machinery and tools, 6; shoes and shoe findings, 4; printing, publishing and allied arts, 4; packaging companies, 3; rubber products, 3; stokers, 1; steel and iron warehouse, 1; miscellaneous, 20.

HOLC'S $300,000,000 UNDER NEW RULING

It Was Allotted That Amount for Building and Loan Organizations by Congress.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.—HOLC officials expect to hold in reserve their full power to invest $300,000,000 in building and loan organizations, as authorized in the last session of Congress, whatever is done about unused authorization for mortgage refunding.

So far only about $20,000,000 has been used. But officials explained that expansion in building might bring many calls for additional capital from private lending institutions.

The HOLC was authorized to sell its obligations in the market to raise the money for investment in building loan organizations.

and in 85 per cent of all cities surveyed, great and small.

3. Shortage of single family dwellings exists in two out of every three cities reporting.

4. Rents—index of how close we are getting to any appreciable volume of new construction, are coming out of the subcellar. For apartments they are up 10 per cent over last year in approximately three out of every four cities reporting and up 15 per cent in one-third of the cities. They are rising in 76 per cent of all cities surveyed. But apartment rates even in major cities still are less than 60 per cent of the level prevailing in 1926.

Detached houses, even more generally than apartment, show rents risen. They went up 10 per cent or more in 83 per cent of the cities and are up 15 per cent in one out of every three cities. They now are within 20 per cent of the 1926 level.

Central business property is leasing at higher rates than a year ago in 54 per cent of the cities, the first time in 10 years of these semi-annual surveys that a majority of cities report such a trend.

5. Actual interest rates at which first mortgage loans on new moderate priced homes now are commonly being made range as low as 5 per cent in 14 per cent of communities reporting. Six months ago only 2 per cent of cities reported this rate as yet come into existence.

No city of over 100,000 population, whatever its geographical section, now shows its common rate on first mortgage home loans as over 7 per cent.

Changes in Residential Rents.

In the present survey the association for the first time asked its member boards to report on percentage of change up or down in residential rents. Summary above is from these quantitative reports, received as follows:

From 212 cities which undertook to measure their up trend and seven measuring their down trend in single family dwellings.

From 187 cities measuring degree of rise and six measuring their decline, still going on, in apartment rents.

Apartments Being Absorbed.

The shortage of single-family dwellings shown in 66 per cent of the citiess reporting is the most significant fact in the immediate outlook for new construction, and one of the basic factors of the whole recovery situation. But apartment buildings have shown the most general change in space absorption. Actual shortage of apartment units is now reported by 43 per cent of the cities, whereas only 29 per cent so reported six months ago.

Only 2 per cent of cities stiill show overbuilding in single-family houses. But shortage here is not more general than was reported six months ago, when it was shown in 69 per cent of cities. At least one city states new building has already eased the shortage.

Shortage both of houses and of apartments has come to be more general in cities under than in cities over the 500,000 population mark.

A small group of cities—9 per cent of those reporting—already show shortage of business property.

Business Space Rates.

Most striking new development shown by the survey is the fact that rents for business space in the central business districts—cold turkey measure of the judgment of individual firms in general business as to their own future—are up in 54 per cent of the cities replying. Only 22 per cent of cities showed an up trend of central business property rates a year ago. The present is tthe first semi-annual survey of the association since that of December, 1924—that is to say the first in 10 years—in which a majority of cities show this trend.

For outlying districts business property rents are still at last year's level in 70 per cent of cities replying, higher in only 27 per cent of cities.

Downtown office space is renting at approximately last year's rates in 75 per cent of the 275 cities, but has moved up in 23 per cent of them. In outlying districts the change is slower, with 83 per cent of cities showing last year's rate, only 13 per cent showing a gain.

For either business property space or office space only two—4 per cent of cities show any lower rate.

No city of over 200,000 population shows rents down for either central or outlying business property.

Subdivision Market Active.

Market for home sites is more active than a year ago in 90 per cent of cities over 500,000 population, at about last year's level in 10 per cent of these cities. Not a one reports a less active market. For the country as a whole the market in vacant subdivision lots is more active than last year in 46 per cent of cities reporting, about on last year's level in 47 per cent of the cities.

How general is the completely changed condition in real estate money supply is shown by the fact that 67 per cent of cities now report capital seeking real estate mortgage investment whereas in only 21 per cent of cities are mortgage loans seeking capital. Well over a majority of cities in every geographical section show capital seeking loans, and under 5 per cent of cities of over 100,000 population show loans seeking capital.

The largest cities (over 500,000 population) still have the most general capital supply. In 91 per cent of them capital is seeking investment, whereas in none of them are loans seeking capital. Nine per cent show equilibrium of supply-demand.

More than 90 per cent of cities in every population group above the 100,000 mark show capital seeking mortgage loans rather than loans seeking capital.

Interest rates are falling in 47 per cent of the 275 cities, are steady in 50 per cent of the cities, are rising in only 3 per cent of the cities. More geographical variation is shown here than is shown by any other market factor measured in the survey. For example, in the East South Central section 100 per cent of cities show falling rates as against 24 per cent of Middle Atlantic cities, 67 per cent of cities in the mountain section, and 42 per cent of Pacific section cities so reporting. A very dominant proportion of cities above the 100,000 population rank show rates going down. Not one reports rates going up.

WINDOW ART DISPLAY CONCERN ENLARGES ITS QUARTERS

The concern now occupies the second and third floors of the building. The enlarged quarters will comprise 8000 square feet. The concern designs and manufactures window displays for chain stores.

The building is owned by the Edward S. Robert estate. Arthur S. Martin & Son represented all parties to the lease.

FORECLOSURES CONTINUE TO SHOW DOWNWARD TREND

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.—Real estate foreclosures from communities having more than half the population of the country, as compiled by the Home Loan Board, totaled 13,221 in December, against nearly 18,000 in the same month of 1934, accentuating the recent downward trend.

As result of the substantial decline in the last half of 1935, the monthly average fell to 15,780 from 16,116 in 1934 and 17,417 in 1933.

IT'S OUR BUSINESS
To tell you what we consider good buys. We have the key to an exceptionally well-built brick residence, having tile bath with shower and hot-water heat; located between Bristol and high schools. We think the house alone cost over $10,000 to build and it is in good condition. The bare ground is probably worth $10,000, because there are two 100-foot lots. (The house is on one lot, so the other lot could be sold off if desired.) Yet we can probably sell this choice property for $10,500. Key at

POLICE JUDGE SIMPSON ON TRAFFIC PROBLEMS

Would Have One Court Handle All Auto Cases, He Says in Report to Mayor.

Police Judge Joseph Simpson, in a report submitted to Mayor Dickmann yesterday, suggested that one of the City Courts should be devoted entirely to traffic and should handle all the traffic cases, and the other court could handle all the other violations of city ordinances. "In this way," the report said, "enforcement would be uniform throughout the city. The responsibility for proper enforcement would be centered in a single person—the Judge of that court."

In referring to the enforcement of the drivers' license ordinance, Judge Simpson suggested, "Plans should be immediately made to check the conduct of persons whose licenses have been suspended or revoked, to find whether or not they are violating that punishment. Beat policemen should be informed of violators on their beats and should observe the conduct of those whose licenses have been withdrawn."

"Someone has said," the report continues, "that the police court to the average person is the supreme court of the land. Perhaps he will never be in another court in his whole lifetime. If he is properly impressed here, then his respect for the whole structure of all courts in our land will be indelibly imprinted upon him." For this reason, "I suggest that the physical surroundings in City Court No. 1 be bettered in keeping with the suggestion of the reports of past grand juries. In view of the fact that the average defendant is a decent citizen and appearing for the first time in any court, the atmosphere of cleanliness, at least, should be present." Judge Simpson continued he did not know whether the court had ever been cleaned or painted as suggested it could be, and the lighting could be improved and the cells overhauled.

The Traffic Problem.

Discussing the traffic problem, Judge Simpson said, to the best of his observation, it was divided into three essentials—education, engineering and enforcement.

So far as education went Judge Simpson found that groups such as the Traffic Council and the Automobile Club were aiding in making the citizens conscious of the traffic problem. "School children are at present better fitted to cope with the traffic conditions than are adults. I believe the greater part of the present educational work should be devoted to the adults."

The report pointed out there had been no traffic engineering survey of the city for several years with the result that there is no unity in the present control of traffic. He cited as examples that at one point in the city a driver may go both to the right and left of a safety zone, and at another point, he may go only to the right of the zone. "Again at certain points the left turn light precedes the go light and at another point the order is inverted."

Suggestions on Traffic.

Judge Simpson suggested the following as effective aids to the traffic problem: turn on all the street lights at intersections; on wide thoroughfares place stop signs on pedestals in the center of the street; replace all signs in need of repair with new signs that will attract attention at night and place them low enough so that he headlighs of an automobile show them up; pass an ordinance prohibiting the operation of mechanically defective automobiles; remove many of the existing stop signs and strict enforcement of those that remain; place stop signs on all signals which do not operate 24 hours a day so that traffic will be controlled when the signal is turned off; enact legislation which would compel pedestrians to obey the directions of officers and electric signals, and start co-operation metween the Traffic Inspection Department and the police court judges.

The report stated that Judge Simpson had tried 28,624 traffic cases during 1935. Fines collected totaled $72,367. During 1932 $56,737 was collected in Police Court No. One, $42,552 in 1933 and $23,523 in 1934.

FINED ON WOMEN'S COMPLAINT

Roy Pendergast Accused of Striking Pair; He Appeals.

Roy Pendergast, a railroad brakeman, 6707 Fyler avenue, was fined $100 by Police Judge Joseph Simpson yesterday on charges of peace disturbance preferred by Miss Viola Berg and her sister, Margaret, both of 6739 Marquette avenue.

The women testified he struck them as they passed an alley on Ivanhoe avenue near their home last Jan. 23, and fled when they screamed. Several defense witnesses testified as to Pendergast's good reputation and others supported his alibi that he was in a confectionery in the neighborhood at the time. He appealed.

HARVARD SEEKS DONATION FROM NAZI IT REBUFFED

Form Letter Sent by Mistake to Aluminus Hanfstaengl, Whose Gift Was Rejected.

By the Associated Press.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Feb. 8.—Harvard University, which in 1934 refused a $1000 gift from Dr. Ernest F. S. Hanfstaengl, aid of Reichsfuehrer Hitler of Germany, awaited today his reply to a form-letter appeal for contributions sent to him inadvertently as one of 67,000 alumni.

The appeal was for contributions to a 300th anniversary fund to establish professorships and scholarships. President James B. Conant of Harvard declined a donation from Hanfstaengl to permit an American student to study at Munich because he said it came "from one who has been so closely associated with the leadership of a political party which has inflicted damage on the universities of Germany."

RELIEF REQUESTS RISE IN ST. CLAIR COUNTY

More in December and January Than in Any Other Two-Month Period.

The number of families applying for aid to the St. Clair County Emergency Relief Committee in December and January was larger than the number for any other two-month period since the committee was organized, George M. Curry, County Relief Administrator, reported yesterday. During these two months 2425 families made application, and of these 951 were accepted, following investigations of factory payrolls to discover other possible income.

Commenting on this upward trend in the number of applicants for aid, Curry attributed it to seasonal lay-offs in industry, to complete exhaustion of means of subsistence in families that have long managed to stay off relief, and to misguided attempts to obtain WPA employment. Many worthy applicants, Curry said, do not know that they must have been on relief prior to Nov. 1 to be eligible for WPA jobs.

About 67 per cent of families added last month to relief rolls, Curry said, had been on relief before, having been compelled to seek ai dafter a short period of re-employment. Previously about 50 per cent of the additions were reopened cases.

Relief Given in January.

A total of 4698 families, representing 14,468 persons, received aid in January, which closed with 4478 families on the relief rolls. Employment by the WPA removed 1460 families, while employment in private industry and other causes accounted for an additional 221.

Curry expressed disappointment at the results of the WPA employment program, recalling that the WPA proposed to eliminate the necessity for relief by last Dec. 1. It is anticipated that an additional 1500 families will be removed by the WPA during February, Curry said, but even when this is done, there will still remain about 2900 families to be cared for, plus the accumulating additions of new cases, which are increasing sharply in volume.

Most of those on relief now and those applying are physically eligible for WPA employment, Curry said, but WPA regulations requiring that they must have been on relief prior to Nov. 1 prohibit placing them on WPA jobs, so that there can be no material reduction in the case load until the regulations are relaxed.

10 Men Refuse to Work.

Curry reported that only 10 men assigned to WPA jobs have refused to work. When relief visitors questioned these men and explained that their families would be summarily cut off relief for their refusal, they consented to go to work. To date, Curry said, it has not been necessary to strike any family off the relief rolls because of the refusal of the wage-earning member to work.

Fred G. Austin, District WPA Administrator, reported that, as of Jan. 31, 5923 men and women from county relief rolls were at work on 35 WPA undertakings.

WOMAN DRIVER SENT TO JAIL

Judge Says She Is Equal to Man and Must Suffer Consequences.

CHICAGO, Feb. 8.—Judge Eugene McGarry sentenced Mrs. Mary Bogue, 35 years old, to five days in jail for reckless driving New Year's eve, with this remark:

"I regret very much to make an example of you, and I am reluctant to send a woman to jail, but modern women are the equal of men, smoke, drink and drive like men, and therefore must suffer the consequences." Mrs. Bogue when led to jail said: "I think the sentence is unfair. I neither smoke nor drink. I was driving only because I thought my husband had had too much to drink."

BRITISH TRY TO "SAVE" NAVAL CONFERENCE

Seek Compromise With French on Battleship Limits and German Participation.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON Feb. 8.—British compromise moves have been made in an effort to "save" the international naval conference, it was said tonight.

The British action is directed particularly at the French stand against large battleships and against the participation by Germany in naval treaty discussions.

The British were said to have assured American delegates to the conference that they would stand firm behind the proposal of a 35,000-ton maximum for battleships.

The British were reported to be willing to give in somewhat on their plans to bring Germany into the conference if the French desist in their threat to break up the conference on the battleship issue.

American sources indicated they believed the French-British tangle would be adjusted.

The French have declared they would "blast away until the end" for a maximum of 27,500 tons on battleships. They have made their bargaining position stronger by saying that they are opposed to German adherence to any naval agreement which may be concluded after the conference is ended.

It is said that what the French really want to avoid is to have to sit at a conference table with Germans and sign with them.

11 MEN MAROONED IN BOAT CAUGHT IN OHIO RIVER ICE

They Have Food and Fuel in Craft for Five Days; Can't Be Reached Till Gorge Breaks.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

PADUCAH, Ky., Feb. 8.—Eleven men, members of a crew working on a Government project, were marooned in a quarterboat in the Ohio River just above Elizabethtown, Ill., tonight after 17 others had escaped through an ice choked river.

C. J. Rhodes, head of the United States Engineering office here, said there was no hope of reaching the men until after an ice gorge, backing miles up the river from Carrsville, Ky., goes out. Rhodes said the men had food and fuel enough to last five days. The men are: Charles Rayl, Vevay, Ind.; Lloyd Presser, Burlington, Ky.; William Becker, Cleves, O.; Samuel Orr, George L. Jeffries, Amos R. Clark, all of Paducah; Jewell Green, and Andrew Henderson, both of Brookport, Ill., and Otto Young, Uniontown, Ky.

The men had been working on a dike between Hurricane and Plew Islands in the Ohio River, seeking to divert flow of the river to the Illinois side of the channel. Late yesterday, Superintendent R. L. Ryan of Paducah, with 12 men, tried to reach the Illinois shore in a motor boat. They got within 100 feet, then were trapped by ice. The men, leaping from floe to floe, gained shore. Last night four of the remaining workers took a light skiff and worked their way through the heavy ice, dodging floes and finally gaining the Kentucky shore.

EUROPEAN WAR IS UNLIKELY FOR FIVE YEARS, BRITON SAYS

Sir Arthur Willert in Lecture Says England Has Put New Life in League.

European political problems must be solved before the economic troubles of the continent are remedied, Sir Arthur Willert, head of the bureau of public information of the British Foreign Office said in a lecture at Principia College, Elsah, Ill., last night.

Sir Arthur spoke on "England and the World Crisis," declaring that the British Empire, through an intelligent interest in world affairs, had put "new life" in to the League of Nations. He said that there was little danger of war in Europe, at least for the next five years.

He spoke under the auspices of the Principia concert and lecture course. He was at one time Washington correspondent of the London Times and during the World War was head of the British propaganda service.

TALMADGE USES SOFT PEDAL

Tones Down Attack on New Deal At Request of Realty Board.

By the Associated Press.

BALTIMORE, Feb. 8. — Gov. Eugene Talmadge of Georgia softpedalled his attacks on the administration tonight and contented himself by declaring that relief is not a government function and that the farmer only wants to be let alone.

Speaking before the Baltimore Real Estate Board, the Governor was greeted with shouts of "give 'em hell" when he arose to speak. Members of the board said they had asked him to tone down his remarks on the administration, however. "If about 95 per cent of his (the farmer's) friends got killed off," Talmadge said, "he could take care of himself. You know, they've been calling it the New Deal, but I thought a better name for it would be deuces wild."

John H. Carroll, Lumber Man, Dies

John H. Carroll, lumber dealer of Brookhaven, Miss., and former resident of St. Louis, died at Brookhaven yesterday of a cerebral hemorrhage. He was 50 years old. Mr. Carroll was in the lumber business here about 20 years ago. He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Margaret Carroll; a son, Joseph, and two sisters, Mrs. Thomas D. Cannon, 6400 Natural Bridge avenue, Pine Lawn, and Mrs. E. H. Robinson, 5652 Cates avenue.

VANDENBERG URGES RETURN TO "SQUARE DEAL" OF T. R.

Toastmaster at Grand Rapids Lincoln Day Dinner Opening Michigan Campaign.

By the Associated Press.

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., Feb. 8.—Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg (Rep.), Michigan, demanded a return to "the square deal" of President Theodore Roosevelt tonight at a Lincoln day dinner, attended by 3000 Republicans, which opened the 1936 Republican campaign in Michigan.

Vandenberg, mentioned as a presidential possibility, was toastmaster. He introduced Col. Theodore Roosevelt, son of the late President, and Dr. Glenn Frank, president of the University of Wisconsin, who spoke.

Vandenberg said that Lincoln had provided Republicans with a battle cry for 1936 when he said at Chicago, July 10, 1858: "Let us turn this Government back into the channel in which the framers of the Constitution originally placed it."

"The deal this greatest Roosevelt (former President Theodore Roosevelt) gave us was the square deal," he said, "and we want it back. It glorified the rugged rights of the individual, instead of reducing him to the status of an experimental guinea pig. It accepted social responsibility, but it fought Socialism, instead of nudging us along toward a red, regimented state. It gripped and throttled illegitimate monopoly instead of giving it a legal license to prey upon the people. It fought crooked politics and defended civil service, instead of prostituting exploited government to self-serving spoilsmanship."

BETTER TO BE ACTIVE THAN AFRAID, SAYS MRS. ROOSEVELT

Prefers Danger of "Spreading Oneself Too Thin" to Missing Life's Opportunities.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8. — Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt believes it's better to be active and criticised than to be afraid to face questions of the day. Speaking before a group of university women today, she urged them to inculcate in youth a "patriotism which is not nourished on fear."

Mrs. Roosevelt said there was danger in getting into too many things and therefore not excelling at anything, known as "spreading oneself to thin."

She argued, however, it was better to run the danger of doing too many things than to "come to an opportunity and find because you've never taken an interest you can't understand it."

She was warned not long ago, she said, that it was "unwise to go before a certain youth group" because they would "ask unpleasant and critical questions."

"We ought to be able to meet all young people and defend the things we believe in," she argued. "Open discussion between the rising generation and the older generation is a really important thing.

"I can't tell you how many times people say to me, 'You might be misunderstood,' 'You might be criticised.' If you were guided by that sort of thing, you'd never do anything. Even if you know you will be criticised, you may feel it is worth standing the criticism, worth even having people misunderstand. As they think it over, and keep on learning, they may change their minds, just as I have changed mine many times in the past."

4 KENTUCKY CONVICTS CAUGHT AND SIX OTHERS ESCAPE

First Group to Get Away Captured at Beattyville; Second Gang Still at Large.

By the Associated Press.

FRANKFORT, Ky., Feb. 8.—Warden Elmer Deatherage announced tonight that James Morris and three other convicts who escaped with him yesterday from the State Reformatory here have been recaptured and are being held at Beattyville. Deatherage said the fugitives would be returned in the morning.

Six more convicts escaped from the reformatory today after Gov. A. B. Chandler sent State police to reinforce the guards and ordered an investigation.

Gov. Chandler also went to the prison where he was greeted with cheers. He shook hands with the convicts, heard them complain of "raw dog" food, gave one convict some money and at their request went to the assembly hall to give a talk and hear the prison band play "Happy Days Are Here Again." The Governor promised them a fair deal and ordered eggs for the supper menu.

The four handcuffed a guard, slugged another, called a taxicab and drove off early yesterday. The six who fled today seized a truck load of chairs in the chair factory stockade, sounded the horn at the gate and drove out.

The four were captured without violence at a farm house near Beattyville late today by Lee County officers headed by Sheriff Charles Blount. The men were held in the county jail at Beattyville tonight.

MURDERER OF EX-WIFE AND TWO OFFICERS GETS DEATH

Douglas Van Vlack Convicted in Idaho of Killing Woman He Kidnaped at Tacoma.

By the Associated Press.

TWIN FALLS, Idaho, Feb. 8.—Douglas Van Vlack, who kidnaped his former wife, Mildred Hook, in Tacoma, Wash., and shot her to death in an Idaho roadside ditch, was convicted today of murdering her and a jury fixed the penalty at hanging. He will be sentenced Tuesday.

He also is charged with the murder of two officers who tried to halt his automobile and rescue the young woman.

ROOSEVELT MESSAGE TO THE BOY SCOUTS

President Approves Senior Program for Older Boys and Young Men.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8. — President Roosevelt, in a radio message tonight to the Boy Scouts of America, on the twenty-sixth anniversary of the founding of their organization, said:

"Fellow Scouts:

"Again we celebrate our birthday—this time the twenty-sixth. Throughout the country we are observing Boy Scout week in a series of special celebrations. This is the close of our silver jubilee year and we have started upon our second quarter of a century in scouting history.

"I am proud of the reports that have come to me, telling how Scout troops are to celebrate this anniversary. For the most part, these reports feature an observance during Boy Scout week which gives new emphasis to old traditions, service to our country, service to our neighbors, devotion to the cause of scouting.

Senior Program Praised.

"Those of us in scouting have real cause for satisfaction. Not only is our membership steadily increasing but our program has wider appeal than ever before. I am especially happy because of the development of a senior program for older boys and young men. Through this program older scouts have an opportunity for adventure and for service. I have learned that the Scout Alumni plan provides for former Scouts and present scouts when they become 21 years of age; that it will hold their interest in active scouting during later years; that it will make for the betterment of conditions affecting community life and will contribute in many ways to the good of the nation as a whole. This is thoroughly worthwhile.

"I have always believed in our Scout training for the boys and the young men of our country. It encourages them to get out into the open, to develop good health habits, to encourage initiative and resourcefulness. It affords opportunity for a great variety of useful services. It teaches respect for the law. It assists materially in proper building of character and the habits of life.

For the Jamboree.

"I am delighted that your National Executive Committee has fixed the early summer of 1937 as the period for our jamboree here in Washington. It was a sad blow to us all when plans for the jamboree last year had to be canceled. Let us hope that nothing will interfere with our new plans and that the proposed jamboree will be so successful that it will more than compensate for the disappointments of last year.

"And so on this, our twenty-sixth anniversary, I extend to you, one and all, this word of personal greeting, this hope that the year ahead of us will be one of the most successful ever celebrated by our great organization—the Boy Scouts of America."

$600,000 EMPLOYE DIVIDEND BY PROCTOR & GAMBLE CO.

5635 Workers Share in Profits Under Stock-Ownership Plan; Week Vacation With Pay.

By the Associated Press.

CINCINNATI, Feb. 8.—The Proctor & Gamble Co. today distributed nearly $600,000 in dividends for 1935 to 5635 workers under its profit-sharing plan. President Richard R. Deupree promised each worker a week vacation with pay.

The vacation plan, affecting about 7000 workers in the United States and Canada, applies to factory workers paid by the hour who have been in the company's employ since May 1, 1934. Deupree told the workers who gathered to celebrate the distribution of the ninety-seventh profit-sharing dividend that the company would plan its business to permit a week's shutdown between July 1 and 10.

The company also guarantees employment, sick benefits and pensions. The profit-sharing plan was inaugurated 50 years ago by the late William Cooper Proctor. Records show employes have been paid about $11,000,000 since 1903. The plan is based on the purchase of common stock. The employes' average holdings are 25 shares with a total market value of $6,440,000 and an average paid-up account of $2250.

British and Canadian Writers Urge Revision of Economic Structure to Cure Social Ills

Changes Within Existing Governmental Framework Suggested—152 Leaders of Thought Sign English Volume.

BY MARQUIS W. CHILDS.

A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.

KEENLY aware of the ills besetting the world today, leaders of thought and opinion in Great Britain and Canada have given evidence recently that they are looking for a cure, even though that cure may involve drastic changes in the structure of society. Striking evidence of the determined search for a way out of the present dilemma—of poverty amidst plenty—is the appearance of two books, one in Canada and one in England, which point to the urgent need for the revision of many phases of life of both countries. Both books put forward suggested changes which are held to be not only essential in the immediate future but practicable within the existing framework of government.

"The Next Five Years," McMillan & Co., Ltd., an analysis of Great Britain's economic plight, is signed by 152 men and women, among them leaders in every phase of England's life.

The signers include the Archbishop of York, H. G. Wells, Sir Norman Angell, Julian Huxley, Lord Rutherford, Sir Arthur Salter, the Bishop of Birmingham, Viscountess Rhondda, A. A. Milne, Gilbert Murray, Viscount Cecil of Chelwood, Cyril Asquith, St. John Ervine, B. Seebohm Rowntree, one of the leading manufacturers in England, Henry W. Nevinson, Dame Sybil Thorndike and David Low, the cartoonist. Scarcely a name but stands for distinguished performance in one field or another.

Divided Only in Politics.

These men and women belong to various political parties, they represent varying shades of political opinion, from Right to Left. But they are united in their view that a revision of society is necessary if civilization, as the word is understood in the Western world, is to be preserved. The sub-title of the book is: "An Essay in Political Agreement." In an epilogue the 152 authors say:

"We are divided in so far as we belong to one or other of the main political parties, but we are united in believing that nothing is at present more important than to reveal how wide is the measure of agreement that can be assembled on an immediate program. At no time in British political history have so many minds been turned to the complete reorganization of our social and economic life and to the promotion of a policy of international reconciliation. However true it may be that this is an age of crisis, men are convinced that it is also a time of unparalleled opportunity."

Canadian View.

The other book, "Social Planning for Canada," Thomas Nelson & Sons., Ltd., credited to the research committee of the League for Social Reconstruction, is signed by eight authors who represent a somewhat more uniform point of view. They favor rather widespread socialization of natural resources and key industries. But they base their study on the same premise as the British authors — that change must be swiftly brought about if democracy is to be preserved. Looking ahead, the Canadian authors foresee some kind of dictatorship as inevitable if capitalism continues to run its course toward ever greater monopoly and ever narrower concentration of the national wealth.

The Canadian book has been approved by the Co-operative Commonwealth Federation, which has acquired considerable political power, particularly in the Western provinces since its formation several years ago. Written in simple, straightforward style and relying wherever possible on government documents and well established facts, it has already gone into a second printing.

The Case of Socialism.

In the preface the authors say, with regard to the changes they suggest:

"The writers of this book desire to see these changes accomplished by democratic and orderly means; but they believe also that if democracy is to be real it implies two necessities—complete freedom to criticise existing institutions, provided that factual grounds are given for this criticism; and a much more widespread public knowledge that we have at present in the faults and deficiencies of our economic system, and of the constructive proposals to deal with them which spring from Socialist ideals.

"Politically and economically, Socialism simply represents the endeavor to put government by the people and for the people into modern terms; but the Socialist case will be ineffective so long as it continues to be dismissed as 'radical agitation' or 'utopian idealism' on the one hand, and confused with Communism on the other. If Socialism means a definite system or body of proposals, however, it also crystallizes a protest against gross inequality of income and economic power, against poverty and thwarted and repressed human lives, against waste and inefficiency, against the inhumanity and social stupidity of exploitation and war. Present Members Appointed by Five Presidents

WHO'S WHO of the SUPREME COURT

Length of Service Runs From Four to 25 Years

By IRVING DILLIARD

Of the Post-Dispatch Staff.

NOT since the Dred Scott decision in 1857 has the Supreme Court of the United States and its powers and functions been the object of so much public discussion as today. Opinion differs greatly as to the nature of the Court as a governmental institution. Physically, it consists of nine Judges—a Chief Justice and eight Associate Justices—chosen, as it happens, from the Northern, Eastern, Southern and Western sections of the country over a period of nearly a quarter of a century. The present membership is the joint handiwork of five Presidents, including standard-bearers of both major political parties.

The dean of the Court in point of length of service is Justice Willis Van Devanter, although Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes' first period of service began before that of Justice Van Devanter. President Taft, who himself later became Chief Justice, appointed both in 1910, about seven months apart. Mr. Hughes was returned to the court as Chief Justice on appointment of President Hoover six years ago this month.

Next to Justice Van Devanter in years of service is Justice James Clark McReynolds, whom President Woodrow Wilson appointed 22 years ago. Justice Louis Dembitz Brandeis, also named by President Wilson, was nominated 20 years ago last month. Justice George Sutherland and Justice Pierce Butler will have served 14 years this fall, each having been appointed in 1922 by President Harding. Justice Harlan Fiske Stone went to the court on appointment of President Coolidge 11 years ago. Besides returning Mr. Hughes to the court as Chief Justice, President Hoover appointed Justice Owen Josephus Roberts and Justice Benjamin Nathan Cardozo, the former six years ago, the latter four years ago.

The Matter of Ages—

Brandeis, 79; Roberts, 61.

The order is revised somewhat when the Justices are listed by age. Justice Brandeis, who was 79 years old last November, is the oldest. Justice Van Devanter will be 77 in April. Justice McReynolds was 74 last Monday while Justice Sutherland will reach that age next month, and Chief Justice Hughes will reach it in April. Justice Butler will be 70 next month, Justice Cardozo 66 in May, Justice Stone 64 in October and Justice Roberts 61 in May.

The Court's Function

THE Supreme Court of the United States is distinctly American in conception and function, and owes little to prior judicial institutions aside from the Anglo-Saxon tradition of law and judicial processes. In considering the historical background of the Court, it does not aid much to review experiences in other lands.

A Federal judiciary was an essential part of the conception of a national government of a Federal type. Such a government must have its legislature and a court to interpret legislation. State courts would be bound by Federal laws and would have to apply them, but final interpretation of such laws could not be left to a State tribunal, much less to the tribunals of a number of States whose judgments might not agree. The proposed Federal government was of necessity, in view of the existence of the States and of the sentiment which supported them as autonomous within their spheres, to be of limited powers. To establish such a government was the purpose of a written constitution.

The framers of the Constitution intended that the Federal government to be set up should act directly upon the individual citizen and not simply upon the States. This was the essence of its national character. If there was to be a written constitution defining, and thus limiting Federal powers, and these definitions were to have the force of constitutional or supreme law, it would be essential that the tribunal which interpreted and applied Federal law should recognize and apply the limits of both Federal and State authority. And as that government acted upon the individual citizen, he was deemed to be entitled to invoke its limitations.

Thus, in the most natural way, as the result of the creation of Federal law under a written constitution conferring limited powers, the Supreme Court of the United States came into being with its unique function. That court maintains the balance between State and Nation through the maintenance of the rights and duties of individuals.

(From—"The Supreme Court of the United States—Its Foundation, Methods and Achievements, an Interpretation"—by Charles Evans Hughes.)

This means that the average age of members of the court this year will be between 71 and 72; but to call attention to that fact and to that fact alone, as do those who describe the Supreme Court as "the nine old men," is to leave out an equally important fact concerning age. This is the age of the Justice at the time of his appointment.

When Mr. Hughes went to the Supreme bench for the first time he was only 48. He was 67 when he received his second appointment. Justice Van Devanter was 51 when he was appointed, while Justice McReynolds, second in seniority, was 52. At the time of appointment, Justice Stone was 52, Justice Roberts 55, Justice Butler 56, Justice Brandeis 59, Justice Sutherland 60 and Justice Cardozo 61.

Thus it is that the average age at the time of appointment was 57. At the time of their inauguration the first seven Presidents of the United States were all as old or older. Washington was 57, John Adams 61, Jefferson 57, Madison 57, Monroe 58, John Quincy Adams 57 and Jackson 61. Every President in the last half century, with the exception of Theodore Roosevelt, was at least 50 at his inauguration. Benjamin Harrison, Cleveland and Harding each were 55. McKinley and Hoover were 54. Taft, Coolidge and Roosevelt each were 51. Wilson was 56.

Many Senators as Old as or Older Than Justices.

The Senate today contains a group of members as old as or older than the Justices of the Supreme Court taken collectively. Senator Glass of Virginia is 77. Senator Fletcher of Florida is 77. Senator Norris of Nebraska is 74. Senators McAdoo of California and Keyes of New Hampshire are 72. Senators Smith of South Carolina and King of Utah are 71. Senators Borah of Idaho, Capper of Kansas and Coolidge of Massachusetts are more than 70 and Senator Lewis of Illinois will soon reach 70.

In foreign countries age is no disqualification for public service in high position. When he retired from the presidency of Czecho-Slovakia a short time ago, Dr. Thomas G. Masaryk was in his 86th year. The late Paul von Hindenburg was 78 when he was elected president of Germany in 1925, and 87 when he died in office, two years ago. Other instances of distinguished public service by elderly persons in foreign countries could be cited.

Indeed, the wonder is that the average age of the members of the present Supreme Court at the time of appointment was no greater than 57. An appointment to the Supreme Court is considered the most important appointment a President can make and it is traditional that Justices be chosen from among men highly developed in the law. Years must pass before a man is qualified by training and experience to sit on the Supreme Court. It is only natural that its members are beyond middle age when chosen.

The legal background of one member of the Supreme Court, insofar as his practice goes, necessarily differs from that of the other members just as the experience of any nine men in some other profession, say that of medicine, would differ. It is without point, therefore, to call attention to the fact that this member of the court engaged in one kind of law practice while that member engaged in practice of another sort,

Stalin Tells the Historians How to Write Modern History; Rejects Prepared Textbook

BY JOSEPH B. PHILLIPS.

MOSCOW, January

(Copyright, 1936, New York Tribune, Inc.)

THE textbook of modern history and another of the history of the Union Socialist Soviet Republics, prepared for the Soviet schools have been rejected by the Council of Peoples' Commissars and the Central Committee of the Communist party and a new commission has been appointed to compile textbooks more in keeping with the ideas of the Government.

The rejected textbooks in the process of compilation since Josef Stalin announced two years ago that the teaching of history in Russian schools was unsatisfactory, were turned down because "the authors continued to adhere to obviously untenable definitions and principles, showing that the anti-Marxist, anti-Leninist, essentially liquidationist and anti-scientific views on historcal science have taken root among a certain part of our historians."

Along with the announcement that the textbooks had been rejected was published a critique signed by Stalin, Andrei Alexandrovich Zhanov and the late Sergei Mironovich Kirov in which were laid down ideas how the authorities thought history should be written. It was the failure to fulfill these ideas that made the books inacceptable.

Stalin's Theory.

In writing of modern history, Stalin and his companions said: "Modern history, which is richest in content, is saturated with events."

The critique then proceeded to show how the interpretation of modern history should revolve around the French Revolution, the Soviet Revolution and the contrasts between them as evidence of historical progress.

The French Revolution should not be described as the "great" French Revolution but simply as the bourgeois revolution. "The textbooks of modern history must revolve precisely this idea of the main axis of contrast between a bourgeois revolution and a Socialist one. To show that the French and any other bourgeois revolution, while liberating people from the chains of feudalism and absolutism, placed them in new chains, the chains of capitalism and bourgeois democracy, while the Socialist Revolution in Russia has smashed all and every chain and liberated the people from all forms of exploitation—such must be the line throughout the textbook of modern history."

Three Main Divisions.

Quite a definite plan for the divisions of modern history was presented. It should be divided into three parts:

First, from the French Revolution to the Franco-Prussian War—"the victory and consolidation of capitalism in advanced countries."

Second, from the Franco-Prussian War and the Paris Commune to the October revolution in Russia and the finish of the imperialist World War. This was described as a period beginning with the decline of capitalism and "the opening of a new era in the history of humanity" by the Russian Revolution.

Third, from the end of the war to the present. Stalin pointed out that by the present he did not mean four or five years ago, but right now. He described the present as a period in which capitalist countries are struggling against depression and Fascism while Soviet Russia is building up Socialism.

Whole Sections Thrown Out.

Whole sections of the textbook submitted to the Council of Commissars had been thrown away because it failed to fulfill these requirements. In the history of the U. S. S. R. the strongest criticism was that it was mostly about Russia, "not the history of the peoples which comprise the U. S. S. R. No consideration was given to the histories of Ukrainia, White Russia, Finland and other Baltic peoples; the North Caucasian and Transcaucasian peoples; the peoples of Central Asia and the Far East; and also the Volga and Northern peoples—the Tatars, Bashkirs, Mordvinians and Chuvashes."

Political reasons may have had something to do with the insistence that all these varied peoples should figure in the history of the U. S. S. R., but this probably is one point to which the most severe critics could not object since many of the racial and political groups now included in the U. S. S. R. have never before been given serious consideration by the Western historians.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Nature and Divinity.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

THE occasional Oriental who adopts the Christian religion always attracts attention. Recently we had Toyohiko Kagawa, Japanese Christian leader, with us. The columns of the Post-Dispatch of Saturday, Feb. 1, carried some of Dr. Kagawa's reasons for believing that modern science has furnished new proof of the existence of a Supreme Being.

The center about which all scientific research revolves is natural law. The whole purpose of modern science is to understand better the phenomena of it. Sometimes our greatest minds devote long periods of arduous mental labor to some minute detail, some little dot on the outer fringe of this infinite subject, and write volumes about it. The field of study is so vast in extent that we have not yet penetrated very far, and yet the ordinary mind is staggered by the length and breadth and thickness of the tiny territory we have explored. "Such knowledge is too wonderful for me; it is high, I cannot attain unto it."

Modern science, we can truly say, does reveal something that is beyond the comprehension of the human mind. Why need we go further to find our God? Here is something that we can at least touch—actually touch—the hem of the garment. And yet what do we do here as late as 1936 A. D.? We shut our eyes and blindly jump into the dark and say, "Give me a supernatural God." Something completely beyond the reach of anybody's mind. Something so completely incomprehensible that all we can do is to try to imagine it, with no assurance whatever that we are anywhere near right.

Dr. Kagawa talks about the embryonic child staring at the walls of human tissue surrounding it and saying, "My mother cannot exist or I would see her face." None of us has any recollection of doing any thinking in our pre-natal state, and unfortunately we do too little thinking in our natal state, but if Dr. Kagawa's illustration means anything, it means that the unborn child was looking at its mother when it was looking at the tissue walls.

We are staring today at the walls of nature. We know that they are omnipotent, omniscient and omnipresent. Scheme if you can, how you can escape its power or its wisdom or its presence. It is in Heaven and hell and in the nethermost parts of the sea. "Even there shall thy hand lead me, and thy right hand shall hold me." Speculate for a moment what nature can do to you and for you. Speculate on what it is doing for you right now. Doesn't it fit in every respect what a God should be? Let us accept a natural God that is being revealed every moment of our lives. Perhaps these walls we gaze upon in modern scientific progress are God—God in reality.

Would Label Speedsters.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

THIS morning (Feb. 4) I was witness to what nearly proved another death through reckless driving. Two elderly women, while waiting for an approaching street car on Lafayette avenue, were missed by what looked like a fraction of an inch by a speeding motorist who made a "squeeze" dash to beat out the street car.

As the driver shot by at a terrific rate of speed, I recognized him as a man who has been hauled up for speeding on two occasions during the past several years. A possible cure for these potential killers would be to place on the windshield and rear window glass a red sticker, upon which is inscribed "BEWARE" or "DANGEROUS DRIVER."

Who Are the Elite?

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

(Inspired by prayerful study of Emily Post's column.)

ALTHOUGH he is groomed with meticulous care,
Our interest is certain to wane—
We know he is only a social upstart
If he carries an ebony cane!

No matter how clever the lady may be,
How rarely the silly she apes,
She's outside the pale if she says "Pardon me!"
Or utters that dreadful word "drapes"!

To come very late to a dinner or tea,
Or whisper remarks most unkind,
Is still okeydoke if one's in with the set,
Some manners we really don't mind.

He may drink like a fish and shatter all rules
That decent folk long have revered
IF he knows the taboos of society—
Now, aren't our customs most weird?

IT is easy to identify those St. Louisans who will be saved—they spread ashes liberally on their icy sidewalks. As for those inhuman wretches who disregard this simple means of insuring our comfort and safety, well, Stygian or outer darkness is too bright for them, hell too comfortable. Let them wander about interstellar space, or roll boulders up icy mountains in the Sisyphean manner. Absolute zero for them!

E. R. PAILLOU.

THE COURT AND CONGRESS.

Let us get down to cases.

It is being said that the country should abolish or severely curb the power of the United States Supreme Court to invalidate acts of Congress. That cry goes up, somewhere or other, whenever the Supreme Court knocks down a law. Where it comes from depends on whose ox is being gored.

Among the more extreme proposals of constitutional change before Congress are one by Representative Hill (Dem.) of Washington, which would withdraw the right of the Supreme Court and inferior courts to invalidate acts of Congress; one by Representative Quinn (Dem.) of Pennsylvania, which would not only do this but would repeal the amendment (the tenth) which reserves to the states or the people powers not delegated to the Federal Government; one by Representative Marcantonio (Rep.) of New York, which would give sweeping powers to Congress in all social and economic affairs.

Much is made of the point that there is no supreme court in England to invalidate the acts of Parliament. The answer is that we have a written constitution and England has not. A written constitution cannot exist without some tribunal clothed with the power of interpretation, of adjudication between conflicting claims. There are rights of the citizen in his relations with government; these must be maintained against official oppression. In addition—and this is what makes an impartial tribunal uniquely necessary in the American dual system of government—there must be adjudication between asserted states' rights and asserted rights of the central government. There is no division of governmental power in England corresponding to the division of authority between the states and the central government in America.

If Congress were freed from judicial restraint, then Congress would be the sole judge of its own acts, except as it might submit to being checked by the presidential veto.

But it is said that the English Parliament has acted with self-restraint, and that Congress could be counted upon to do likewise. This is to ignore the fact that there is in England a tradition of self-restraint, not only in the legislative process, but in the whole business of living, that does not exist in this country. To recite the fundamental differences between the two countries, with all that these differences imply, would require a volume. One example: England handled the liquor problem rationally; we went from one extreme to the other—from lawlessness on the part of the liquor traffic to official lawlessness under prohibition. The English have their virtues and we have ours, but they are not always the same virtues.

We have the weaknesses of our virtues. We conquered a wilderness and in so doing became impatient of restraint. We breed a Lindbergh, the incarnation of American pluck, resourcefulness and inventive genius, and he flies in glory across the Atlantic; we create intolerable conditions of lawbreaking and violation of the common decencies, and the same Lindbergh flees our shores, an exile.

The vastness of our area; the mixture of bloods in our population; the rigidity of our system as compared with that of England, where an appeal to the country can be had by dissolution of Parliament; above all, the multiplicity of conflicting sectional interests of the United States—all these factors help to defeat the assertion that removal of restraints from Congress would produce a result comparable to that produced by the English system.

In a recent article in the Post-Dispatch, G. K. Chesterton pointed to another salient difference between the United States and England.

> England, more than most people understand (he said), is ruled by permanent officials. It is our way of balancing the difficulties of government by assembly; in America it is balanced by presidential initiative and by the Supreme Court.

Give Congress a free hand and what would happen?

The bonus vote shows what an organized pressure group can accomplish. So did the successes of the Anti-Saloon League. The lesson from these and other instances of legislation by a super-house of Congress—the lobby—is clear. To set up Congress as a dictator, without judicial restraint, would be to increase beyond accounting the menace of every attempted raid on the Treasury, of every crack-brained scheme to save the country, of every Fascist effort to suppress civil liberties.

William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, showed in a recent statement to his executive council that he is aware of the danger to labor in proposals to limit the power of the Supreme Court. Asking for postponement of action on a suggested amendment to deprive the court of the authority to annul "social justice" legislation, Mr. Green stressed the point that such an amendment might prove to be a two-edged sword; it might be used against labor, even to the extent of denying workers the right to strike.

If Congress were subject to no restraint by the courts, we could expect an era of legislation by log-rolling—log-rolling that would make the traditional practice of trading tariff benefits look, by comparison, like high statesmanship. We should see a Congress rolling up expenditures but reluctant, as always (witness the bonus bill), to tax; a Congress therefore piling up the national debt to new heights, with inflation as the inevitable result.

Some of those who would remove the power of the Supreme Court over legislation would like also to cut down the number of the boards and bureaus at Washington. They can't eat their cake and have it, too. With no judicial veto possible, the way would be opened for a spending orgy, in the execution of new schemes of centralized government, that would build at Washington a more towering bureaucracy than ever.

It is false to say that we have government by the Supreme Court. We have a government under a supreme law—the Constitution—with the Supreme Court sitting as arbiter when a citizen says that his rights under the Constitution are invaded. Take away the judicial right to invalidate laws of Congress and the present structure of constitutional government is undermined.

Charles Warren, author of the authoritative history of the Supreme Court, is among those who have pointed out that to deny the Supreme Court the power to review acts of Congress would be to create a dictatorship by Congress. Under such action, he has written, "Congress could alter or abolish any of the powers of the President or of the court, granted by the Constitution; alter or destroy any of the reserved powers of the states; deprive individuals of any or all the rights guaranteed by the Bill of Rights. In other words, our entire system of government, as established by the Constitution, with its limitations of power and its checks and balances, will exist only so long and so far as Congress shall not choose to alter it."

Such, in the last analysis, is the issue raised by the cry that "nine old men" are governing the country and ought to be put down in favor of Congress.

CHARLES CURTIS.

For 44 years Washington knew Charles Curtis of Kansas, as a Representative in Congress, a member of the Federal Senate, as Vice-President. Few men have had a longer tenure in official life. Obviously, only a master of practical politics could maintain himself in popular favor over such a span. No one ever questioned Mr. Curtis' political acumen. But such a career must have been foundationed on genuine qualities which would have distinguished their possessor in whatever calling he had chosen.

The qualities that marked Mr. Curtis were integrity, unflagging industry, an extraordinary talent for making and keeping friends, a capacity for getting things done and the wisdom that never forgot Kansas.

With the Algerian flavor of his story the world is familiar: how as a boy in the reverses of family fortune he became a jockey; how as a young man he drove a hack in Topeka while studying law; how as a Prosecuting Attorney he gave Kansas its first experience in realistic prohibition when, nominated by the wets, he ran on a personal platform of law enforcement and promptly closed the saloons of Shawnee County.

From that achievement, the road led straight to the national capital. On the larger stage, he was by choice and equipment a worker. "The applause of listening senates to command" was not among his experiences. He rarely made a speech. But when the Republican House, after the 1896 election, was wrestling with the problem of putting the gold standard into law, it was Charles Curtis who suggested, at the request of Speaker "Czar" Reed, the selection of a special committee for the task and as a member of that committee helped to draft the bill. Later, in the Senate, he led the fight against the ancient rule of legislation by conferees, which, in the judgment of Senator Lodge, was "the most important change in procedure in the history of the Senate."

There was a tint of romance in his Indian ancestry, accentuated by the distinction that he was the first of the "native American stock" to reach the position of Vice-President. A regular of regulars, he was described after his selection as Mr. Hoover's running mate as "the most conspicuous Western outpost of Eastern conservative political thought." Even so, mercurial, inconstant Kansas was faithful to him as to none other.

The jockey rode a good race.

MISSOURI SHOULD JOIN.

A highly useful form of interstate agreement recently placed in effect is directed toward curbing the careless driver's menace to life and property. Under its terms, a person in any of the participating states who seeks to bring suit for damages against a motorist residing in any other such state may do so without the red tape customary in interstate suits. This is accomplished by an agreement among the states legalizing service by mail. If the defendant fails to respond, the courts of his state assume jurisdiction.

Reporting on the progress of this method for making the reckless motorist pay for his depredations, the American Automobile Association finds it has been adopted by 42 states and the District of Columbia. Among the missing states is Missouri. The Legislature should remedy the omission at its next session, in January of next year.

A 1932 VIEW OF BORAH.

"Borah—Now or Never" was the title used by William C. Murphy Jr. when he wrote in the Nation of March 2, 1932, of the Idaho Senator's political prospects. "This year, in all human probability, offers Borah his last chance for the presidency," the writer said. Four years later, the Senator has set aside human probability by throwing his hat into the ring and establishing himself as one of the political men of the hour. It is a significant commentary on both his physical and intellectual stamina.

That statement was a miscalculation, but many other points in the article remain as true today as when written. For instance, Mr. Murphy also wrote in 1932:

> It would be a gay and diverting campaign should Borah throw his hat into the ring. By all odds, he is the champion page-one Senator of his times. No other man in public life approaches him in ability to capture newspaper headlines.

And at the end of the article:

> Whatever happens politically during the next few months, Borah should not and will not be ignored. This year, as quadrennially for the past two decades, he appears again as a great black cloud from the West, causing timid Old Guard Republicans to think of cyclone cellars, while their more hardened colleagues console themselves with the recollection that the cloud has threatened frequently before and has never burst yet. But there is a first time in all human events.

The "first time" now has been recorded. The great black cloud from the West is swooping down, headed full-tilt for the Old Guardsmen. And if they do not run for the cyclone cellar, then all the calculations of 1932, and 1936 as well, go astray. As the French say, "The more it changes, the more it remains the same."

ZERO.

Gov. Hoffman's reprieve of Hauptmann expires Feb. 15. In the three weeks since the reprieve was granted, not a single new fact has been brought forward to throw additional light upon the case. The statement issued by Gov. Hoffman some days ago in an effort to justify his action consisted of little but quotations from the eccentric Jafsie's magazine articles and excerpts from Col. Lindbergh's testimony before the grand jury. Hauptmann himself preserves his silence.

So the net result to date of a reprieve granted with considerable ballyhoo about "new evidence" is exactly zero.

JOHN G. NEIHARDT

A Deeply Moving Tale

THE HURRICANE. By Charles Nordhoff and James Norman Hall. (Little, Brown & Co., Boston.)

IN view of the great popular success of the "Bounty" trilogy—"Mutiny on the Bounty," "Men Against the Sea," "Pitcairn's Island"—and the equally great success of the "Bounty" picture now being shown throughout the country, this latest South Sea story by Nordhoff and Hall can scarcely fail to be a best-seller. Happily, "The Hurricane" is decidedly worth reading, whether it be judged merely as a holding tale or for the underlying greatness of its theme, involving the fundamental truth about man's relation to his fellows and to the tremendous forces of nature.

The scene is Manukura, one of the small coral islands of the Low Archipelago stretching between Tahiti and Pitcairn, some 65 degrees eastward from Australia. The story is primarily that of a native, Terangi, who, unjustly sentenced to prison for defending himself against a white man, manages, after many escapes and captures, to put to sea in a canoe with the desperate hope that he may see his wife and child again in Manukura, 600 miles away.

A lovable old priest, who has devoted his life to the service of the island peoples, regularly making his rounds in a frail little sailing vessel, rescues the half-dead Terangi in mid-voyage, and, convinced that there are laws of God superior to those of man, smuggles the escaped convict into Manukura and plans for his flight with his family to an uninhabited island, where vessels never go.

It happens that the Administrator of the archipelago is making his regular official visit to the little colony. By chance he learns of the convict's presence on the island, and the search for the fugitive is on. But a greater law than puny man's is at work. All day the wind from the north has steadily increased, and the barometer, falling below 28, foretells the approach of the hurricane. At nightfall, the storm breaks with incredible fury upon the island, which rises only a few feet above the normal ocean level.

What follows is one of the most impressive examples of story-telling in contemporary fiction. It is the sort of thing that Hugo would have delighted to do in pompous, thundering paragraphs, but it is doubtful that the effect would have been greater than is that here achieved without titanic phrases and sonorous rhetoric.

The sea, raised by the falling atmospheric pressure, and hurled across the low-lying coral reef by the wind, inundates the town. Many take to the palm trees, others to tethered boats, but most huddle with the old priest in the little stone church, with its bell feebly tolling aloft in the terrific gale.

Against such an elemental background, the deepest things in human nature emerge, revealing both the littleness of man and the greatness of his spirit. The death of the old grandmother, lorn of her husband and weary of life; the birth of the child in one of the boats; the unwavering faith of the good priest Paul, triumphant even as the waters sweep away the frail sanctuary and all within; the love and loyalty and heroism of men and women at grips with cosmic forces—these and many other details serve to sweep the whole essential range of the human tragedy—the gloom and glory of it.

One closes the book with a profound sense of spiritual cleansing.

I'LL MOURN YOU LATER. By Catharine Whitcomb. (Houghton Mifflin Co., New York City.)

THE least that could be said truthfully of this first novel is that, for a girl 22 years old, it is an astonishing performance. Catharine Whitcomb's knowledge of the inwardness of human beings would be exceptional even in a middle-aged novelist, and she achieves her ends with an economy of expression that some of our celebrated fictioneers might study with profit. But the novel is no less astonishing because of the morbid atmosphere of early-ripe sophistication that envelops it.

The story develops in the country home of the St. Johns, where the grown-up children have come to attend the funeral of the mother. Perhaps there is rather more than a touch of erotomania in Catharine, whose chief interest seems to be in the animalistic propensities of her husband, Bill. Walter, the spoiled son, is a rotter and a drunkard. His wife, Maud, is close to madness because of an idiot son, who, as the tale ultimately reveals, is an inmate of the asylum next door. While Walter, threatened with pneumonia, is engaged in seducing his nurse, the idiot son is killed and Maud commits suicide. It's altogether a decidedly wretched business.

There can be no question as to the author's exceptional gift as a writer. But to what end is the gift employed?

COLONIAL CAPTIVITIES, MARCHES AND JOURNEYS. By Isabel M. Calder. (The Macmillan Co., New York City.)

EDITED under the auspices of the Colonial Dames of America, this volume presents, chiefly for the first time in print, numerous letters and selections from private journals written by French and English colonists during three-quarters of a century previous to the Revolutionary War. It is all valuable source material, serving to re-create the social atmosphere of the time.

THEY DIE BUT ONCE. By James B. O'Neil. (Knight Publications, Inc., New York City.)

BORN in Arkansas in 1843, Jeff Ake, whose memories are here preserved, began his life of adventure at the age of 8, when the family set out for California driving a herd of cattle. After a short sojourn in the gold country, the Akes moved back into Arizona and young Jeff grew up there, becoming one of the better-known characters throughout the vast country from Arkansas to the Colorado. He was still "hale and hearty" at the age of 90, when he told his story.

James O'Neil has been careful to preserve the characteristic speech of the narrator, who, as one of his old pals once remarked, "sure done seen the elephant in his time an' hearn the owl holler!" Old Jeff seems to have known practically all the celebrated characters who flourished during his time in the great Southwest.

Aside from its historical value, the narrative is extraordinarily entertaining; and old Jeff draws the long bow now and then, it is never by way of overstating his own prowess. On the contrary, he leans very noticeably toward understatement in that regard. The men of Ake's breed are dropping off rapidly, and very soon they will all be gone. Such books as this are certain to become more precious with time.

THE MOVIES ON TRIAL. Compiled and Edited by William J. Perlman. (The Macmillan Co., New York City.)

NINETEEN men of prominence in various fields have contributed to this symposium on the present and possible future state of the movies, discussing the matter from various viewpoints: social, moral, esthetic, educational, religious, etc.

William Allen White frankly regards movies as in the nature of "chewing-gum relaxation." "The Scarlet Muse of the silver screen," says he, "sees only money, big money, quick money, the dirty money of her dupes." The Most Rev. John J. Cantwell, D. D., suspects that "the entire motion-picture industry has set itself to the task of seeing which company can produce the most vicious films." Edward G. Robinson observes that the movies are art, and insists that art has nothing to do with morals. Raymond J. Cannon is convinced that "the educational value of the movies has been relegated to the scrap heap." Seymour Stern contends that the cinema, as art, is bankrupt. Ben B. Lindsey seriously questions the charge that movies have much to do with predisposing boys to a life of crime, although other contributors are convinced that the charge is true. Upton Sinclair tells what the movies did to him in his EPIC campaign for the governorship. Wolf W. Moss expects little good of the movies until they shall have been changed by social revolution. And so it goes.

Evidently the 10,000,000 children, women and men who attend the movies daily in the United States are not greatly troubled over the questions here discussed.

CLAIBORNE TO RUN AGAIN ON RECORD AGAINST NEW DEAL

St. Louis Congressman Only Democrat Who Has Almost Consistently Fought Roosevelt.

FAVORED BEER, NRA, CLOSING OF BANKS

"Fooled" Into Backing TVA But Objected to AAA as Class Legislation and Opposed Bonus.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.—Representative James R. Claiborne of St. Louis has announced that he will seek re-election to Congress as a Democrat on his record of opposition to virtually every New Deal law.

There is scarcely a Republican in Congress who can equal Claiborne's record of opposition to the measures that make up the New Deal. Needless to say there is no other Democrat who has ventured so far off the reservation.

Shortly after President Roosevelt took office in 1933, Claiborne voted for the emergency closing of the banks, for the economy bill and for the beer bill but otherwise he has voted—with one or two exceptions—a consistent and hearty "No."

Claiborne did, however, support the President on the bonus. He was one of the small group, almost equally divided between Republicans and Democrats, who voted against the bonus on every opportunity and finally voted with the small minority to sustain the President's veto. By a large margin both Senate and House approved immediate payment of the bonus over the presidential veto.

Voted for NRA, Against AAA.

Although he voted for the NRA one of the few New Deal exceptions, Claiborne says he did so because it carried a two-year limit. When it was first proposed, in the frantic spring of 1933 when Washington hummed with plans and proposals, Claiborne says that as a lawyer he believed it was unconstitutional but cast his vote in favor of it, realizing it would run for only two years. He was opposed to the extension of the NRA.

Claiborne, a lawyer and lecturer in the law school of St. Louis University, voted against the AAA, holding that the farmer has no more right to special protection in his business than any other group.

"Why not give to all in every line who are operating at a loss if you give to the farmer?" Claiborne demanded. "That was the way I felt about the AAA. Furthermore I felt it would cause food costs to rise more rapidly than wages or income could rise and our experience under the AAA pretty much proved that."

Opposed Devaluation.

The St. Louis representative voted against reducing the gold content of the dollar, the chief measure in President Roosevelt's monetary policy.

"It's a toss-up whether the Supreme Court backed me up on that," said Claiborne, recalling the decision in the James M. Perry Liberty bond case of about a year ago. Perry had sued for the depreciation in the value of his Liberty bonds caused by devaluation of the dollar. The Supreme Court held that he could not recover, but went on to say: "While the Congress is under no duty to provide remedies through the courts, the contractual obligation still exists, and despite infirmities of procedure, remains binding upon the conscience of the sovereign."

Claiborne also voted against the security and exchange bill, to regulate the stock market, in the belief that it is difficult to "save a sucker" by law. He favored taking the present strict rules of the New York Stock Exchange and codifying them into a law, thus making it possible to prosecute violations in the Federal Courts. This would have prevented the creation of another bureau in Washington, according to Claiborne, who has a deep-seated hostility to bureaucracy.

"Fooled on TVA."

Claiborne voted against the utility bill which at the last session of Congress involved the administration in a bitter fight over holding companies. He voted also against the pink slip provision for income tax publicity. Although he voted for the TVA, Claiborne says he did so under a misapprehension that was deliberately created by the forces behind the measure.

"They fooled us on TVA," Claiborne says. "They gave us to understand that that dam was to be run to make nitrates for explosives to be used in time of war. I don't think they've made any nitrates at all."

Claiborne voted for the Social Security bill providing for unemployment insurance, old-age pensions, and aid to dependent mothers and children. He voted, too, in favor of the $4,000,000,000 Works Relief bill, although he had strenuous objections to the form in which it was presented to Congress. If it had been separated into different parts, he would have voted for certain phases of the program, he says, because he favors a "reasonable" program of permanent public works and in "honestly feeding hungry men and women as we have always done."

Expected Balanced Budget.

"When I voted for the economy bill, one of the first measures offered by the Administration," said Claiborne, "I voted for it in all sincerity. I believed that the President was going to practice economy and that he would succeed in balancing the budget."

Claiborne, a student of constitutional law, represents the Twelfth District in Congress, which includes all of St. Louis County and a large part of South St. Louis. He is the first Democrat to represent this district in nearly 50 years. Several of Claiborne's family have served in Congress, both in the Senate and the House. His immediate predecessor was Henry F. Niedringhaus and before Niedringhaus the district was represented for eight years by Cleveland A. Newton.

Claiborne's candidacy was approved by "Boss" Tom Pendergast of Kansas City and his name appeared on the Pendergast slate.

ATLANTIC LINERS DROP 'FIRST CLASS'

Setting of Cabin Class as Top on All Passenger Ships Averts Rate War.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Feb. 8.—A rate war for the North Atlantic passenger business was averted today by making the cabin class top on all liners, "first class" was abolished.

Members of the North Atlantic Passenger Conference indicated rates on luxury liners will be lowered slightly and those of smaller ships, heretofore in the cabin category, raised.

This general readjustment was precipitated by announcement of the big new British liner Queen Mary as a cabin liner—a designation which permitted rates lower than "first class."

Fear of a general breakup of the conference as a result of the Cunard-White Star Line's resignation—it owns the Queen Mary—and a disastrous price cutting led to the agreement after a feverish three-day session. Cunard-White Star withdrew its resignation today.

Rate changes, effective Feb. 24, will be announced by the individual companies. A spokesman said the changes would be "slight." Tourist and third class rates will be unchanged.

Special Committee to Make Study Looking to Enactment of Law This Year.

A study by a special committee of laws of various states now having aviation commissions, with the view to enactment of a Missouri State aviation code, will be one of four major objectives of this year for the Air Board of the Chamber of Commerce, George B. Logan, chairman of the aviation board, announced yesterday.

The tentative code to be outlined by the committee will include provisions for licensing and control of pilots in intrastate traffic.

Other projects of the Air Board are to be a survey of Federal legislation relating to passenger, mail and express service, with the view of safeguarding St. Louis' interests in pending or new legislation; a study of the possibility of obtaining funds from the Works Progress Administration for improvement of existing airports and construction of new fields, and a study of measures necessary to facilitate travel between the city and the municipal airport.

Who's Who of the United States Supreme Court

Members of the court are chosen from a profession divided among specialized fields and it follows that the Justices may have had experience of a vastly different sort. This is for the reason that our whole system of adjudication of disputes at law is grounded on the principle that both sides of causes shall have full legal representation in court.

Furthermore, it is fundamental in a government, such as ours, one of whose branches is an independent judiciary which sits as referee, that when a member of the bar ascends to the Supreme Court he leaves off being an advocate and becomes a disinterested weigher of the issues as they come before the bench.

Legal Background of Charles Evans Hughes.

When appointed to the Supreme Court the first time, Charles Evans Hughes, then 48 years of age, had distinguished himself in the law and in public office. Born in Glenn Falls, N .Y., he studied first at Colgate University, and then went to Brown University, from which he received the bachelor's and master's degrees. In 1884 he was graduated from the Columbia University Law School and admitted to the bar. During the next three years, he practiced law and at the same time held a prize fellowship in the Columbia Law School. From 1891 to 1893 he devoted himself to a law professorship at Cornell University. Thereafter he practiced in New York until 1906, but continued his teaching activities, first as special lecturer in law at Cornell and then as lecturer in the New York Law School.

In 1905 and 1906 he was counsel for the New York Legislature in two important investigations and in the latter year served the Attorney-General as a special assistant in a Federal investigation in New York. The Republicans of New York City nominated him for Mayor in 1905, but he declined to be a candidate. In 1906 he was elected Governor and two years later he was re-elected. Near the end of his second term he resigned to accept appointment by President Taft to the Supreme Court vacancy created by the death of Justice David J. Brewer of Kansas.

Mr. Hughes' first period of service on the Supreme bench covered almost four years. Nominated by the Republican National Convention in Chicago, June 10, 1916, he resigned the same day to be the party's presidential candidate in the campaign of that year. He was defeated by close electoral vote, receiving 254 votes against 277 for Woodrow Wilson, who was running for re-election. The popular vote was Hughes, 8,547,000; Wilson, 9,129,000.

From 1917 to 1921, Mr. Hughes again engaged in the practice of law in New York City. It was the period of American participation in the World War, however, and Mr. Hughes was chairman of the district board of draft appeals and special assistant to the Attorney-General in charge of the aircraft inquiry during these years.

Secretary of State in Cabinet of President Harding.

With the election of Warren G. Harding as President in 1920, Mr. Hughes once more went to Washington, this time as Secretary of State. To this post he took a particular talent. As head of the State Department he was chairman of the Washington conference on the limitation of armaments in 1921 and special ambassador to the Brazilian centenary celebration in 1922.

His interest in international affairs continued after his resignation from the Cabinet in 1925 and in 1928, on appointment by President Coolidge, he was chairman of the United States delegation to the Sixth Pan American Conference at Havana, Cuba and in 1928-29 United States delegate to the Pan American Conference on Arbitration and Conciliation held in Washington.

From 1926 to 1930 Mr. Hughes was a member of the Permanent Court of Arbitration at the Hague and from 1928 to 1930 a Judge of the Permanent Court of International Justice, commonly called the World Court, at Geneva. After being returned to the Supreme Court 1930 as Chief Justice, he served as president of the Guatemala-Honduras Arbitral Tribunal.

Mr. Hughes has been head of the bar organizations of New York City, New York County, New York State and the United States, his presidency of the American Bar Association occurring in 1924-25. He is also a past president of the American Society of International Law. In 1928 he was awarded the medal of the Roosevelt Memorial Association for his contributions to the development of public and international law. Chancellor of the Smithsonian Institution and an honorary trustee of the University of Chicago, he has been awarded honorary degrees by numerous American universities and colleges and the universities of Brussels and Louvain.

Lectures which Mr. Hughes delivered at Yale, Columbia, and Princeton have been published in book form, their titles being, "Conditions of Progress in Democratic Government," "The Supreme Court of the United States," "Our Relation to the Nations of the Western Hemisphere" and "Pan American Peace Plans." These have become recognized as standard works in their fields.

Justice Van Devanter; Up From State and U. S. Courts.

Justice Van Devanter, who sits on the right of Chief Justice Hughes as the dean of the court in years of service, rose through the State and Federal courts to the Supreme bench. He was born in Marion, Ind., and educated at what in now De Pauw University, then Indiana Asbury University. His formal legal training he received at the Cincinnati College Law School.

After practicing in his home city for three years, he went to Cheyenne, Wyo., in 1884, where he became in turn City Attorney, a commissioner to revise the statute law of the territory and a member of the territorial legislature. President Harrison appointed him Chief Justice of the Territorial Supreme Court in 1889 and, following the admission of Wyoming as a State, in 1890, he was continued at the head of the court by election. In 1894 he was chairman of the Wyoming Republican State Committee. Two years later he was a delegate to the convention which nominated William McKinley and also a member of the Republican National Committee.

President McKinley called him to Washington in 1897 as Assistant Attorney-General, assigned to the Department of the Interior. Mr. Van Devanter held this post until 1903. During this period he served as well as professor of equity pleading and practice and equity jurisprudence in what is now George Washington University, then Columbian University.

On appointment by President Theodore Roosevelt, in 1903, he became Judge of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Eighth Judicial Circuit, then comprising Missouri, Iowa, Minnesota, Arkansas, Nebraska, Colorado, Kansas, North and South Dakota, Wyoming, Utah, Indian Territory and the territories of New Mexico and Oklahoma. As Circuit Judge he presided over Federal cases in St. Louis from time to time.

After serving seven years on the Circuit Court of Appeals, Judge Van Devanter was elevated to the Supreme Court in 1910 by President Taft. He took the associate justiceship made vacant by the promotion of Justice Edward Douglass White of Louisiana to the Chief Justice's seat, following the death of Chief Justice Melville Weston Fuller of Illinois. Thus it is that four Presidents—Harrison, McKinley, Theodore Roosevelt and Taft—figured in Justice Van Devanter's progression through our governmental system to its judicial apex in Washington.

Justice McReynolds Once Prosecutor of Trusts.

On the left of Chief Justice Hughes—the seat which goes to the Associate Justice ranking second in seniority—sits Justice McReynolds. He was born in Elkton, Ky., and educated at Vanderbilt University and the University of Virginia, obtaining his formal legal training at the latter institution. He began the practice of law in Nashville, Tenn., and during the political agitation for free coinage of silver in the latter part of the last century, offered himself as candidate for Congress on the Gold Democratic ticket as a protest to the Democratic party's stand for free silver.

It was not long before his legal talent attracted attention in Washington, and in 1903, notwithstanding the fact that he was a Southerner and a Democrat, he was called to the Department of Justice by a Republican national administration. Under direction of Attorney-General Philander Chase Knox he took charge of important anti-trust prosecutions for the Federal Government. He continued to serve as Assistant Attorney-General until 1907, after which he practiced law in New York.

In 1913 he returned to Washington, this time as head of the department in which he had previously served. His work in the first Wilson cabinet, however, was of short duration. In 1914 Justice Horace H. Lurton of Tennessee died and President Wilson elevated his Attorney-General to the Supreme Court to fill the vacancy.

Justice Brandeis; First Practice Was in St. Louis.

Justice Brandeis, oldest member in years, ranks third in seniority. Born in Louisville, Ky., he was educated in the schools of that city and then went in 1872 to Europe where he remained three years. Most of the time abroad he spent in school in Dresden, Germany. On his return to the United States, he enrolled in the law school of Harvard University, then numbering among its faculty such great teachers of the law as Langdell, Ames and Thayer.

Mr. Brandeis first practiced in St. Louis. Coming here in 1878, the year of his graduation at Harvard, he worked as assistant to James Taussig at 505 Chestnut street. While here he was admitted to both State and Federal bars. He resided at 2044 Lafayette avenue. In 1879 he removed to Boston, where he practiced until 1916. In his practice before the Supreme Court he developed a type of brief which brought the force of statistics, official reports and authoritative quotations to the cause he was arguing. He was called to the Supreme Court in 1916 by President Wilson on the death of Justice Joseph Rucker Lamar of Georgia.

Prior to his elevation to the bench, Mr. Brandeis did a great deal of writing on public affairs, chiefly for the periodical press. Some of these writings have been collected in three books, "Other People's Money," "Business—a Profession," and "The Curse of Bigness." A selection of his Supreme Court opinions has been published in book form.

Justice Sutherland; Former Congressman and Senator.

Justice Sutherland, fourth in seniority, served in both branches of Congress, prior to his appointment to the court. Born in Buckinghamshire, England, he emigrated with his parents to the Territory of Utah where he received an academy education. In 1882 he enrolled in the law department of the University of Michigan and the next year he was admitted to the Michigan bar. Soon thereafter he settled in Salt Lake City to practice.

On the admission of Utah to the Union in 1896, he was elected a member of the first Senate of that state. Four years later he was elected to the national House of Representatives as Utah's single Congressman-at-large on the Republican ticket. He declined renomination in 1902, but in 1905 was elected United States Senator by the Utah Legislature. In 1911 he was re-elected to another six-year term, and in time became chairman of the important Senate Judiciary Committee.

While a member of the Senate, he was, in 1916, elected president of the American Bar Association. His appointment to the Supreme Court by President Harding followed the resignation of Justice John Hessin Clarke of Ohio in 1922. A series of lectures which Mr. Sutherland delivered at Columbia University in 1918 has been published with the title, "Constitutional Power and World Affairs."

Justice Butler Active in the Minnesota Bar.

Justice Butler, who ranks fifth in service, was born in Dakota County, Minnesota. After attending the rural schools of his neighborhood, he studied at Carleton College, Northfield, Minn. from which he was graduated in 1887. The next year he was enrolled as a member of the bar at St. Paul, the seat of his work throughout his career as a practicing member of the bar.

As a rising young lawyer, he was elected County Attorney of Ramsey County, Minnesota, in 1891. In 1907 he was chosen a member of the Board of Regents of the University of Minnesota.

Like his colleague on the bench, Justice McReynolds, Mr. Butler also was called by the Department of Justice to assist in anti-trust prosecutions. Canada engaged him as counsel in an arbitration to determine the price it should pay for the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway. Later the city of Toronto retained him as counsel when it took over street railways for municipal ownership and operation.

He went direct from the practice of law to the Supreme Court in 1922 on appointment by President Harding to occupy the associate justiceship left vacant by the resignation of Justice William Rufus Day of Ohio.

Justice Stone Teacher as Well as Practitioner of Law.

Justice Stone, one of the four members of the court to be appointed in the last decade, was born in Chesterfield, N. H. He was educated at Amherst College, graduating in 1894, in the class ahead of that of Calvin Coolidge, who was to appoint him to the Supreme Court. He stayed on at Amherst for graduate work and received the master's degree there. His legal training he obtained at the Columbia University Law School from which he was graduated in 1898. That year he was admitted to the bar in New York.

While practicing in New York City he became interested in the teaching of law and thereafter until his elevation to the supreme bench his career combined both interests. In 1899 he took a post as lecturer in the Columbia University Law School and in 1903 he became adjunct professor.

After devoting himself to bar work from 1905 to 1910, he returned to the Columbia law faculty in the latter year as Kent professor of law and dean of the school.

He changed back to practice in 1923 but in a year was called to Washington by President Coolidge to fill the post of Attorney-General, rendered vacant by the resignation of Harry M. Daugherty following a senatorial investigation of the conduct of the Department of Justice. After only nine months in the cabinet, Mr. Stone was elevated to the high court to fill the vacancy created by the resignation of Justice Joseph McKenna of California.

Justice Stone is a member of the International Academy of Comparative Law, a fellow of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences and a trustee of Amherst College and of the Folger Shakespeare Library in Washington.

Justice Roberts Represented Government in Oil Suits.

Like Justice Stone, Justice Roberts who ranks next to him in seniority, has a background which comprises both the practice and the teaching of law. Born in Philadelphia, he was graduated in 1895 from the University of Pennsylvania with honors and the gold key of Phi Beta Kappa. His law degree, granted three years later by the same institution, bore the coveted Latin phrase, summa cum laude.

He began to practice in Philadelphia in 1898 and remained a member of that city's bar until appointment to the Supreme Court. Commencing in 1898 he was also a member of the University of Pennsylvania law faculty for 20 years. He was successively fellow, instructor, assistant professor and professor of law. From 1901 to 1904 he was first assistant District Attorney of Philadelphia County.

During the World War Mr. Roberts acted as a special deputy Attorney-General to represent the Federal Government in prosecuting cases arising under the Espionage Act. He served, as well, as a representative of the United States Housing Corporation in Philadelphia.

He became a figure of national importance in 1924 when he was chosen, as a Republican, along with the late former Senator Atlee Pomerene of Ohio, a Democrat, to conduct the prosecution for the Federal Government of the cases growing out of the leases of public oil lands in Wyoming and California during the Harding administration. He received this appointment from President Coolidge.

This important work successfully completed, he returned to his practice in Philadelphia. In 1930 President Hoover called him to the Supreme Court to take the seat made vacant by the death of Justice Edward Terry Sanford of Tennessee. The Senate, which had previously refused to confirm President Hoover's appointment of United States District Judge John J. Parker of North Carolina to this seat, readily approved the nomination.

Justice Roberts is a member of the American Philosophical Society and of the council of the American Law Institute, an important organization of members of the bench and bar and the law teaching profession, which is engaged in the monumental task of restating the common law.

Justice Cardozo Elected in New York by Both Parties.

Justice Cardozo sits on the extreme left of Chief Justice Hughes, the place on the bench traditionally reserved for the most recently appointed member. Because he is the Junior Associate Justice, Judge Cardozo reads first, on opinion days, any majority opinions which have been assigned to him.

A native of New York City, he is a graduate of Columbia University, from which he also holds a master's degree, awarded in 1890 for graduate work. The period of his law practice covered the years from 1891 through 1913.

In the latter year he was elected Justice of the Supreme Court of New York on a Fusion ticket for a 14-year term. After Justice Cardozo had served on the Supreme Court only one month, Gov. Martin H. Glynn, a Democrat, designated him to sit as a Judge of the New York Court of Appeals. (As in Maryland and Kentucky, the highest state court in New York is the Court of Appeals.)

Three years later a Republican Governor, Charles S. Whitman, appointed Judge Cardozo to the permanent court and in 1917 he was elected to a full term as Associate Judge. When he was elected Chief Judge of this important state court in 1926, he had the formal support of both major political parties. Since the New York Court of Appeals is the court of last resort in many important suits, Judge Cardozo's work as its head brought him national attention in law circles.

The same literary quality which characterized his opinions as Chief Judge of the New York Court of Appeals marked his lectures and addresses and the result was that he was much in demand as a public speaker. Three sets of his university lectures—two at Yale and one at Columbia—have been published in books entitled "The Nature of the Judicial Process," "The Growth of the Law" and "Paradoxes of Legal Science." Students and teachers of the law regard these books as outstanding contributions to the literature of legal science.

Justice Cardozo also is the author of "The Jurisdiction of the New York Court of Appeals," a study published five years before he sat as a member of that court, and "Law and Literature and Other Essays," consisting for the most part of public addresses.

At the time of his appointment, in 1932, to fill the seat vacated by the resignation of Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes, Judge Cardozo was a trustee of Columbia University and vice-president of the American Law Institute, with which he had been identified since its founding. In 1931 he was awarded both the Ames medal of Harvard University for distinguished contributions to jurisprudence and the Roosevelt Memorial medal for distinguished services in the development of public law.

Recapitulation Shows Distinguished Previous Public Services.

A recapitulation shows that the present personnel of the court includes two former Chief Justices of state courts of last resort, a former Judge of the Federal Circuit Court of Appeals, a former Chief Justice of a territorial Supreme Court, a former Secretary of State, two former Attorneys-General, four former assistant or special deputy Attorneys-General, a former Governor, a former member of both branches of Congress, a former state legislator, a former territorial legislator, a former special Government prosecutor, a former city attorney, a former county attorney, six former teachers or lecturers on the law in universities, four authors of books on legal problems, two former presidents of the American Bar Association, a former Judge of the international courts at The Hague and Geneva, four trustees or former trustees of educational institutions and a former presidential candidate.

Throughout its history the Supreme Court has been constituted on this basis of broad experience and learning in the law. Prior to the present Chief Justice, the two most recent heads of the court were William Howard Taft and Edward Douglass White, and they were, respectively, President of the United States and an Associate Justice before their elevation to the chief justiceship.

George Washington chose for the first Chief Justice, John Jay, who had been president of the Continental Congress, a negotiator of the peace with England and a secretary of foreign affairs. Four years later when Washington again had the opportunity to fill the chief justiceship he chose Oliver Ellsworth, who had served in the Continental Congress, represented Connecticut at the Constitutional Convention and as first chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee had an important part in writing the First Judiciary Act which organized the Supreme Court.

Jackson and Lincoln Named Cabinet Officers to Court.

Prior to his appointment as Chief Justice by John Adams, John Marshall had distinguished himself as a member of the Virginia Assembly, a special commissioner to France, a member of Congress and a Secretary of State. Marshall's successor, Roger Brooke Taney, had been a legislator in Maryland, Attorney-General of his state, and Attorney-General and Secretary of the Treasury in the Cabinet of Andrew Jackson.

Chief Justice Salmon Portland Chase, whom Lincoln named to follow Taney, had been a United States Senator, Governor of Ohio and Civil War Secretary of the Treasury. To cite only one other instance, Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes, appointed by Theodore Roosevelt in 1902, went to the supreme bench after a distinguished career as Associate Justice and Chief Justice of the Supreme Judicial Court of Massachusetts and the writing of a monumental book on the common law.

The Supreme Court has not always consisted of nine members. Article 3 of the Constitution provides that "the judicial power of the United States shall be vested in one supreme court and in such inferior courts as the Congress may from time to time ordain and establish." In 1789 the first Congress, in making this provision effective, established a court with a Chief Justice and five Associate Justices. In 1807 Congress added another associate justiceship and 30 years later two more. The number of seats remained at nine from 1837 to 1863, when the creation of one more associate justiceship gave the court the largest number of seats in its history.

Proposals to Change Size Rejected Since 1869.

In 1866, during the turbulent administration of President Andrew Johnson, Congress passed a law which eventually would have cut the number of seats from 10 to seven. Existing vacancies had reduced the number to eight when Congress in 1869 re-established the court on a basis of nine seats. There has been no change in the size of the court since then.

Proposals to increase the size of the Supreme Court have been advanced from time to time throughout the last half century, usually on the score that more Judges would expedite the court's important work as supreme arbiter. As late as 1922, the American Bar Association proposed enlarging the court, a course rejected as unwise by the then Chief Justice Taft.

Students of our judicial system and historians of the Supreme Court generally agree that there is a limit to the number of Judges the court may have and still function effectively. Mr. Hughes, in the interval between his resignation and reappointment to the court, gave a series of lectures on the Supreme Court at Columbia University in 1927, in which he described in considerable detail how the court works. Careful deliberation by the court and a deep sense of responsibility of its members in the collective judgment stand out as fundamental to sound adjudication and these attributes in turn are definitely related to the number of Judges.

Nine Held Ideal Number; Provides Variety of Opinion.

It is obvious that there is an advantage in having an odd number of Judges rather than an even number as was the case when the court was established. When opinion in the court is closely divided the presence of an odd number ordinarily enables the court to render a decision. Even with an odd number, there is the possibility that one of the Judges will refrain from participating in the consideration of a case for any of several reasons—for example, he might have had an interest in the case as counsel before his appointment—leaving the court divided, 4-to-4. This has happened and when it does the ruling of the ranking lower court stands.

But such situations are not common to the court and in practically all cases the number nine proves adequate. Indeed, there are those who describe it as the ideal number since it provides for a fair sampling of high judicial opinion within effectively ascertainable limits. It is this which accounts for the fact that from Grant's first administration to the present—a span of 67 years—Congress has turned aside all proposals to extend the Supreme Court beyond its present size.

OUTFLOW OF GOLD IS NEW TURN MARKET ENCOUNTERS

Shipments, First Since October, 1934, Result From Inflation Psychology — Weakening of Such Stimulus Seen in Late Week Downturn in Prices.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 8.—The irregular trend of stock prices during the week reflected some weakening of the inflation stimulus in banking quarters.

Active for a while, inflation psychology had as its result the first shipment of gold from these shores since October, 1934.

As recited in some banking circles the chain of cause and effect ran somewhat as follows: Washington questions of how best to meet expenses incident to the bonus and possible new aid to agriculture; selling of dollars and buying of French francs; shipment of gold to France.

An important break in the chain was the disclosure by President Roosevelt that he wished to cancel unspent credits of various Federal relief agencies. Such a write-off, it was indicated, might run to about $1,000,000,000.

To those Wall streeters who have been buying shares on the outlook for inflation, this development signified a posible tightening up of the Federal credit screws.

In any event, this was the reason given by some analysts for the downturn in share prices which occurred the day following the step.

Dollar Stiffens.

Giving weight to this opinion was the fact that other markets confirmed this impression. Both the dollar and U. S. Government bonds stiffened.

Other low-yield bonds held steady, while both rail and utility issues advanced to new highs for the year.

Still somewhat hesitant over the outlook for legislation and the expected Supreme Court decision on TVA, general business was irregular.

Automobile production continued to slow down following the faster than usual pace hit two months ago. With the aid of demand from the railroads, steel output rose more than seasonably, while carloadings, owing to the heavy movement of coal, also expanded more than normally.

Cotton manufacturing and residential building suffered a more than seasonal drop.

One quarter from which encouragement was forthcoming was the capital goods section. Large-scale orders for locomotives and motor busses were seen as illustrative of pent-up need for replacement of heavy equipment.

Final Session Closes Steady.

Prices held well against profit-taking in the week-end market and toward the finish appeared to be gathering vitality.

The final tone was about steady for the bulk of the list with strong spots cropping out here and there even while some realizing still went on.

For the two-hour session the trading pace was hustling, with turnover in the stock exchange at 1,252,480 shares, although lower than previous Saturday's 1,758,972 shares.

Talk of inflation still was relegated to the background, but received a small fillip when it became known that arrangements had been made for further moderate exports of gold from New York to Paris and Amsterdam.

No change was recorded in the Associated Press average of 60 stocks at 60.4. The 15 utilities shaded up .1 of a point to another new high for 1935-36, while the 15 rails were as much down and the 30 industrials were level.

Interest was expressed in the President's statement that he would wait until next month's income tax returns appear before finally deciding whether additional taxes, other than those to be imposed for the farm program, would be necessary.

Franc Around Gold Point.

The fact that leading foreign exchanges, including the French franc, continued to hover around the gold shipping point, did not seem to worry banking quarters particularly. It was noted that franc futures still were at a considerable discount against the dollar. The feeling, also, was that the United States could afford to lose a great deal more gold than already has slipped out of the country.

The French franc closed unchanged at 6.69½ cents and guilders were .02 of a cent easier at 68.77 cents. Sterling was ⅛ of a cent easier at $5.02⅛.

The share list moved unevenly in the first hour. Then the aircrafts developed a following. Douglas, off more than a point at one time, recovered for a gain of as much, but backed up later to close where it started at 70. United Aircraft held an advance of 1¾ at 29¾ and Boeing ended up ½ at 24⅛.

Standard Oil of California jumped 1⅞ to 47⅞ as average daily crude production was lowered on the Pacific Coast. The steels turned up in the final few minutes, along with some of the rubbers and specialties.

NARROW RANGE TO CURB AT WEEK-END

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 8. — Curb market stocks fluctuated in a narrow and indefinite trend in quiet trading today.

A few selected issues in the utility and specialty groups were able to work higher, but the main body of active shares closed unchanged to a trifle lower.

Among gainers of small fractions to around a point were Electric Bond & Share and Ferro Enamel. Such standard trading favorites as Humble Oil, Wayne Pump and United Light preferred ended unchanged.

Losses were shown in Bliss Corp., and International Petroleum.

COMMODITY INDEX DOWN.

NEW YORK, Feb. 8.—Coincident with a clouded legislative atmosphere in Washington regarding a new program for agriculture, the Associated Press commodity index registered a slight decline this week.

The largest setbacks occurred in the staples, most heavily weighted in the index and therefore overshadowed minor gains in other parts of the list.

Prospects of a larger winter wheat crop than was expected was reflected by lower prices. This caused recession in the agriculture index in spite of slight gains in rye and cotton.

Livestock markets showed diverse trends. Cattle and lambs continued to give ground as larger quantities came to market than in the previous week. Hogs, on the other hand, reversed last week's action and were bid up by spot demand.

Eggs, cocoa and butter pushed ahead on good demand, rather than short supplies. Refined sugar prices weakened in what trade circles termed an equalizing move to bring them more in line with the raw. Lard prices also were down.

Some of industry's staples advanced, notably rubber, steel scrap, turpentine and lumber. Drooping burlap prices were the result of the trade's belief that when the present curtailment agreement expires on March 31, the output of Indian mills will be considerably increased.

Textile prices were little changed, with a slight drop in silk more than offsetting a minor increase in wool.

Non-ferrous metals traced a similar course; a tin decline outweighing an advance in antimony.

The 35-commodity index, with its components, and based on 1926 as 100, follows:

	Feb. 7.	Wk. ago.	Yr. ago.

COTTON RULES STEADY IN A QUIET MARKET

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 8.—Cotton was steady in quiet trading today.

May contracts fluctuated between 10.79 and 10.84 and closed at 10.82, with the general market ending steady at net advances of 2 to 4 points.

The trade found no fresh incentives in the weekend news from Washington and business was restricted by a disposition to await developments in farm and tax legislation.

The amount of cotton on shipboard awaiting clearance at the end of the week was estimated at 81,000 bales against 74,000 last year and 161,000 two years ago.

Memphis Spot Cotton.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Feb. 8.—Spot cotton had a steady tone. Middling closed at 11.50c, unchanged from yesterday. Sales amounted to 2557 bales.

COMMODITY INDEX AVERAGES

Other statistical data showing economical trend.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 8.—Sharply curtailed automobile production this week lowered the Associated Press Index of industrial activity to 80.4 from 82.2 last week.

Unusual weather conditions were believed at least partly responsible for the cut in motor output, although some quarters hold that manufacturers are simply awaiting the spring selling season and that stocks of finished and used cars are sufficient for the present.

Cotton manufacturing and residential building also declined more than was seasonally to be expected.

Railroad carloadings jumped sharply as low temperatures stepped up the coal movement. Loadings would have been up less than seasonal without the coal gain; miscellaneous freight, for instance, rising less than the normal amount.

The electric power production index advanced to a record peak. Steel mill activity improved slightly.

The index, with its components, based on the latest available statistics and with 1929-30 as 100, follows:

Week ending Feb. 5 — —	$5,742,000,000
Preceding week — — — —	$5,693,000,000

RAILS ARE PROMINENT IN BOND LIST TRADE

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 8.—The bond market again relied upon railroad issues and Governments for its main source of strength today.

Bond issues listed on the New York Stock Exchange had an aggregate open market value of $40,347,862,478 as of Feb. 1 against $39,398,759,628 on Jan. 1.

The 20 rail bonds used in the Associated Press averages mounted to a new high for the past five years or longer for the fifth day in succession, gaining .1 of a point to 92.6. The averages of the other four groups ranged from .1 of a point higher to .1 of a point lower.

Trading was less active in all divisions and almost at a standstill in the Federal list. Transfers of $10,617,000 compared with $11,910,000 last Saturday. Of this amount sales of Government bonds amounted to but slightly more than $500,000.

There was no news to influence investment sentiment other than additional developments of a favorable nature affecting railroads Official denial of any plans were under foot to merge some of the Western grangers, as reported in financial circles yesterday, did not serve to stem the tide of gossip concerning future possibilites in this direction.

Closing prices of U. S. Governments ranged from a gain of 3-32ds in Treasury 4¼s at 115.18 to a loss of 3-32ds in the 2⅞s at 100.12. Numerous issues close unchanged.

There was little activity in the foreign division. Columbia 6s and Japanese 6½s were among others advancing fractionally.

COLD WEATHER IS MAIN FACTOR IN WHEAT FIRMNESS

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Feb. 8.—Stirred by crop damage reports from the Southwest, and predictions extreme cold would extend into next week, wheat rose nearly a cent a bushel today.

Kansas and Oklahoma both advised of actual injury done to wheat with further losses expected. Dispatches from Kansas said snow covering was scanty or altogether absent over most of the State, and temperatures were 22 below zero at one point.

Notwithstanding transient downturns of the Winnipeg market to fresh bottom price records for the season, wheat in Chicago closed firm at the same as yesterday's finish to ¾ higher, May 98½@⅝, corn ⅛@¼ up, May 60½, oats unchanged to ⅛ advance, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 10 cents.

July contracts, representing first deliveries from the 1936 domestic wheat harvest, displayed greater strength than other months did. May wheat, which stands for grain already in bins, was inclined to lag owing to Winnipeg weakness and relative lack of export demand. Meanwhile, crop authorities emphasized that although damage from extreme cold may not consist of outright winter killing, such weather thins the stands in backward fields and leaves remaining plants weaker, necessitating unusually good conditions the remainder of the season if even a fair crop is to be attained.

Significance was attached to the fact that abnormal cold had struck overnight into wheat territory Southwest which had heretofore been missed. It was also pointed out this area not only has the least protection by snow but that the crop there went into the winter in unfavorable condition, growth being backward. On the other hand, bears asserted most damage to winter wheat is inflicted by a rapid rise in temperatures following a period of low temperatures, and that the time for anxiety is not yet here.

Corn, oats and provisions firmed with wheat.

Wheat futures purchases yesterday totaled 17,345,000 bushels, corn 1,302,000. Open interest in wheat was 106,264,000 bushels, and in corn 23,710,000.

ST. LOUIS MERCHANTS' EXCHANGE, Feb. 8.—Grain futures were influenced by weather and crop reports and final prices on both wheat and corn were unchanged to slightly higher.

Winnipeg wheat opened unchanged and early was off ¼c. The close was ⅛@⅜c net higher.

Liverpool wheat closed ⅝ to ¾d lower following a ¼-½d opening decline.

Local wheat receipts which were 49,500 bu., compared with 45,000 a week ago and 33,000 a year ago included 30 cars local and three through. Corn receipts were 102,000 bu., compared with 48,000 a week ago and 7500 a year ago included 65 cars local and three through. Oats receipts were 18,000 bu, compared with 10,000 a week ago and 16,000 a year ago, included nine cars local. Hay receipts were two cars local.

In the cash grain market Saturday, soft wheat was ½c higher. Demand was good, with mills and elevators doing the buying. There were no offerings of hard wheat. At the close No. 2 was figured at $1.09½@1.10½. Corn was unchanged to ½c lower. Mills and feeders were the principal buyers of yellow corn. The white was taken by elevator and outside order buyers. Clearance was fair. Oatas were ½c lower. Supply was light and the demand only fair. Elevators bought the white, and outside order buyers took the mixed and red.

Utilities Power & Light Agrees to Give Up Its Authority Over Granite City Firm.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, Feb. 8.—Early completion of the reorganization of the St. Louis Gas & Coke Corporation of Granite City was in prospect following the close here yesterday of hearings before a special master of objections to the plan by certain groups of bondholders.

Modifications of the reorganization plan agreed to would take away from Utilities Power & Light Corporation, the huge Harley L. Clarke holding company, the control over the reorganized properties which the earlier plan would have given it. The special master, Edward P. Allen, is expected to file his report March 6 with Federal District Judge J. Earl Major at Springfield, Ill.

Minority bondholders, whose objections held up the reorganization plan for months, agreed through their counsel, Victor Packman of St. Louis, to stipulations by which the control will be in the hands of three voting trustees, one to be nominated by the bondholders, one by Utilities Power & Light Corporation and one by the Court. Before yesterday's modification the plan called for Utilities Power & Light to nominate two of the three trustees.

The St. Louis Gas & Coke Corporation, formerly a subsidiary of Utilities Power & Light, which is the holding company for Laclede Gas Light Co. and Laclede Power & Light Co. of St. Louis, had book assets of more than $20,000,000 when it went into receivership May 31, 1933. It defaulted on a $10,000,000 first mortgage bond issue.

George B. Evans, formerly president of the Laclede Gas Light Co., was appointed receiver and later trustee in the bankruptcy reorganization procedure.

The Reorganization Plan.

Under the reorganization plan, two new corporations are to be organized, one to hold the iron and coke oven properties of the company, and the other to hold the electric generating plant. The iron company will issue $388,520 of first mortgage bonds to mature in five years and pay 5 per cent interest only to the extent earned, and the electrical company will issue $1,554,080 of first mortgage bonds to mature in 25 years and bear 5 per cent interest.

These bonds will be exchanged for the outstanding bonds of the $10,000,000 issue so that all holders of the old issue, except Utilities Power & Light, which has $1,266,500 of them, will receive new bonds to the amount of 25 per cent of the par value of their old bonds. The old bondholders also will get 60 per cent of the common stock of the iron company and 25 per cent of the common stock of the electrical company. Utilities Power & Light Corporation will receive 75 per cent of the stock of the electrical company and 30 per cent of the stock of the iron company, and in return is to surrender for cancellation $330,000 of receiver's certificates of the Gas & Coke Corporation, its $1,266,500 of its bonds and all the stock of the old company, and is to release $1,202,976 of unsecured claims against the old company.

Utilities Power & Light also is to advance not to exceed $50,000 toward administration expenses of the receivership, if the liquidation of inventories on hand is not sufficient to pay these expenses, which will include the fees of the receiver and trustee, and of his attorney, Joseph T. Davis of St. Louis. Utilities Power & Light is to be repaid its advance out of earnings of the new electrical company before the new company's bonds are issued, but issuance of the bonds cannot be delayed longer than 15 months.

Lease of Generating Plant.

The new electrical company is to lease its generating plant for 26 years to the Laclede Power & Light Co., at an annual rental of $125,000. Proceeds of this rental will be used to pay interest on its bonds, provide a sinking fund to retire the bonds, and pay taxes and other corporate expenses.

The reorganization plan does not provide for reopening of the iron and coke plants. The 40 blast furnaces of Gas & Coke have been closed for several months, and under the reorganization placing these properties in the hands of a new iron company it is proposed to conserve the properties and try to sell them or find some established company which will take over the operation of them.

Harley L. Clarke acquired the Gas & Coke Corporation for Utilities Power & Light Co. in 1926 and the $10,000,000 bond issue was floated shortly afterward. In the course of the bankruptcy hearings it was charged that the physical properties were not worth much more than $10,000,000 at the time, and that only a small part of the proceeds of the bond issue was used for the benefit of the Gas & Coke Corporation.

Writers Urge Revision Of the Economic Structure

Attack on Present Order.

In making their case against the present order—for its failure to distribute purchasing power—the authors quote frequently from the report of the Royal Commission on Price Spreads regarding monopoly and the concentration of wealth. The American reader is impressed by the resemblance of this report to the report on certain monopolies prepared by the Federal Trade Commission in this country. The report of the Royal Commission cites certain absolute Canadian monopolies, in explosives, nickel and "certain heavy chemical lines" the report adds:

"In industries where there is monopolistic domination, a large measure of control may rest with a single concern, in spite of the fact that it is not alone in the field. Examples are cement, tobacco, meat packing, petroleum products, fruit and vegetable canning. In others, two or three concerns may dominate the market. In the latter case, agreements among a few producers may cause the public to suffer many of the disadvantages of monopoly with few of the potential economic advantages of centralized control or operation."

Dubious of Government Control.

The Canadian authors see little hope in government "control" of capitalism or in the moderate reforms introduced by former Premier Bennett in Canada. The reforms that Bennett introduced, England has had for many years, the writers point out, and they "did not abolish poverty or touch the roots of the maldistribution of wealth." They say with regard to their country:

"Nothing in the brief experience of the United States under the New Deal in any way contradicts these conclusions. In fact, as every financial page testifies, the chief beneficiaries of Mr. Roosevelt's policies have been the profit makers. Wages have barely kept pace with a rising cost of living, if indeed they have done so much; but dividends have risen nobly. The only distinctive lesson of the New Deal, in fact—lost apparently, on Mr. Bennett—is that in the modern world the great corporations are strong enough to bend or break any government which allows them to exist at all. The only control of big business which can succeed is complete socialization."

"Irresponsible Power."

The Canadian authors trace not only the growth of monopolies in Canada, but the concentration of power over a number of monopolistic combines in the hands of a few individuals. They cite the interlocking directorates through which Canadian financiers control vast and otherwise unrelated spheres of industry and business. And they conclude:

"An irresponsible oligarchy, then, controls the individual corporations, the separate industries and the economy as a whole. It is no answer to protest that in any modern industrial society, Capitalist, Socialist, Communist, Fascist, what you please, the control of economic life will be, and must be concentrated in a few hands; that we cannot turn over the management of the railways of Canada to the entire population of 10,500,000. Granted, but the question is: shall those few be private individuals, answerable to no one but themselves, or public servants responsible to the people. The evil lies not in the inevitable concentration but in the irresponsibility. All history proves that irresponsible power is poisonous to those who wield it. At best they unconsciously identify the public interest with their own.

British Viewpoint.

While the distinguished British authors are less concerned with an indictment of the present order and more taken up with specific proposals for change, they make the same basic charges against society as it is organized at present. They emphasize that "stubborn resistance" to change, or even "a negative attitude of inertia or timidity" will make for "inevitable revolt against reactionary complacency.

"The historic controversy," the British leaders say in their introduction, "between individualism and Socialism—between the idea of a wholly competitive capitalistic system and one of state ownership, relation and control—appears largely beside the mark, if regarded with a realistic appreciation of immediate needs. For it is clear that our actual system will in any case be a mixed one for many years to come; our economy will comprise, with great variety of degree and method, both direct state ownership and control, and management by public and semi-public concerns, and also a sphere in which private competitive enterprise will continue within a framework of appropriate public regulation."

Seeking Workable System.

The authors of the British book stress the need for speeding up the machinery of government so that the changes they propose, in the interests of a "workable" system, can be effected. If the machinery of government is not geared up to modern demands, there will be a constant "peril of dictatorship," the authors add.

Economic Paradoxes.

"The Next Five Years" bears some resemblances to "Practical Socialism for Britain," by Hugh Dalton, a member of the national executive committee of the British Labor party, which was reviewed here last year. Dalton, too, stressed the need for achieving a workable economy through immediate practical changes rather than the arbitrary, revolutionary method of change.

A visitor from another planet would be forcibly impressed, say the British authors, by two striking paradoxes. First, the interplanetary visitor would find the economic mechanism in Great Britain working so "faultily" that one-sixth of the available labor force, at a conservative effort, could not be used "although it is anxious to earn its living and although the wealth it could contribute to the common pool is much needed." Second, the visitor would be made acutely aware of "the extreme inequality of wealth" prevailing among the various levels of society.

"The major economic tasks of the next generation," the writers state, "must be to remedy these two crying defects. We must stop the waste in the economic system, and organize the system in such a way that its actual output of wealth approaches more nearly to the practicable maximum. The scandal of unemployed resources of labor and capital co-existing with unsatisfied wants must be ended.

"And on the other hand we must contrive to get rid of extreme inequalities of wealth and of economic power. We must build up an economic system in which men will not only in fact co-operate for the enrichment of all, but will consider themselves as partners in a joint enterprise rather than tied by the pressure of economic circumstances to a machine they neither accept nor understand.

"Our double objective must be to increase both the productivity and the equity of our economic system. The two aims must march together. We cannot allow equity to precede efficiency if it means merely the equality of grinding poverty. And we cannot for long allow efficiency to precede equity if we are to preserve our society from the outraged revolt of the dispossessed."

No "Planned Economy."

The authors stress that they would not attempt a "planned economy"—and they use the phrase in quotation marks—in every sphere of economic activity. In many fields the "competitve price system" still functions, they point out, to bring the goods to the consumer at a reasonable price. What is important, they say, is intelligent "improvisation." They add a comment on the present situation in Great Britain that would seem to apply equally well to this country.

"At present an elaborate and extensive system of state control is being built up haphazard, successive measures being determined by emergencies or by the successful pressure of some sectional interests and neither related to any general conception or scheme not co-ordinated among themselves. Such a system is bound to be wasteful and inefficient; it is bound to be injurious to all interests except those which are immediately served, and ultimately, as their range extends, injurious even to those interests."

Danger of Overproduction Denied.

The British authors confirm the findings of the Brookings institution that there is no danger whatsoever of overproduction, that the machines will overwhelm the economy with a flood of excess products. There is no "forseeable limit," they say, to the possible increase in the standard of living of the masses and therefore no limit to the "prospective market" for the goods produced by industry.

"Speed has become an essential quality in any program of political action," the British writers conclude, pointing out that it should be possible to carry out the changes they propose within the life of the present session of Parliament. "Leisurely politics will only lead to a sense of frustration and despair. The public is profoundly distressed by the volume of present-day misery. There can be no more dangerous threat to democracy than complacency at a time when so many millions of our people are burdened with poverty or unemployment, and yet are convinced that society can be more sanely organized."

When H. G. Wells, the Archbishop of York, Viscountess Rhondda and David Low, not to mention other extremes among the 152 authors can agree on a program—that is political news. It shows above all how acutely aware these men and women are of the crisis that confronts the world today.

Informal Parties This Week-End

THE pre-Lenten calendar is filled this week-end with small affairs, for the most part informal.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Wright Pettus, 6319 Waterman avenue, celebrated their fourth wedding anniversary last night with about 100 guests invited for dinner and dancing at the Pettus family home, 33 Westmoreland place. Small tables were set through the living rooms and the long art gallery was cleared for dancing. Miss Mary Pettus, sister of Thomas Wright Pettus, and a second-year girl, also entertained some of her younger friends. Another sister, Miss Martha, is in the East visiting relatives.

The game room of their home at 38 Kingsbury place was the setting last night for a tacky party which Mr. and Mrs. M. W. Warne Niedringhaus gave for a small coterie of friends. The party at which supper was served buffet style, was in honor of Mrs. James Lawrence Bailey of New York, the former Miss Helen Hussey of St. Louis, who is the house guest of Mr. and Mrs. Jerome G. Meyer, 53 Portland place. Mrs. Meyer is a sister of Mrs. Warne Niedringhaus.

Miss Virginia Moser, debutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Byron W. Moser, 27 Washington terrace, was the guest of honor at a dinner dance last night given for her by Mr. and Mrs. Parker Woods of Bellerive Acres at the Missouri Athletic Association. Guests, invited for 8 o'clock, were, in addition to the honoree, Miss Carol and Miss Elizabeth Mansfield, Miss Elizabeth Johnston, Miss Pauline Bartels, Mr. and Mrs. Fullerton Woods Luedde, Frank Proctor, William Pratt, Frank Davis, Murray Cabell and Richard Hatton. At another table Mr. and Mrs. Woods entertained 12 of their intimate friends.

Late this afternoon Mr. and Mrs. Lee I. Niedringhaus will give a housewarming in their apartment in the Senate apartments. Mrs. Niedringhaus was before her marriage early in October Miss Jane Switzler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Royall H. Switzler of Ridgewood and McKnight roads.

St. Louis Girls At Dartmouth For Ice Carnival

Invited for Festivities of Twenty-Sixth Annual Sports Event by Students There From This City.

HANOVER, N. H., Feb. 8.

SIX St. Louis girls were among the more than 1000 guests at the twenty-sixth annual winter carnival at Dartmouth College this week-end. They were Miss Virginia Elmer, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Warren P. Elmer, who was the guest of Morton D. May of St. Louis at the Zeta Psi House; Miss Dorothy Anne Mummert, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arden J. Mummert, who stayed at the Sigma Nu House, as did Miss Georgia Flynn. They were escorted by James C. Jones III and Walter Ross, respectively, both of St. Louis. At the Alpha Delta Phi House were Miss Ann Reinholdt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Julius W. Reinholdt Jr., and Miss Alice Jane Meyer, daughter of Mrs. A. W. Morriss Jr., who were the guests of Howard Carey and Arthur J. Cohen Jr. Miss Judith Wiener, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Meyer Wiener, visited the Sigma Chi House, escorted by Thomas Mast.

The Combined Intercollegiate Ski Union and Dartmouth Carnival Winter Sports meet provided entertainment for the young women. In addition, Gilbert and Sullivan's "Ruddigore" was presented last night and was repeated this evening. Numerous sports events, the New Hampshire speed skating championships, and dances at fraternity houses, crowded the week-end schedule.

Miss Polly Blodgett, national junior figure skating champion, appeared with her partner, Roger Turner, between the events of the speed skating races yesterday afternoon. Miss Blodgett also gave an exhibition at "Schneeweisen," the outdoor evening presentation, based on Grimm's fairy tale of "Snow White."

During the week-end Dartmouth met many opponents in varsity athletic competition. The swimming team competed against the Princeton tank team in the Spaulding pool; the hockey team met the Harvard sextet, and the Indian five opposed the Yale basketball team.

Among the many interesting ice sculpture displays was the reproduction of an Indian totem pole before the Alpha Tau Omega House, the model of Baker Memorial Library outside New Hampshire Hall, and a simulated seal, poised ready to dive into a pool on the front lawn of the Alpha Delta Phi House.

Miss Ann Hopkins, daughter of President Ernest Martin Hopkins of Dartmouth, returned home from studies at Smith College to be chosen Queen of the Snows for the 1936 Winter Carnival.

The mercury remained around zero during the festivities.

WASHINGTON SCENE

By the POE SISTERS

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.

A SWEET-FACED matron, quietly garbed in a tailored tweed suit, and accompanied by three young people, a collegian, a lad in knickerbockers and a girl of 18, stood in the doorway of the blue room of the White House about this time last year. The young people had note books in their hands and were busily engaged in writing down items of interest being told to them about the room and its furnishings by a White House attache. Somehow they seemed more interested than the usual tourists, and indeed they were.

They were Mrs. Huey P. Long, now appointed to the United States Senate in her husband's place, her daughter, Rose Lolita Long, and her sons Palmer Reid Long and Russell Billiu Long.

Mrs. Long will not be the first Southern woman to serve in the Senate. The first was Mrs. Rebecca Felton of Georgia, who sat for a single day in the seat of the United States Senator from that State.

This was on Nov. 21, 1922, and when she sat in her place in the Senate and made a short speech on the place of women in politics this unusual procedure went unchallenged, all appreciating the effort it cost the 87-year-old woman Senator to speak at all.

APROPOS of women serving in national parliaments it was interesting to picture Lady Nancy Astor, England's American-born first woman member of Parliament, pledging her allegiance to King Edward VIII along with the other members of the British House of Commons. Lady Astor has not been home to America since 1933, but she may return next fall.

When she was in Washington last, she was a guest at the Woman's National Press Club at tea in her honor as a member told her that her close friend and associate in the international policewoman movement, the late Lieut. Mina Van Winkle, chief of the Woman's Bureau of the Metropolitan Department of Police, was lying at the point of death in her Georgetown home. "Let's go there at once!" exclaimed Lady Astor. She bade hasty farewell to her tea hosts and dashed across the city in a taxicab to Mrs. Van Winkle's home.

THE last time Clara Clemens, only surviving daughter of Mark Twain, now Mme. Ossip Gabrilowitsch, wife of the Detroit musician, she told a little-known anecdote of her father and Mrs. Grover Cleveland, now Mrs. Thomas Preston of Princeton.

Mark Twain, during the Cleveland administration, came to Washington to attend a reception at the White House. Knowing the Missourian's absent-mindedness, Mrs. Clemens warned him to be certain to remove his galoshes before he went into the state rooms. In fact, she wrote him a note to the effect, and he found it just as he was entering the White House and removed his "arctics" just in time.

When he greeted Mrs. Cleveland he held up the line a moment or two while she wrote the cryptic words, "He did not," over her signature on a little white card. Proudly Mark bore the card back home as proof to his good wife that "he did not wear his galoshes into the drawing room.

THE presence of Mrs. Izetta Jewell Miller at Mrs. Roosevelt's luncheon on Tuesday recalled to many the days when Mrs. Miller, as Izetta Jewell, helped the officials of the Wilson administration to while away war-time worries watching her as leading lady in the Poli Theater Stock Co.

When the World War came, the actress threw herself heart and soul into war service work, helping in the entertainment of soldiers in nearby encampments. Then she married Representative Brown of West Virginia and became active in the official set. After Representative Brown's death his widow waged a vigorous campaign for his seat in Congress, but was defeated.

At the same White House luncheon was another World War contemporary of Mrs. Roosevelt's, Mrs. Mason Gulick, wife of Gen. Gulick, United States Marine Corps. In war days Mrs. Gulick was head of the refreshment corps of the District of Columbia Red Cross. Mrs. Roosevelt, in gingham dress and white apron with a Red Cross on it, was one of her workers. She reported for duty daily in the Red Cross shack far down the railroad track from the Union Station, where the troop trains were passing hourly. These two women scrubbed counters and made sandwishes together during those trying days.

THE withdrawal of the U. S. Marine Band from the eleventh Woman's National Patriotic Conference on Defense last week because of a speaker's attack on the administration, revived memories of another time when the Marine Band, Navy and Marine facilities were recalled from another patriotic organization, the Navy League of the United States. President Wilson and Secretary of the Navy Daniels took offense at some of the editorials of the magazine, Sea Power, organ of the Navy League. Up to that time the Navy League and its woman's auxiliary had had the hearty co-operation of Navy and Marine Corps in its relief and war comforts ministrations to the men of the Navy. Then the order barring Navy League officials from naval reservations went out and its president, Col. Robert M. Thompson, a graduate of the Naval Academy, could not put his foot inside a navy yard or Annapolis naval reservations.

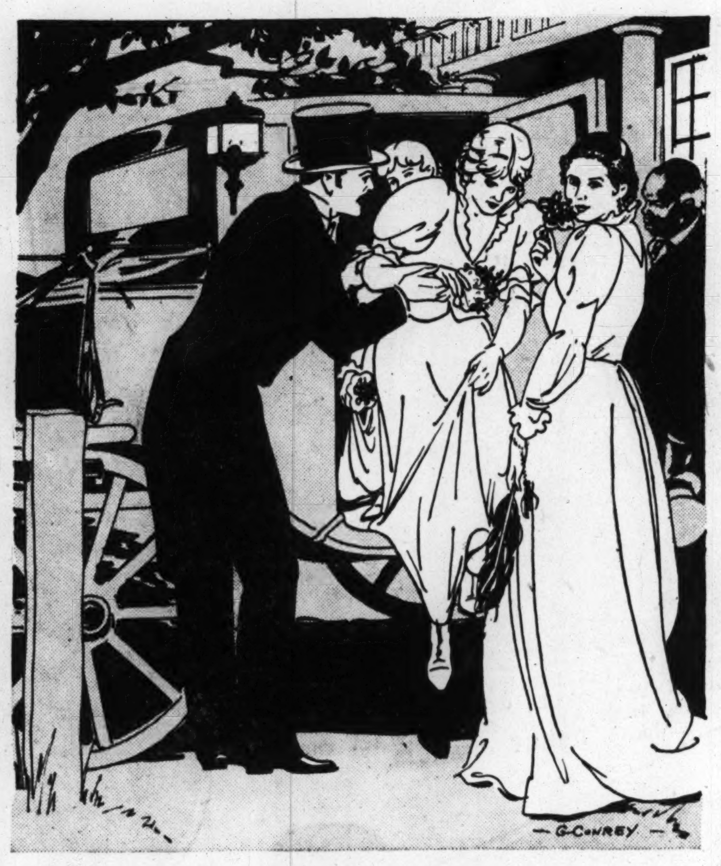
MEN

Question of Chaperons or Assigned Escorts Is Nothing New; Neither Is the Seeming Scarcity of Eligible Youths Who Will Spend Money.

Grandmothers of This Season's Buds Faced the Same Perplexities, and Solved Them, Too, Much as the Situation Is Being Met at Present Time.

By ALICE LINN BROKAW.



THE debutante of 1936 has the same problems as had the debutante of 1886—for one, the scarcity of eligible men with money to spend. It seems impossible to us who have heard our grandmothers sigh for the good old days, but it is true, according to an article in the Post-Dispatch of Jan. 2, 1886, in which prominent society matrons and beaux discussed a related question, the advisability of sending girls to parties with chaperons. There is a similarity between that situation and the one at the Council meeting last November when the past season's debutantes and their mothers threshed out the problem of assigned or unassigned dates.

The debutante of today, who must remain away from a party if she is not invited by some young man, may be able to take a tip from grandmother. The man, for the greater part, has settled his difficulties—he rides in her father's or his father's car, and he sends flowers only on state occasions. For the men all is rosy with one exception—they must dance from midnight until breakfast. But the debutantes' problem remains.

IT WILL be a great revelation to those who have also heard grandmother say no girl would consider going out unchaperoned, especially in a carriage, to learn that the movement to revive the chaperon custom in the 1880s was not based on a point of propriety, but on an economic cause—money. The young men whom parents might choose for their daughters could not afford the expenses of the party, for carriage, flowers, tips and personal items. Mrs. Ben Kimball and Mrs. Henry Overstoltz favored the idea of chaperons because it was proper and wise, mainly because they adhered closely to the traditions of their French and German ancestors, but, for the most part, the ladies were motivated by the practical necessity of getting their daughters to parties. It had been rumored that the young men had rebelled against the expense and would not invite the girls. With a chaperon, four or five could go in one carriage, and the men would have only to present themselves at the ball.

ONE of the leading dowagers of the '80s, Mrs. "General" Larned, said: "The situation is becoming clearly defined. Girls must either remain home for want of an escort or must be accompanied by a chaperon; and in order for her to feel easy in dispensing with the the escort and accepting the chaperon, the custom must become general.

"In Washington City it was the universal custom for parents to take their daughters in their own carriages to parties and receptions. If the entertainment was of such a character as to permit the hostess to look after such matters, an escort was assigned to each young lady, who accompanied her to the parlor, supper and performed the usual duties of an escort, handing her into the carriage, where her parents awaited her. This seems to me the natural and proper thing, and I greatly prefer to take my daughters with me to all entertainments.

"Of course, however, in St. Louis that is not always practical as the fathers and mothers are not often included in the invitations, and the houses are not large enough to entertain both old and young together as they are in Washington. In that event I think I would prefer sending them in a party of three or four in one carriage, as is often done in New York. Of course, if a young lady has a brother there is no trouble about it as the brother is the natural escort and I think he may, without impropriety, chaperon, so to speak, a party of girls, his sister being of the party, naturally precluded all possible impropriety."

Without use of a name the article further recorded: "A pretty young debutante on Pine street, then an abiding place of the socially elect, who has no lack of beaux, and is not particularly interested in the matter so far as she is concerned, thinks it would be a good thing, for she knows that there are lots of pretty and interesting girls who are obliged to remain away from many entertainments, not because the girls fail to attract, but there are so few men who can afford it, compared to the number of girls who are to be provided with escorts. Besides she thinks a chaperon indispensible at the party—someone to hold one's fan and flowers, and to go in case there is a hitch in partners. Her aunt, who is also of an old French family, coincides with her, and usually accompanied her pretty niece."

MRS. J. L. D. MORRISON, who was one of the greatest social leaders St. Louis has ever had and whose hospitality and parties are still remembered, approved the idea of chaperons and always made it a rule to accompany her daughter to parties whenever practical.

"She always sends them in her own carriage," reported the Post-Dispatch, "thereby relieving herself of any feeling of obligation to the young man, except for the courtesy of having invited them. She made the first move in this direction when she organized last winter the Small and Early and Monday German clubs, at which the moderate expenses were shared alike by ladies and gentlemen. The ladies in turn tendered their own houses, furnished the supper and the favors. The gentlemen furnished the carriages in which it was stipulated three ladies escorted by one gentleman in each carriage were to be conveyed to their destination. This made the expenses to the gentlemen trifling. . . ."

ANOTHER society belle said "sometimes she wished that she were either married or dead. First comes the anxiety as to whether she will be invited by any gentleman of her acquaintance to attend, and if she is so fortunate, there is the mortal dread that she may have to share her escort with a half-dozen less fortunate girls, who have come with chaperons, and there are consequently more girls than men, with a prudent eye to the future, when her own beaux may not be so abundant, she rather wishes the custom may be established, but for Heaven's sake, have it general, beaux or no beaux, so that if a girl does venture with a chaperon and without an escort she may have an open field before her when she gets there.'"

Another dowager, Mrs. Rufus J. Lackland, "regards the chaperon as just and expedient, and not a necessity, as she believes our girls can be fully trusted either with or without a chaperon with propriety. It is only in cases of illness or waiting for a partner or to avoid little hitches in the movement of the wheels of society, and then it is a pleasure . . ."

Mrs. "General" Carr approved of the course the young women adopted in not inviting the girls out, and spoke for a large circle of people when she said the movement is hailed with pleasure as having a tendency to make girls independent as they are in Eastern cities where they go with chaperons to parties."

ONE young woman sighing over the inevitable replied when questioned, "Well, I think if the girls want to go out at all, they had better take to chaperons pretty quick—all the girls I know are in a desperate fix. Chaperons aren't so bad, they get to flirting themselves and pay very little attention to us. The only thing is that sometimes they monopolize the men and the floor. When they do get hold of a fellow they never seem to know when to let him loose.

Mrs. "General" Henderson expressed an idea which is so often heard today, that the most eligible bachelors are not able to attend the parties.

"The bone and sinews of society, the business men, are practically shut off from attending balls and parties, if custom makes it necessary for them to escort some lady . . . they can not afford to devote the time to it, since it robs them of their rest and unfits them for their duties of the day. On the other hand, if the ladies are independent of them as escorts, and they can be at liberty to choose their time for going and retiring, they would enjoy the recreation, and the list of gentlemen at parties would be materially increased. The eligible men, who have been elbowed into the background by the society swells, would then come to the front."

THE gentlemen of 50 years ago were unwilling to admit that they had banded together and decided not to invite the ladies out that winter but they did say, "So many wrecks were strewn by the wayside from last season and so many are still laboring under financial embarrassments, that they have individually called a halt, and all prudent, worthy young men have determined to live within their incomes. After they have paid their board bills, their tailors, their shoemakers they are willing to devote what remains to the enjoyment of the ladies, but it is easy to be seen that out of the average salary of $75 or $100 a month, after paying one's bills and laying a little aside for sickness or a rainy day, there will be very little left for corsages, flowers and presents."

"The results from the interviews showed that with usual American thrift and foresight we are trying to put society on a safe cash basis, so that we may enjoy ourselves rationally and without misgivings."

SO, really young ladies, the year may be 1936, and the manners 1936, but the human problems remain the same.

And grandmother knew a thing or two.

Quiet Week in Society In Nation's Capital

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.

WITHIN a few weeks Ash Wednesday—Feb. 26—will drop the curtain temporarily on formal entertaining. The weeks between now and then will be crowded with activity, despite the fact there has been a curtailment of diplomatic entertaining because of official mourning for the late King George of England.

State functions at the White House cease with Lent, so the two remaining receptions on the official calendar will be held within the next two weeks—the congressional reception, postponed from Jan. 23 as a graceful gesture to the British nation in mourning, and the Army and Navy reception. The reception to officials of the Treasury, Postoffice, Interior, Agriculture, Commerce and Labor departments was held Thursday evening.

The Vice-President and Mrs. Garner were hosts this week to the President and Mrs. Roosevelt at dinner, with a distinguished group in attendance, including the Chief Justice and Mrs. Hughes, Speaker of the House and Mrs. Byrns, guests from the Senate and the House, a few chosen friends from other cities and a few chosen representatives of the press. Following dinner, entertainment was presented.

NEW YORK, Feb. 8.

Courtlandt Barnes, who is reasonably horsey himself, tells of a recent experience in the superlatively equine purlieus of Middleburg, where you can't tell a salon from a tack room and where even Mrs. Paul Mellon, who gets asthma something terrible at the mere sight of a horse, has had to keep a stable. At a cocktail party Mr. Barnes perceived an aged gaffer, a veritable centenarian, cautiously exploring the inside of a highball glass, while his trailing white mustaches drooped with weary age. Just to make a conversation, Mr. Barnes said brightly: "And do you ride, sir?" The old gentleman bristled perceptibly and snapped: "And do you read?"

From Frank Buxton, the amiable and erudite editor of The Boston Herald, this department is in receipt of 10 pounds of the most elegant cheese, or almost at any rate, that ever was sent down to Bleek's Artists and Writers' Restaurant, to be served for lunch. It resembled a cross between a New York State Muenster and a Pont L'eveque. Mr. Buxton discovered the nonesuch in the free lunch at a bar of the Harvard Club up in Commonwealth avenue, and asserts that the first night the steward furnished it forth 50 pounds disappeared before you could say "Dry Martini!" For cheese amateurs, we are happy to record that the inventor, author and proprietor of what he calls a "Vermont hand-made cheese" is A. W. Crowley of Headville, Vt. The inventor of Camembert is immortalized by a statue in France, and grateful citizens might very well establish a town watering trough or a memorial cannon-ball stove at the Headville Center Store in honor of Mr. Crowley.

Cecil Beaton, the languid photographer of folk who count, is back in town from London and bravely carrying the torch for clothes that set Manhattan's lorgnons aquiver. He showed up at the Colony for lunch last week in a little number Lanvin had run up for him in a pale shade of apple green, with a darker green waistcoat, double-breasted and buttoned with gold and emerald links. Every one remarked how fine and brave he was. Next day he wore an old-fashioned four-button jacket of the sort that used to be known as the regulation Brooks steam-heated suit — you know, buttoned at the top and sort of vaguely resembling Chauncey Depew. Next perhaps to Burgess' Meredith, the most admired and applauded juvenile of the season along Broadway is Vincent Price. Although he had never been seen on the American stage before and had had only the briefest experience in England, he achieved overnight success as Prince Albert in Helen Hayes' "Victoria Regina," and in no time came to be one of the people of consequence around town. Now his six feet four and blond mop of hair dominate two or three cocktail parties an afternoon, and there is a vast demand for his presence at all the clambakes among cafe society.

The role of the Prince Consort of the Victorian reign was, it seems, designed by an amiable Providence for the precise convenience and gratification of Mr. Price. For one thing, he is a fluent linguist, so that the heavy German accent required by the characterization comes easily to him. In addition to this, he was, when at Yale, an admirer and student of the nineteenth-century English scene and familiar with the last detail of the tragic royal romance. Besides all this, he has relatives in England who recalled for him much gossip and detail of the British court in the '40s and '50s that never could have been found in libraries. As a result, he has, with Mr. Housman's script, created a characterization which is by no means overshadowed by Miss Hayes' Victoria. It has become the "must" play of the season.

We are in receipt of an informative and joyous publicity handout from a Miss Weiss, hymning the glories of something called the International Club and its director, "Mr. Francis M. Rorstrom, formerly of the Governors Island Club and well known as the most famous restaurateur in the world." Not to cavil at the redundancy of being "well known as the most famous," Miss Weiss, is there no brief for, say, Caesar Ritz, Rosa Lewis, of the Cavendish; Theodore Titze, Charles Muller of Shepheard's, in Cairo; M. Schwenter of the Meurice, in Paris; Albert Keller, of the New York Ritz; Max Blount, of the George V, in Paris; Albert Gilles of the Savoy; New York's own Max Herring, Louis Adlon, Raymond Orteig, owner of the Lafayette, or the proprietors of the Absinthe House, in New Orleans; Raffles, in Singapore; Ham's in Portsmouth; the Cafe de Paris, Papa Monetta or the managing director of Claridge's? Come, come, Miss Weiss, or you'll have his friends calling the director of the International Club, in Forty-sixth Street, "About Ben Rorstrom."

WHAT DESSERTS DO HUSBANDS LIKE?
ANSWERED BY MRS. KNOX

● When friend husband sends his plate back for more—then you can be sure the dessert was a success. Expect that to happen often when you make desserts with Knox Sparkling Gelatine, because Knox recipes are the result of years of study on the dishes men like the very best. Thousands of women have written me, telling what their husbands' favorites are, and my recipe books contain the pick of them all.

This Tropical Delight, delicious as it is, is only one of several hundred equally attractive dishes you can make with plain gelatine. Knox combines with all Nature's fruits and vegetables ...it makes fluffy chiffon pies of a dozen different kinds... puddings that are plump with goodness...salads so delicious even husbands praise them. It does all this economically, because a package makes four entirely different dishes, six servings each. There are recipes in the package—and for two FREE handbooks on desserts husbands like just mail the coupon.

ROBERT E. DAVIS HEADS SHAWNEE SCOUT LODGE

Senior Organization Celebrates Sixth Anniversary of Founding in City.

Robert E. Davis has been elected president of Shawnee Lodge, Order of the Arrow. The sixth anniversary of the organization, first senior scout activity formed here, was celebrated at a meeting Monday at Union Avenue Christian Church.

Thirty-five members were advanced to second-honor for distinguished service to scouting. This service consisted of aiding underprivileged scout troops. Scouts are first elected to the Order of the Arrow for outstanding work at camp.

Other officers elected were Ferd Gast and Walter Stay, vice-presidents; Carl Ehrhardt, secretary, and Earl Bierman, Karl Kirberg, Ben Ross, Clifford Green and James Stevenson, representatives to the board. Bill Parks Jr. was named editor of the Shawnee News.

A chapter of Alpha Phi Omega, national Boy Scout fraternity, is being formed at Washington University. About 50 scouts now attending the university are helping form the fraternity chapter.

Its work will consist mainly of assistance to freshmen, both scouts and non-scouts. The fraternity will be the third type of senior scouting organization for older boys in the St. Louis Council.

Scout safety groups will be formed at a meeting of South Side scouters tomorrow night, at 7:30 o'clock, at St. Paul's Evangelical Church. The campaign will be under direction of Former Police Judge James G. Blaine, who is chairman of the district court of honor.

North district scout leaders and their families will hold a "get-together" Tuesday evening at Friedens Evangelical Church, 3959 North Nineteenth street. Troops 83, 92 and 236 will be on the program.

Walter Stay has been elected rovermaster of the Central district's Rover Post.

Troop Notes.

Scouts Bingham Goerner and Russell Irish received eagle badges and Robert Berkemeyer an eagle palm at a court of honor held recently by Webster Groves 8. Life awards were given to John Dale and Fred Span, and star badges to Burk Stout, Hugh Martin and Burt Smith.

Scouts Stanley Kaisel and Ted Horning were advanced to life rank and Stanley Waxman to star rank at a Troop 30 court of honor at the Y. M. H. A.

Troop 44, St. Rose School, received its achievement award streamer at a court of honor Friday.

Troop 7, Kingshighway Presbyterian Church, advanced three scouts to first-class rank and two to second class at a court of honor.

Lester Stausbach is now scoutmaster of Troop 1, Thomas Station.

Assistant Scoutmaster Clarence Tonopolsky of Troop 13 has received the gold eagle palm. Bill Orr received a bronze palm.

Troop 118 will hold a masquerade and tacky party at the German House Feb. 22.

The Lions' Club of Kirkwood will sponsor a new Sea Scout ship to be organized Thursday at Kirkwood Methodist Church. Barton N. Grant will be skipper, William Odeal, first mate, and Bill Kiel, second mate.

Girl Scouts.

The last of a series of four training courses for troop and pack committee members, offered by the St. Louis Girl Scout Council, will be held Wednesday afternoon at St. John's Methodist Church, Kingshighway and Washington boulevard. A tea will follow the meeting.

Mrs. Louis H. Burlingham will speak on the activities of physically-handicapped girl scouts. There are five such troops here, more than in any other city.

In this area there are 5000 girl scouts and brownies, younger scouts, supervised by 1000 adult volunteer workers. The volunteers are trained by seven paid workers. There are 40 Brownie packs here, the largest number in any city. The girls in the packs range in age from 7 to 10.

Troop 1, Webster Groves, presented a radio skit Tuesday evening. The housekeeper and laundress badge scouts gave a "Clara, Lou and Em" parody.

Troops 54, Eden Methodist Episcopal Church, and 68, Holy Cross House, are working for the Needlework Guild of America and are making scrapbooks for the Red Cross as community projects.

Organized Needy Exchange Services for Necessities

League of 200 St. Louis Negroes Formed in 1932, Sponsors Co-operative Apartment and Other Benefits.

Frederick Simms, Negro instructor at the Washington Vocational School, whose principal hobby is helping the members of his race help themselves, yesterday told a Post-Dispatch reporter of the activities of the Unemployed Citizens' League, Local No. 4, of which he is an adviser. The league is an organization of about 200 Negroes, who, for the last four years, have been supplementing their relief allowances by exchanging their services for food, clothing and living quarters.

Local No. 4 is the only one of 13 locals, organized in 1932, that is still functioning, Simms said. The other 12 disbanded, some after the start of the Civil Works Administration program in the spring of 1933, the others when the Works Progress Administration program began several months ago.

Co-Operative Apartment.

"Our organization believed that something more than temporary relief was needed and instead of disbanding, widened our scope of activities," Simms said. "One of the principal things we have sponsored has been the establishment of a co-operative apartment house at 2941-45 Atlantic avenue. The buildings house 10 families, about 65 persons altogether, and we have arranged with the owners that the tenants shall receive free rent in return for maintaining the buildings and keeping them in repair. The plan has been successful, and we hope to establish other co-operative dwellings. The fact that the plan benefits the owners of the property, too, is shown by the fact that other buildings on this block of Atlantic avenue have been vacated because tenants were unable to pay rent, and have fallen into disrepair."

Arrangements have been made by the League with many shops serving Negro districts in the city to furnish food to members of the organization in exchange for services, Simms said.

Most of the activties of the League are carried on at All Saints Episcopal Church, 2931 Locust street. The Rev. D. R. Clarke, pastor of the church, is a member of the board of advisers with Simms and Miss M. Antionette Howard, a nurse.

Garment Making, Needlecraft.

"We endeavor to find the most suitable work for each member," said Simms. "At present, we have classes in garment making and needlecraft for the women and cabinet making and carpentry for the men. If a member is not suited for any of these activities, we try to find something he can do. One of our members, for instance, has a truck. We made contacts for him that enabled him to build up a trucking business that supported himself and his family."

There are also recreational classes for the children, including games, athletics, singing classes and presentation of plays and pageants. Instruction and supervision in all activties is furnished by the advisers and the members themselves. The League, through the advisers, assists its members in obtaining materials by donations and finding markets for the goods. Ten men last summer, Simms said, made vegetable crates, which found a ready market.

In additon, the League maintains health classes, clinics for adults and children, and classes for young women in the care and nurture of children, this work being under the general supervision of Miss Howard, assisted by health agencies.

"Helped to Help Themselves."

"We try to encourage our members to help themselves," said Simms. "Most of them need help, it is true, but once we show them how to help themselves, they become less and less dependent on us. We keep in touch with those who may need work done and establish contacts between them and our members. The whole idea is anything but a temporary relief measure. In most cases, of course, our work supplements the work of relief agencies. But in trying to show our members how to help themselves and become less dependent on outside help, we are gradually getting them out of the idea that all they need to do is sit back and let the relief agencies take care of them."

The League receives few donations of money, Simms said, and most of the donations are in small amounts, a few dollars at a time, used to purchase materials for the various classes.

Community Gardens an Aim.

"We hope to expand our program this year," said Simms, "one of the new activities the advisers are contemplating is the establishment of community gardens, where many of our members can raise some of the food they need, similar to the community gardens established for white persons several years ago."

Simms has been a resident of St. Louis six years, coming here in 1909 from Petersburg, Pa., to instruct classes in building trades at the local Negro schools. Always interested in community work, he has devoted most of his spare time to the activities of the Unemployed Citizens' League, confident that its activities offer a permanent solution for the needy and unemployed.

VICAR COLLECTS ON CHURCH BAZAAR THAT IS NOT HELD

Bills Parishioners for What They Might Have Spent, Saves Trouble and Gets Money.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Feb. 8.—That, people disliked church bazaars was the belief of the Rev. C. W. Hutchinson, vicar of St. John's, Waterloo. So, to save annoyance to churchgoers, he abolished the annual parish bazaar, and instead billed expected patrons, in blank, as follows:

Bus fares to hall — — — — — —
Entrance fee — — — — — — — — —
Wear and tear—clothes — — — —
Wear and tear—tempers — — — —
Afternoon tea — — — — — — — —
Side shows — — — — — — — — —
Contributions to booths — — — —
Useless articles bought — — — —
Total — — — — — — — — — — —

He invited recipients to let their consciences guide them in filling in the amounts, and added "please remit." They did, beyond all expectations and beyond all previous receipts for bazaars.

William LaVarre to Speak Before Contemporary Club.

William LaVarre, South American explorer, will speak on "Gold, Diamonds and Orchids" before the Contemporary Club at 6:45 p. m. Feb. 19, in the Coronado Hotel.

His six expeditions have taken him through the jungles and into the mountains of British Guiana, Brazil and Venezuela. On one expedition LaVarre found the 31 carat Kurepung Diamond, the largest ever found in North America. His wife has accompanied him in his explorations.

RULES of the CONTEST

Each contestant must see the Mystery Car at one of Greater St. Louis' automobile dealers and fill out an entry blank, giving an estimate of the sale price of the car.

Each estimate blank must be accompanied by a letter of 50 words or less telling "Why I Believe It Is Smart to Drive Safely."

The contest opens February 9 and closes February 24. All estimates and letters submitted must be received at the Contest office or be postmarked not later than midnight, February 24.

Estimates and letters are to be sent to "Mystery Car Contest," in care Post-Dispatch, 12th and Olive St., St. Louis, Mo.

Judges to be announced will pass on all estimates and letters and their decisions will be final.

The Judges' awards will be based on the most original and convincing information given in the letter.

In case of ties, duplicate prizes will be awarded.

The contest is open to anyone, except persons (or their families) connected with any of the sponsoring organizations or with any of the dealers comprising the organization's membership.

All entries become the property of the sponsors.

YOU ARE NOT OBLIGED TO BUY ANYTHING IN ORDER TO ENTER THIS CONTEST

There are no strings to this interesting cash contest. The dealer's salesman will give you first-hand information about the mystery car. He will encourage you to ask questions as to the car's condition and other valuation features, upon which to base your estimate. He will not tell you the price if he knows it. You are at liberty, however, to seek and inquire about other cars for sale, of the same make, model and relative condition. These figures should aid you in getting a fair idea of the mystery car sales price. You cannot buy this mystery car if you want it—not until after February 24. It will be up to you to get the facts about it and write your estimate clearly on the entry blank.

The letter you are to send with the estimate, however is most important. You know why safe driving is smart. You know why it pays. Tell in your own words in an original and convincing manner just why. The letter must not exceed 50 words. The judges will consider only letters accompanied by estimates in awarding the prizes. The original convincing information in the letter will be the deciding point. Submit letters simply and legibly. Letters may be written or typewritten, preferably on one sheet of paper and on one side of the sheet to facilitate handling. The estimate and letters must be in the office of "Mystery Car" Contest, care of Post-Dispatch, 12th and Olive St., by midnight, February 24th, or postmarked not later than midnight.

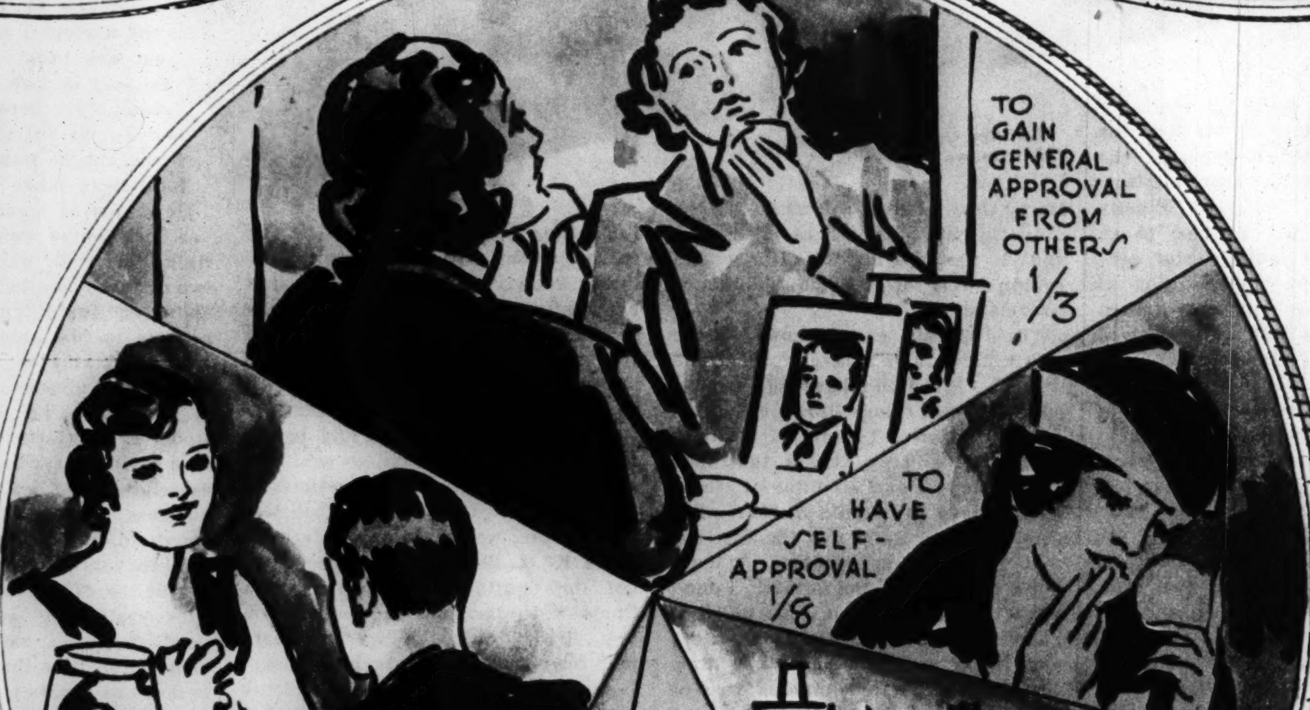
AMERICANS SPEND ONLY ONE-THIRD THEIR INCOMES FOR NECESSITIES



A Statistical Analysis of "Where Our Money Goes" as Between What Is Spent for Keeping Alive and What for Winning Affection, Praise, Power.

By KEITH KERMAN
A Member of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine Staff

EXCEPTIONALLY dogged persons who are still keeping their New Year's resolution to budget their income, harassed husbands who moan that money doesn't grow on trees, the writers of advertisements designed to sell things, and almost anyone else who is concerned with the spending of money may find something to think about in a new psychological study of buying. They may get an insight into complicated motives behind simple purchases, and acquire a new conception of the relation of desire and need as expressed in expenditures.

They may learn, for example—if the psychologists have figured things out correctly—that two per cent of the amount Americans spend for clothing represents a desire to win affection; that about 10 per cent of the expenditure on cosmetics and beauty shops is for the purpose of obtaining domination over others; that 15 per cent of the total expenditure for food is dictated by the desire to taste and smell something pleasant.

It may or may not give them pause to be told that only a third of what is spent—at least, what was spent just before the depression—is strictly necessary.

Dr. Edward L. Thorndike, professor of psychology in Teachers' College, Columbia University, told of this application of psychology to the matter of spending in a recent address in St. Louis. His paper, which had the subject, "Science and Values," was given in connection with his retirement as president of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, at the annual convention of that organization.

Citing a table giving total estimated expenditures of the people of the United States in 1929 in the principal categories, such as food, clothing, automobiles and tobacco, Dr. Thorndike related that, with the aid of "a consensus of psychologists," he had analyzed the various items of expenditure with respect to wants, and had divided each item among the wants "to which it probably ministers." He assigned to each want a certain proportion of responsibility for the expenditure.

Thus he divided the amount spent for food in this country in 1929—given as 17 billion dollars in the table—as follows: "To satisfy hunger, 56 per cent; to gratify the pleasures of taste and smell, 15 per cent; for the pleasures of companionship and social intercourse, including courtship, 10 per cent; to the approval of others, three and one-half per cent, and smaller percentages for protection against disease, protection against cold, enjoyment of the comfort of others and the pleasures of vision."

The eight billion dollars which, according to the table, was spent for clothing, he broke up in this way: 41 per cent for protection against cold, heat and wet; 12½ per cent for the approval of others, seven per cent for self-approval, 10 per cent to gain pleasure in courtship and sex activities, eight per cent for other social intercourse, six per cent for pleasures of vision, three and one-half per cent to win mastery or domination over others, two per cent to win their affection, and the rest for protection against animals and disease.

COSMETIC and beauty shop expenditure, a $700,000,000 item in the table, was divided: "About one-seventh for the pleasures of sight and smell, one-fourth for the pleasures of sex courtship, one-third to gain general approval from others, one-eighth to have self-approval, and about one-tenth to secure mastery or domination."

The rest of the items of expenditure were treated similarly, then the psychologist summed up the amounts represented by each want in the list. For example, "the approval of others" was traced through the list of items—three and one-half per cent of the total food bill, or $595,000,000; 12½ per cent of the total clothing bill, or $1,000,000,000; a third of the expenditure on cosmetics and beauty shops, or $233,000,000, and so on—and the total amount of spending for which it was held responsible thus determined. The same process was followed with the other wants, so that at the end of the calculation, the psychologist had figures indicating how much the satisfaction of each of these desires had cost the American people.

Some of the conclusions to which this analysis led were stated by Dr. Thorndike as follows: "We pay more to maintain self-respect and the good opinion of others and to avoid scorn, derision and shame than to keep our bodies fed and free from the distress of hunger. We pay more for entertainment (including the intellectual pleasures and the sensory pleasures of sight, sound, taste and smell) than for protection against cold, heat, wet, animals, disease, criminals and other bad people, and pain.

"Less than one-third of what we spent went for wants which must be satisfied to keep the human species alive and self-perpetuating. The rest went chiefly to keep us amused and comfortable physically, intellectually, morally and especially socially.

"Relatively little is paid for the satisfaction of the intellectual life. The psychologists consider that the payments for private schools, books and magazines are often for prestige, power and other practical satisfactions, and do not credit the theaters and movies of 1929 with much intellectual appeal.

"The psychologists do, however, pay us the compliment of crediting us with spending twice as much from good will to man as from fear of criminals and other bad men, and with spending at least as much to win the affection of our fellow men as to have the pleasure of bossing them."

This analysis of the motives of spending does not, of course, pretend to a rigid accuracy. Said Dr. Thorndike: "The outcome will suffer from whatever constant errors afflict psychologists today." It might be well also to note that the table on which it is based is one of estimates, and that it has been presented with the caution that "these estimates are subject to considerable margins of error."

The table has, however, been prepared by an expert in social statistics, Robert S. Lynd, one of the authors of that illuminating social survey published under the title of "Middletown." His summary of expenditures by the American people in 1929 is incorporated in his article, "The People as Consumers," in "Recent Social Trends in the United States," published by the McGraw-Hill Book Company, Inc. This book embodies the report of the President's Research Committee on Social Trends, a group which carried out its investigations under Government authorization in the Hoover administration. Lynd acknowledges the assistance of Alice C. Hanson.

LYND'S table is a compilation of estimates—necessarily rough estimates, Lynd says—of the total of individual expenditures in the United States in 1929 in most of the principal classifications. It accounts for something more than 80 per cent of the entire national income of 85 to 90 billion dollars. It does not include savings, hospital and funeral expenses, books and periodicals, insurance other than on life, private charity, outlay for telephone, telegraph and postage, servants' wages, private educational expenditures, payment for drugstore purchases other than cosmetics and patent medicines, and some miscellaneous expenses. In analyzing psychologically the latter group of expenditures, Dr. Thorndike used estimates prepared by Dr. Ella Woodyard, which supplement Lynd's figures.

Food	17
Clothing	8
Rent on homes	8
Home furnishings	4
Fuel and light	4.8
Life insurance	3.5
Religion	.9
Automobile (purchase and use)	6.5
Travel (recreation, other than automobile)	2
Motion pictures, concerts, etc.	2
Clubs, lodges, etc.	.4
Indoor and outdoor games, sports	.9
Newspapers	.4
Radio and musical instruments	.6
Jewelry and silverware	.6
Flowers (from florists)	.2
Cosmetics, beauty parlors	.7
Medicine (patent and prescription)	.7
Physicians	1
Dentists	.4
Other medical costs, excluding hospitals and public health work	.2
Tobacco	1.6
Laundry, cleaning and dyeing	1.5
Taxes, local state and federal	6.4

A good many of the estimates were based on Government reports, such as the United States Census of Distribution and the United States Biennial Census of Manufactures. In almost all cases in which official figures were used, however, additional calculations had to be made to obtain results significant for this survey. For example, to the figures of the Census of Manufactures for perfumes, cosmetics and other toilet preparations were added the estimated retail markup and the estimated revenue from beauty shops. In obtaining his estimate of the expenditure for tobacco, the statistician took Bureau of Internal Revenue figures for the amount of cigarettes, cigars and other forms of tobacco taxed and converted the figures into dollars and cents by assigning average prices of 16 cents for each package of cigarettes, seven and half cents for each cigar and 90 cents each pound of tobacco. The tax bill obtained by deducting the amount pie corporations, as reported by the T Department, from the total tax co reported by the National Industr ference Board.

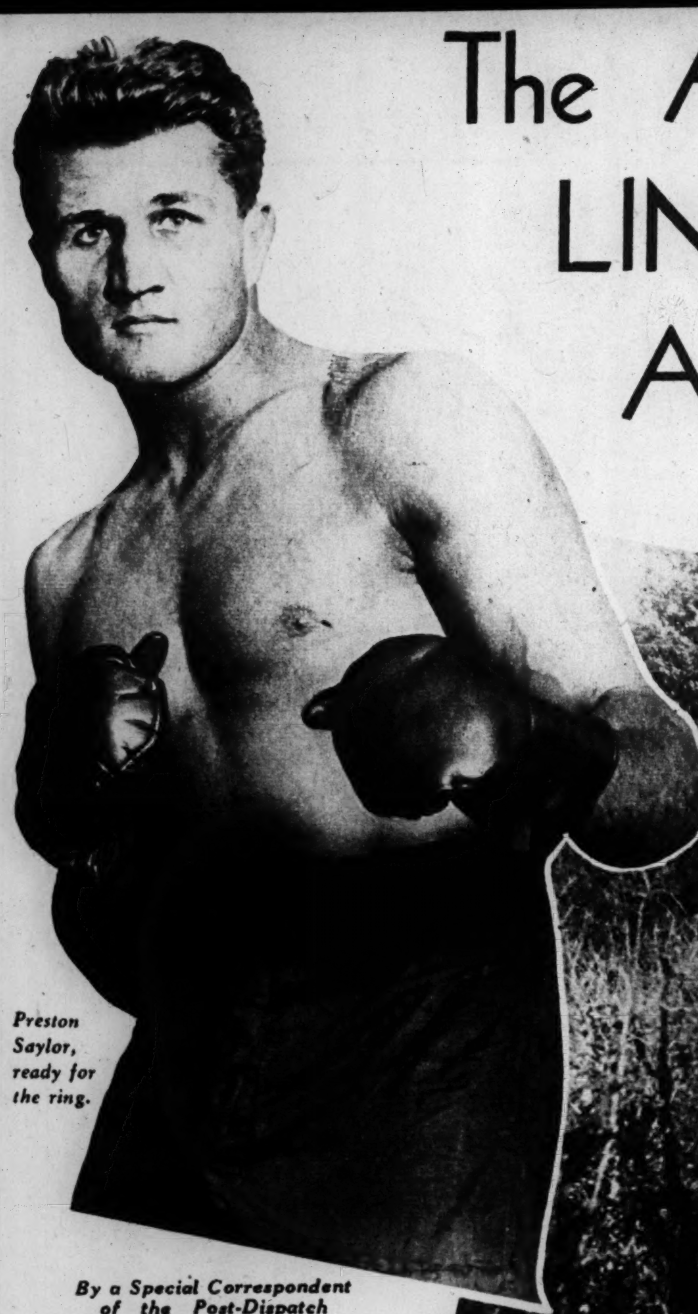
The ARISTOCRATIC SAYLOR LINE ENDS IN MURDER And IMPRISONMENT

Once the Landed Gentry of Bartow County, Georgia, Nothing Now Remains to the Great Plantation Family but a Dilapidated Farm and the Memory of Brother Shot Down by Brother.



Preston Saylor, ready for the ring.

Harry Saylor.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

ROME, Georgia.

THE mountain people of Bartow County have been thumbing their Bibles for parallels to the tragedy of the Saylor family and Preston Saylor's cold-blooded murder of his brother, Harry. In its whole tone and in detail the story bears a startling resemblance to biblical history. What is significantly different, though, between this murder and the case of Cain's, is that modern laws recognize insanity as a disease and refuse to punish men who in old times might have been considered possessed of evil spirits. Preston Saylor, it should be remembered in considering the narrative, was once declared insane. He was confined at Milledgeville and escaped. He was never returned to the sanitarium, because his family wasn't convinced of his insanity even after he had shot at his brother, evidently for no important cause.

The mother of Harry and Preston Saylor is the former Addie Barnsley. She herself refused to give any opinion as to whether Preston was or was not insane. Her son's trial took place before Judge C. C. Pittman and a jury in Superior Court in Barstow County, where her grandfather settled a century ago to plant in the wilderness of northern Georgia the cultivated life and pleasing tidiness he remembered from his childhood in England. He was successful in creating an elegance that has become legendary in this section—and has passed irretrievably away.

The site of Barnsley Gardens is not far from Kingston and Rome, but nearer the village of Adairsville. Its builder, Godfrey Barnsley, was a successful Savannah trader, a traveled and cultivated gentleman. After a trip to Brazil in the 1830's, he returned to Georgia and settled on the land with his wife, a celebrated beauty. He bought 10,000 acres from the Cherokee Indians, started clearing the forests and setting up a plantation. His manor house must have been as fine as any in the State, an imitation Tudor castle.

The house was divided into three sections. The central one, two stories high, was surmounted by a tower. One entered its spacious entrance hall by a long flight of marble steps. The right wing contained an immense dining hall in which was a mahogany table big enough for 40 people, a sideboard which had belonged to the Emperor of Brazil and a fine painting by an imitator of Murillo. In this wing there were also a billiard room, a smoking room, the kitchen and store rooms, a silver vault. In the left wing were drawing rooms and a library in which was a clock that had belonged to Marie Antoinette. Upstairs in the house were 16 bedrooms.

Even finer than the house was the garden, planted with rare trees and shrubs that had been imported from all parts of the world. There were formal boxwood gardens and great "rookeries" of boulders flanking the entrance, and a terrace with a "ghost walk" behind the mansion.

The Civil War interrupted the build- of Barnsley Gardens, which had going on with leisurely premedi- for more than 20 years, and the al master's dream was never carried out. Afterwards the slavery which had made this estate into a small government of its own was abolished, and with it departed the means of maintaining such a place. The family became scattered. Finally only Addie, who was married to an English gentleman named Saylor, continued to carry on the tradition of magnificence, but on a sadly limited scale. A cyclone tore away part of the roof and destroyed much of the interior. As time went on the 10,000-acre plantation became an ordinary farm. But the Saylor family kept their chins high and made up in pride and self-respect for what they had lost in goods and acres.

When Mr. Saylor died in 1911, he left his wife with the responsibility of the farm and the care of two sons, who should have inherited it and carried on the dwindling traditions. Preston was eleven, Harry nine. A manager took over the active control of the farm. It was still possible to make it pay. Even then the garden was overgrown, the house reduced in size and style.

BUT life was possible and Mrs. Saylor pinned her hopes on her boys. In her old age they would care for her and the land would come back. The story is told in her poignant, rambling testimony at the recent trial:

"Mr. Sherman managed my farm after my husband had died. No debts were owing at the time Preston took charge. After the boys grew up Preston had charge of the farm. During the time that Preston was running the farm it became involved financially. Considerably. The depression came on and different things happened and we got behind some, like everybody else did. I don't attribute the fact that the property became involved to any mismanagement on the part of Preston; I really couldn't say. . . .

"When they were boys and growing up—I couldn't keep up with them—as much as I had to look after—and the boys away in school and places. . . . Harry was of a kind nature—always kind. When he became a man he wasn't cross. As good as could be. Never had any kind of trouble and never used bad language or anything. He didn't want his way. His way of doing was right. Preston always liked to have his way—an always determined kind of a person—even as a child. If he couldn't have his way, even as a child, sometimes he would get pretty angry. He always wanted Harry to do his way. And after Harry was a man and had a good deal of experience, he wanted to do his own way, naturally. I knew what Harry meant for the world. I don't know about property rights. But, do you think you would get up early and work all day long and haul timber on into the night and sleep a few hours and then go to work and saw all day and haul all night?—And then to think he was to divide up with a man that did nothing until all the debts were paid! I didn't think any more of Harry than I did of Preston. Preston failed in health as well as in finances and I was relying on Harry and couldn't rely on Preston, under the circumstances.

"In 1930 the crash came. Up to that time we didn't have any financial trouble. We didn't have any trouble because these things didn't come due until that time. The debt I am talking about—coming due at that time—was made along at different times. I don't have any record of that. The First National Bank was the first one that gave us any trouble. I don't know what caused the failure. I don't know anything about the debt of $3500 in 1933. That was from me and Harry and Preston to the State Mutual Life Insurance Company. The next debt was in 1933, one thousand and fifty dollars to the Piedmont Agricultural Corporation. The next one was in 1934. He paid that debt off, I know that. I don't know about the State Mutual foreclosing in 1934. Harry bought it at the sale and encumbered it in the Federal Land Bank for I don't know how much. I told Harry to do what was right. In his management it got to thirteen thousand dollars. So the property is now encumbered with a debt payable in 30 years.

"AT THE time that Preston took charge of the operation of the farm, there was a good deal of china and silverware at the home. We had a good deal of silverware there—of my grandfather's. We had some old china, too. It was sold. The First National Bank had that sold. . . .

"On account of the fact that the crash came in 1930 and I had become involved—at least, Preston had—and conditions continued to grow from bad to worse, he consented to turn them over to Harry and he would go out and make money. He had been prize fighting. He had given up fighting at that time. Preston has not fought any in about three years. They claimed he got hurt in Florida, but I just didn't keep up with any of that. I heard of that. I don't know how he was hurt, what the injuries consisted of. I don't know, but they said he was hit in the head and that he didn't feel good. And when he came home that is what he told. I just asked about it. Of course, I was in the hospital. I have forgotten a whole lot myself. I was in the hospital a good while. That was, of course, very expensive. But that wasn't any of his expense. It was not paid for from funds derived from the operation of the place, not from that at all. I heard people say he was not right after the fight, but I left that for other people to say. I heard people say they didn't believe he was. Now I just leave that for the court to say. I don't think I'm capable to say that. I'm telling facts. It wouldn't be fair for me to say anything I don't absolutely know. When he finally quit his fighting, seems to me he was the same as he was before. I couldn't see that he was any different. He was always a little fussy at home and I never paid any attention to that. I will leave that to doctors and people more capable than I am, to say. He was violent before that, sometimes.

"During the time that Preston was fighting he was fighting under the name K. O. Duggan. The money he got for fighting, he bought him a Chrysler automobile. He bought him one. But he didn't pay for it. Harry paid for it out of his Government loan. I don't know about his prize-fighting money being spent on the farm up there. I couldn't say. But he claimed he did. I don't know. I was in the hospital at that time. I wasn't able to sit up. I wasn't able to get out of my chair at that time.

"I know nothing about the circumstances under which he shot Otis Fowler. When Preston shot Mr. Fowler Harry was in Alabama on a visit. Harry was working in Louisiana at the time. Harry managed in 1931 and then he went to Louisiana. When Preston shot Fowler he telegraphed to Harry to come on. And he was going on the next afternoon from Alabama. And going back. He was coming back and going to New Orleans Sunday afternoon. He had no intention of staying. But when Preston shot Mr. Fowler he had to stay, because there was nobody to look after the farm. Preston was confined from April until November. I wanted Harry to go back to Louisiana. The man he worked for telegraphed for him. But he wouldn't go.

"HE DID do something to keep down the prosecution of Preston. He tried to get him out. I said to save him from going to the chain gang. Harry went to get somebody to sign the bond. And they said it would be best to send him down there—to the State sanitarium at Milledgeville. We thought he would get better. He was in a nervous breakdown. I guess he had a nervous breakdown. . . . Whether he he has been sane since then, it is a hard question for me to answer. . . . That was right after he shot Fowler, in the summer time, two years ago in July. He went down there while we were making a crop. I don't remember just when.

"Then it became necessary, about 1933 or 1934, to refinance businesses of all kinds—including farming business such as we had up there, I suppose. A loan was procured from the Federal Land Bank to liquidate those debts. . . . Mr. Camp—Lamar Camp of Rome—investigated it and said they would take Harry, if he would take full charge and take all responsibility. There was danger of the place being lost for $13,000. It was being advertised for forced sale. When this happened Preston was down in Milledgeville. And I wrote him just as plain as I could and explained everything and told him it was the only chance we had to save our property. He got the letter and wrote back about it. I don't know where the letter is. I didn't keep it, never figured on any trouble.

"When he came home from the asylum I made no effort to get him back. He had escaped. He told us how he left. And he come over there and they wrote me that he left for the aysium and I told him he was at home. No efforts were made to get him back. He stayed at home and we thought as long as he was quiet it was all right. And he was quiet for about two or three months. Then he became disturbed again, and violent. With nothing to fuss about, he found fault with everything we did. We couldn't make him understand the situation. It seems like he could have understood, as many times as we told him. Any ordinary person could have. And especially Preston Saylor, who had the business experience that he had. Harry told him what he intended to do. He told him each time that when he got the debts—and he got the land back—paid out—and everything in good shape, he would get his share back. But up to that time he couldn't, because he couldn't get half the money and pay these debts and pay this land loan off, because you don't make that much on a farm. Money don't grow on trees these days, you know. And he had to make it. He was telling Preston continuously that he would be given half of the place. Harry said he would divide it after that debt was paid. He told me that the night before he was killed. And he told Preston that on different occasions. And I think he understood.

"WHEN Preston shot at Harry after he had come back from Milledgeville, Preston was placed in jail about that. I don't know how long he stayed in jail, but several days. Ten days or two weeks, I don't remember just how exactly. What arrangement he was released from jail with reference to shooting Harry—I wasn't at the trial and I don't know. Harry was there. Harry said he was sorry that Preston was feeling hard towards him. That is the reason he wouldn't say a word. In the court they agreed he couldn't come there for a while.

"On Sunday night Preston came there. He ate dinner with me that day. Harry wasn't there. He was in Rome at that time. Preston didn't show me anything, but he said he had his automatic, and the law had given it to him. He had it in his pocket. He just put his hand back this way. . . . He was talking about Harry and his way of doing. Preston talked pretty rough about Harry, not talking about Harry running the place, just talking about not treating him right. He didn't say any special thing, but he said the time was getting short, the time is getting short. And that he was tickled by the way things were going smooth. Then he patted his gun on his hip. . . . And I said, 'I don't care what you do to me, as far as I am concerned, but I don't want you to hurt Harry, because Harry is all there is here.' I wasn't scared of him myself.

"I did not give Preston the right to bring the two mules here. He told me where the car was gone and after he took the car away he said he had sold the car. And he had got seventy-five dollars cash and two mules. Not right young mules, but when they got fat they would be pretty good. And he said Cabe Pope would keep them until spring, and then we will sell them. And I said he ought not to have put those mules on a man to feed. There was tons of hay and pasture. I would have put them in a pasture, that was all I said. I told Harry when he come in that Preston has got two mules on his car. And I told him they were down at Mr. Pope's and I didn't see why he didn't put them in our pasture. And he never did give me any answer, Harry didn't, because I don't suppose he cared. But he told me that Tuesday morning that he couldn't feed them and house them because we had more than we had barn room for.

"This killing occurred on Tuesday morning. It was at my house where the killing occurred. To begin with, we had just got through breakfast, and Harry and Ross Maddox had the truck out there in the yard and were leaning on the truck. I went to sit down and eat my breakfast about ten after six o'clock and I just looked out of the window and I saw Preston coming towards the truck. I thought he had come up there as usual and I didn't pay any attention. And Harry—I saw him come around in front of the truck and come on towards the house. And when he come to the door he said (to Preston), 'I can't let you bring those mules here. I am not fixed up for them and I can't take care of them. I have all that I can take care of myself. And besides I don't think you have any right here, according to the agreement.'

"AND Harry just turned and come up the steps. And there were eighteen steps. He just turned and asked me, 'Have you got any hot water?' And I knew he wanted to shave. And I said yes there was, and he went upstairs and turned to go to the bathroom. And he didn't come back down. . . .

"Preston came in and he looked up the steps and I said, 'Don't raise a fuss with him.' And he went up the steps. And just after he got on the steps he fired. And when he fired the first time I ran up the steps. And when I got up there he had been firing rapidly several times. And when I got to them he had Harry up against the wall. That was in a different room. Harry, of course, was trying to get out of the way. But when I got to Harry, he just fell over on my arm and said, 'Mamma, I am dying.' And I just let him down to the floor. Preston was hitting him, I think. It was so dark I couldn't see. The shades were down, and it was cloudy, too. He was hitting him with something. I ran and opened the door to let the smoke out so I could see what was the matter. Preston got up and went out on the porch. He laughed a silly kind of laugh with reference to the bullet in him—he laughed about the fact, I mean Preston, after Harry was dead! But I didn't pay attention to him. I was trying to save Harry's life. I wasn't caring what he did and I didn't pay attention to him at that time, none whatever. I was paying attention to Harry, trying to get him on the bed and save his life. Please get that straight. I don't know whether Preston was in a rage or not; I just said not to raise a fuss with Harry. I don't guess there would have been any shooting about it, if he hadn't been in a rage. Sane people have shot people before that."

On the basis of this evidence, which is here presented verbatim (though arranged in narrative form) the jury declared Preston Saylor sane, and guilty of premeditated murder. He was sentenced to life imprisonment and is in prison pending appeal.

MAKING A MISSOURI FOX-HOUND INTO A NATIONAL FIGURE

By JACK ALEXANDER

A Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

NEW YORK.

THERE is a race of men in the Missouri hills who deserve to rank among the world's finest sportsmen. Descendants of the pioneers, they are content to live frugally from the earth and worship in the cult of the fox-hound. On black, dark nights, they keep rendezvous with the fox in a friendly guerrilla warfare that never ends. The romance of moonlight is lost on them for the fox is a skittery creature, afraid to roam abroad when there are shadows to reach out for him.

The arena of war is the wooded [illegible] that serve as cloister for men and beasts. The immediate adversaries are the dogs and the fox. For two, three, four hours, the saturnine men squat about a camp fire in the stillness of the drowsing forest and listen, lovingly and critically, to the owk-owk-owk-owk of their beloved hounds as they chase the fox through the blackness. These strange huntsmen wear no scarlet coats and ride no horses; they are at the far end of the scale from swank; exhibitionism is totally lacking in them. They ask no crowds to nod approval, no slick paper magazines to applaud their exploits. Their reward and satisfaction is the simple communion among man and dog and fox.

It is a fine type of freemasonry. The fox is never killed. He is one of the players in the game of war, not the pathetic, beleaguered, sure-shot victim of a blood-hungry pack. When he wearies of the night's sport, he simply wishes a good-night with his bushy tail and holes up, and the men call their dogs in. Seemingly aware of his position as special guest, the fox remains in a friendly locality and his descendants streak and twist and double back from the lineal descendants of the hounds who once chased him. Hound-raisers come to know a fox by the individual tricks and dodges he employs to elude the hounds. In recognition of his immunity from lynching by dog pack, the fox grants the right of sanctuary to the neighborhood hen roosts, picking his fare from the plentiful field mice and ground squirrels. Thus, by an unfathomable ennobling processs, man is tempted to abandon his lust for the kill and the fox to forswear his traditional role of roost robber—in the name of pure sport.

No Missourian, but a young Iowan who roamed Missouri in his boyhood, has arisen to enshrine this Missouri drama in American literature. He is MacKinlay Kantor, himself a descendant of pioneers, who was born in Webster City, Iowa, thirty-two years ago. Kantor's most recent book, "The Voice of Bugle Ann," based on Missouri's fox-hound hunting, has gone into ten editions since publication by Coward-McCann, Inc., last August. Reversing the usual dog story motif, the book stresses man's love for the animal. It seems destined to become a classic of its type.

It is a smallish book of 128 pages, packed with the full flavor of the scene, and the remarkable passions of men who will kill to protect their dogs. William Lyon Phelps has called it "a literary miniature masterpiece."

The story is a fictionized version of a feud which got into the Springfield, Missouri, papers about ten years ago. Kantor had wanted to write something about fox-hounds for a long time and when a friend showed him one of the newspaper clippings of the feud, his creative machinery went into action immediately. Kantor knows fox-hounds from first-hand contact. He has departed from the facts of the clipping, until the story, except in its essentials, is unrecognizable. The clipping was merely a starting point.

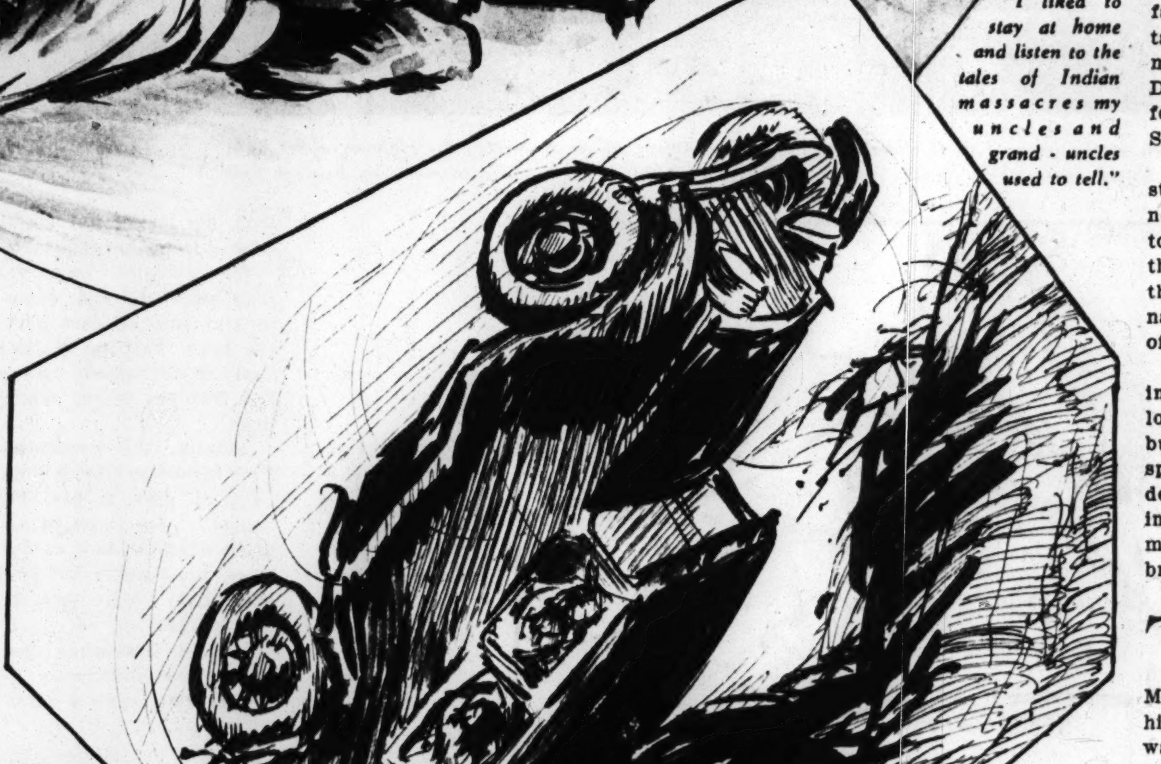
"As soon as I read it, I sat down and worked out the whole plot in a few hours," Kantor told the writer recently. "But I was rusty on the technical side of raising fox-hounds. So that night, from my home in Westfield, New Jersey, I called up Tom Duncan, an old friend in Des Moines. I read off twelve questions to Tom, such as how soon a hound can run after having a litter, and things like that. Next day, Tom went out to George Proctor's, where I spent many days learning about hounds. George is president of the Iowa Fox-Hunters Association and he knows the game from A to Z. George gave Tom all the answers, and more, and Tom did a swell job of reporting.

"When I got Tom's report, it all came back to me. I could hear, smell and see those hounds. I sat down and started to write. I had plotted it for a short story but, as will happen, found that it began to run long on me, so I decided to make it a small novel. I was running like a fox when I got a call to go to Hollywood. I had to leave Bugle Ann with only 5000 words done. In Hollywood I completed in four days what I had been hired to do in a month. But they wouldn't let me go. Insisted that I stick on the lot until the month ran out. There was nothing to do but drink, and I did that. If you saw 'Once in a Lifetime,' you'll understand what I mean. Hollywood is terrible.

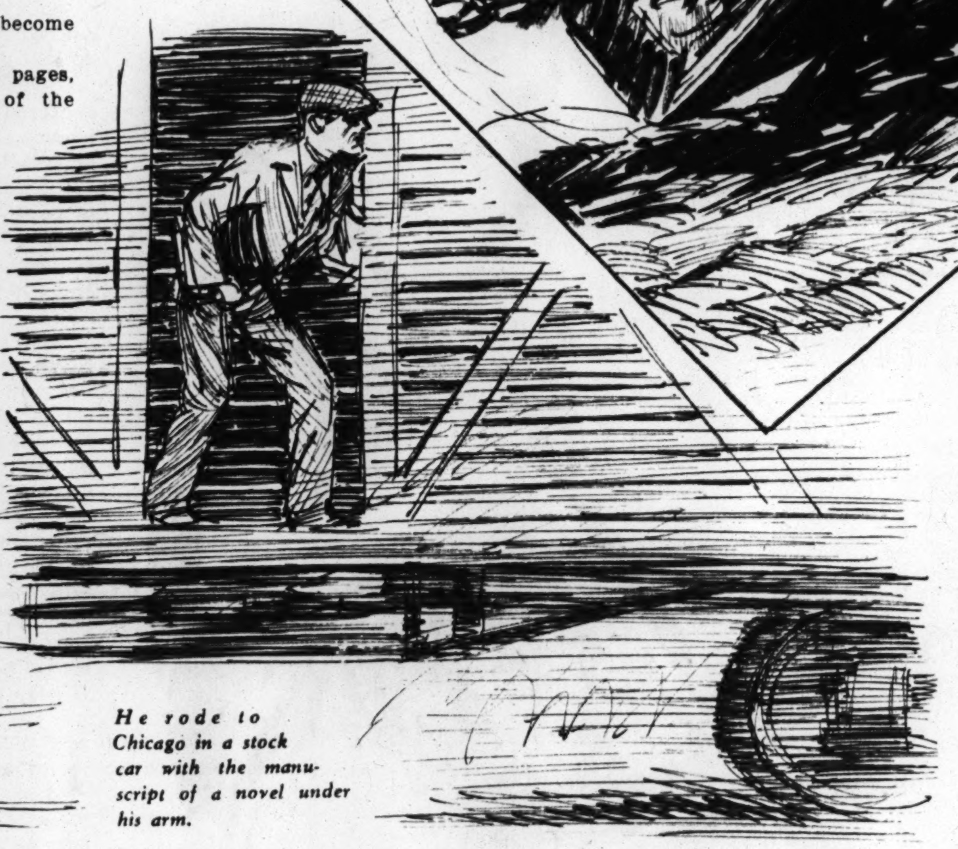
"Well, I came back to Westfield and tried to pick up Bugle Ann where I had left off. No luck.

"I WAS in one of those 'dead' spots that every writer hits now and then. I wasted another month just fooling around, trying to convince myself I wanted to work when I knew perfectly well I didn't. Then, all of a sudden, my thoughts started to flow again and I finished Bugle Ann in three days. She ran 20,000 words."

Kantor is a tall, spare fellow of immense energy and depth of imagination. His own career, one of struggle from childhood, is a fit match for those of his pioneering forbears. Only in the past two or three years has he managed to drive the specter of poverty from the door. The Kantors have lived on as little as four dollars a week and the now successful writer has traveled by freight car to get his manuscripts to editorial offices. Kantor is the father of two children, a daughter, Layne, eight, and a son, Thomas, three. Thanks to daddy's novels, the children now eat regularly.



Just after graduation from high school, an automobile in which he was riding with a gay group, plunged down a 40-foot embankment, turning over three times on the way down.



He rode to Chicago in a stock car with the manuscript of a novel under his arm.

Alanson Bryan, Kantor's maternal great-great-grandfather, was one of the first settlers of Mahaska County, Iowa. Ultimately, Bryan moved to Webster City, which is in Northern Iowa, and became a grist miller. As Kantor points out, it was a custom of the day for a miller's hired man to marry his daughter and carry on the business. That is what happened in this case. Joseph Bone was the hired man and he soon became Bryan's son-in-law. During Bone's proprietorship of the mill, history repeated itself. Bone's daughter married the hired man, Adam MacKinlay, a Scotchman.

But Old Adam MacKinlay's daughter broke the chain. She fell in love with John Kantor, a Chicago business man. Kantor was a Portuguese Jew born (of all places) in Sweden. Marriage to a Jew was sin enough in pioneer Iowa society, but the mother of our rising young American novelist went even further—she divorced Kantor after the future novelist and a sister had been born. Young Kantor was just a year old when this happened. Divorce cast a real stigma in the small Iowa town of those days and the boy was to feel the effect of it.

Spurning support, Mrs. Kantor, a vigorous, vivid woman of strong emotions, set out to earn a way for herself and her children. She ignored the gossip of Webster City and bent to her task. First she tried to put to use the knowledge of painting she had acquired at Drake University. Profits were small and slow. She had to abandon painting. She tried practical nursing. Next she clerked in a grocery store and served as cashier in a clothing store.

TIGHT-LIPPED in the face of moral eye-brow-raising, she ran the gamut of meager jobs open to the unttached woman with children to feed. It seemed providential when D. L. Hunter, veteran Iowa newspaper man, asked her if she wouldn't like to take charge of the literary and local news in the Webster City Freeman-Tribune. She was happy in the work and the wages were almost adequate.

That "almost" got MacKinlay Kantor started in the world of work when he was eight years old. Admiring Mrs. Kantor deeply, Hunter found a paper route for her son.

"Gosh, I hated that job," Kantor recalls now. "I liked to stay at home and listen to the tales of Indian massacres my uncles and grand-uncles used to tell. They were tall, angular men, right out of a book on Indian fighting. But I had to get out on that darned route. In summer, it wasn't so bad. I rode my bike and my dog ran along beside me.

"But in winter I had to walk it. Temperatures of 30 and 40 below are common in the north of Iowa and many times I have come home with the right side of my face frozen. That was the side exposed to the wind. My grandmother would 'rub it out' with handfuls of snow and put me to bed.

"That side of my face is still sensitive to cold and the whole experience has given me a hatred of cold weather. One of my newer friends has a place in Vermont where he gives skiing parties. I made an agreement to go to the parties if I could stay away from the ski slide and drink all day in front of his fireplace."

The Kantor boy was not sickly, but he was skinny and the hulking sons of farmers liked to gang up on him. This taught him to run very fast. His mother shifted to the Webster City Daily News and MacKinlay, during his four years at Webster City High School, helped her edit the paper.

"I wrote some of the most terrible stuff that was ever published in any newspaper," he says. "My tastes ran to fantasies. I used to write reams of them and sign trick names and stick them in as filler. I even made up names for magazines and ran in some of my own stuff as 'clippings.' "

His vigorous mother was a crusading editor. She tried to sell her fellow-citizens on civic improvements, but they were horrified at the idea of spending so much money. After her death, they put all the improvements in—community house, public swimming pool, community Christmas celebration, etc.

THE son burst on the Iowa literary scene before he was out of high school, when the Des Moines Register printed an editorial of his called "The Shrine on the Highway." It was inspired by the death of Merle Hay, an Iowa boy who was among the first three Americans killed in the World War. When he was 18, Kantor won a short story contest conducted by the Register and received a fifty-dollar prize.

"Well, I thought I was made," he recalls. "I was an author now. There really wasn't much left for me to do. My struggles were over. The rest would be easy. Just write the stuff and send it out.

"Unfortunately, however, the magazine editors didn't see it that way. I wrote steadily until fall and spent small fortunes for postage. But my stuff all came back. The magazine editors, I decided, were a bunch of lowbrows who didn't know literature when they saw it and I was through with them. Henceforth I would write only poetry."

Kantor had hardly harnessed Pegasus when an accident almost ended his career. Just after graduation from high school, an automobile in which he was riding with a gay group, plunged down a 40-foot embankment, turning over three times on the way down. That began a series of bone and plastic operations which haven't stopped yet. Every now and then Kantor goes to the hospital to get a new piece of steel bracing inserted in his body. While convalescing from the mishap, he wrote a long ballad on the death of Floyd Collins in Sand Cave, Ky., and R. H. L. printed it in his Chicago Tribune column.

When he got out of the hospital, Kantor struck out for Chicago. This began a new phase of his life in which he worked, at various times, as census taker, office boy, gardener, store boy, furnace installer, cement tester, tree trimmer, waiter in an ice-cream parlor, reporter, advertising manager, rodman for a surveying crew, mosser (one who wraps wet moss around plants in a greenhouse), order clerk for a drug company, department store claim-tracer, furnace man, ticket-taker, usher, watcher at the polls and actor.

His amateur activities with the Graham Players, a little theater group, brought him in contact with Miss Irene Layne, a commercial artist. In two weeks they were engaged and in three months married. Kantor next worked on the Cedar Rapids, Iowa, Republican, then decided to shelve the business for writing.

He brought his wife back to Web-

Ninety-Fourth Shipwreck in Ninety-Four Years—On Peacock Spit

How the Freighter Iowa Went Down in Sight of Rescuers Who Couldn't Get Near Enough to Help.

ASTORIA, Oregon.

AS THE fury of a southeast gale heeled the staunch 410-foot freighter Iowa slightly to starboard, Frank Caldwell, radio operator, tapped out a description of the weather to such ships and shore stations as might be listening at 3 a. m. The Iowa, which had left Astoria shortly after midnight, found the sea just outside the mouth of the Columbia River was "extremely rough," but the ship was in no danger. Less than an hour later, the chatty communications of the short-wave operators were stilled by an SOS from Caldwell—the Iowa was aground on the dreaded sands of Peacock Spit, breaking up rapidly and in need of immediate assistance. Ten minutes later, another SOS—and the Iowa's call letters were followed by an ominous silence.

The Coast Guard Cutter Onondaga put out to sea in the teeth of the 76-mile-an-hour wind, hoping to reach the Iowa in time to save its crew. So did three motor-driven lifeboats. Their mission, they realized, was likely a hopeless one. Mariners of other generations knew Peacock Spit, just west of Cape Disappointment on the north bank of the Columbia River, and Clatsop Spit, on the south, as the Scylla and Charybdis whose prey rarely escaped.

Barry Bray, assistant keeper of the North Head lighthouse, sighted the lights of the Iowa lurching helplessly three miles due west about 4:30 a. m. He called Keeper A. G. Siniluoto, Nino Sunseri, junior meterologist, and Charles Hubbard, assistant to Sunseri. The naval radio station at Astoria called Sunseri, told him it had been unable to contact the Iowa after the SOS, and asked him to try communication by means of lights. Using storm warning lights posted on the signal tower, he blinked Morse International code at the wallowing freighter.

IN A few minutes, barely discernible through the fog and early morning darkness, a feeble light began to blink from the top of the pilot house only to be obliterated in a heavy rain squall. A short time later, as soon as it was light enough, the lighthouse crew ran up international code flags. The luckless men aboard the Iowa promptly ran up a reply, but the winds whipped the pennants about so that they could not be read.

Creamy breakers were charging over the Iowa with a roar that could be heard above the wind at the lighthouse. The tense spectators could see that all lifeboats had been swept away and that the ship was being beaten to pieces. Through his telescope, Hubbard saw a man emerge from the pilot house, wait for a favorable moment, and then run for the ladder leading up the foremast. Before he was half way, the sailor was caught in a welter of water that swept over the deck and was carried over the side. It was not long until the funnel, bridge and the pilot house were swept away. After a few more big waves washed over the Iowa, it rose violently, as though in a dying effort, then slid back, only the foremast remaining out of water.

Meanwhile, the Onondaga fought its way toward the Iowa. The powerful cutter, built to withstand just such storms, could barely make headway against the slugging seas. As it approached the dangerous shallows near Peacock Spit, the strong current and high waves began to draw it toward the Spit. Captain R. S. Patch ordered the engine room to muster every bit of power possible. So slow that it was almost imperceptible, the ship pulled away from the danger zone. During this time, waves smashed two lifeboats, a ventilator and a stanchion and loosened a three-inch gun from the deck. It was impossible, Captain Patch found, to get closer than a mile to the Iowa. The distance was too great to shoot a line and the seas too high for small lifeboats. The deck of the Iowa was under water and it was not long before only the mast was visible. The motor-driven lifeboats also were unable to reach the ship.

So, in the early hours of January 12, the Iowa, with Captain Edgar L. Yates, and 33 other sailors, became the ninety-fourth victim in the past 94 years of the Pacific Coast's Scylla and Charybdis. Swept three miles out of its course, it was nearly across the worst part of Peacock Spit when it was snared.

THE sand bar owes its name to the sloop-of-war Peacock which was wrecked there in 1841 while charting channels and unknown shoals and reefs. The crew escaped without loss of life. The history of Clatsop Spit goes back much farther as it is reputed to be the place where the Spanish ship San Jose, loaded with supplies for a mission, ran aground. For many years afterward, bees wax candles and tapers, stamped with Latin inscriptions, were recovered from the sands.

The General Warren, a sailing vessel with crew and passengers totaling 51, set out from Portland on Jan. 28, 1852, with a grain cargo for San Francisco. Damaged in a storm soon after it left the mouth of the Columbia River, the ship put about to return to Portland. Leaking badly, with pumps choked by grain, the ship soon became helpless in the storm and was swept onto Peacock Spit. Eleven men in a lifeboat succeeded in making their way to Astoria. The captain of a barkentine tied up there ordered a whaleboat out to the General Warren. The ship, however, was beaten to pieces before the boat arrived, and 40 lives lost.

The Vandalia, in 1853, and the J. C. Cousins, in 1884, both carrying small crews, were lost with all hands on Peacock Spit. In those days, hardly a winter went by that some vessel did not come to its end in the sands. Some of them, it was thought, could be refloated, but the sands, besides holding with a tenacious grip, possess a peculiar sucking quality and usually swallow up whatever they grasp.

The Glenmorag, a British full-rigged ship, ran aground on Peacock Spit in 1897.

In 1913, the Rosecrans, a tanker, was dashed onto Peacock Spit in a gale while trying to enter the mouth of the Columbia River. Tugs and life-saving crews fought for hours before they reached the tanker and removed three of the crew of 33 from the masts. One other sailor, a remarkable swimmer, reached shore six miles from the scene. The others perished.

The Laurel, a freighter, broke in two on Peacock Spit in 1929 with a loss of one life. The Admiral Benson, a liner, went aground there in 1930. The 75 passengers and crew were saved, but the liner was a total wreck. The Norwegian motor ship, Childar, went aground there in 1924 with damages that totaled $100,000.

HEARD the VOICE of HER STOLEN 'CELLO ABOVE A WHOLE ORCHESTRA

Elsa Hilger's $10,000 Guarnerius Had Been Missing for Two Years.

NEW YORK.

THE usual din of jumbled, meaningless notes filled the air as the famous Philadelphia Orchestra, seated on the stage of Carnegie Hall, began tuning up. The symphonic concert was to start in a few minutes.

Out of the maze of crazy sound from somewhere came a soft, mellow, colorful tone. It arose from the 'cello department. Not one listener in a million would have distinguished it—but it caught the ear of Elsa Hilger, talented woman 'cellist, who had but lately joined the orchestra.

She herself was playing in that concert upon a strange, new instrument—a 'cello she didn't particularly like. There was a reason . . .

The moment this sound fell upon her ears, she grew curiously excited. She turned to Victor Gottlieb, the man at the instrument whose voice she had heard, and nervously she asked: "Is that 'cello yours?"

"A dealer just gave it to me for a tryout," he replied.

Miss Hilger looked intently at the instrument he was playing. "It's a Guarnerius, isn't it? Mine was stolen, you know," she went on with growing excitement. Sounding with her own bow a single note on Gottlieb's borrowed instrument, she cried excitedly:

"It's mine! It's my Guarnerius!"

But at that moment the curtain went up. Leopold Stokowski walked out upon the stage and the concert began.

For almost an hour, Elsa played her unfriendly instrument through the Handel Overture in D minor, the Mozart violin concerto in A Major, the Beethoven Overture "Leonore" No. 3—listening always to that other 'cello at her side. Hardly was she able to restrain her impatience. After two long years of hopeless search, she had finally located the 200-year-old $10,000 instrument which she prized above all her possessions!

Ever since Elsa had made her debut at Vienna in 1917, this 'cello had been an integral part of her musical career. From that time until it was stolen, it had traveled with her on tour for thousands of miles. It had kept her family from starvation in Vienna during the darkest years of the World War and had paid for their transportation to America. Her success was founded in fact on just three things—her own talent, the great Sevcik's teaching, and the Guarnerius.

There was something about the fine old instrument that she had come to love and cherish. Maybe it was the fragrance of its rare wood, or the fine quality of its delicate varnish. Again it might have been the richness of its mellow tones or the memories that came to her every time she looked at it.

Two years it had been lost—and here it was! The hour Miss Hilger spent on the stage in full view of that audience, playing uninterruptedly, was the longest she had ever experienced in her life. As the concert went on, she had ears only for her Guarnerius. Every time she managed to hear it, a lump came into her throat. Through her mind ran the memory of the anguish she had gone through the day her treasured 'cello had been taken from her locked automobile on one of New York's thoroughfares.

She recalled how she had run frantically up and down the street, looking into all cars parked there, in the hope that one of them would reveal the instrument. She remembered the fruitless search made by the police.

Finally, the intermission arrived. Elsa turned to Gottlieb and requested: "May I play a few runs on that 'cello?" He assented and she tremblingly ran the bow across the strings. "Yes, it's mine, I tell you!" she cried excitedly. "Who gave it to you for the tryout?"

"Mr. S. Rosenthal, the violin maker," replied Gottlieb.

Elsa immediately after the concert got in touch with the well-known manufacturer and presented her claims. Rosenthal was willing to release the instrument, upon presentation of further proof that it belonged to her. Where had he bought it? From a perfectly reputable friend of his, Edward Wise, owner of a piano store—for $75. At this point Elsa displayed her artistic temperament by screaming: "My $10,000 Guarnerius for $75! It's an outrage!"

A swift trip to Wise's store disclosed that he had acted as middleman for a friend of his, Frank Webb. So Webb was called upon to give his version of how he had come into possession of the instrument. He had

SKETCHES FROM LIFE

High Lights on Unusual Personalities

ADMIRAL JOSEPH M. REEVES
CAROL LYNN ROWE

AN INDIAN NOBEL PRIZE WINNER

CALCUTTA.

THOUGH Mahatma Gandhi and Rabindranath Tagore are usually considered the only outstanding Indians of international repute today, Sir Venkata Raman, winner of the Nobel Prize for Physics in 1930 at the age of 42, is an Indian scientist of the first rank whose name is scarcely known to laymen outside his native land. There, in a large laboratory in Calcutta, he is continuing the experiments which have brought progress to science and surprisingly little fame or remuneration to himself.

By his investigation on the scatterings of light and his discovery of the new property of radiation now known to the scientific world as the Raman effect, Raman belongs in the company of such men as Einstein, Rutherford and Marconi. Yet he lives a humble life, gets scarcely any publicity, and keeps on working idealistically in the cause of physics, training younger men in this kind of research and doing everything in his power to promote science in his native land.

Born of poor but cultured parents, he never had the advantage of wealth or social position and his Indian education gave him no opportunity to derive inspiration from European scientists of eminence. What is more, because he is an Indian and therefore not acceptable for the highest educational or scientific positions, he had to spend ten years at the desk in various branches of the Government service. During that time, he was often forced to do his original work and invaluable experiments in physics in small rooms, as well as in offices and pantries converted into homemade laboratories.

Finally in 1917, through the intervention of scientists who recognized his true greatness, Raman was made professor of physics at the Calcutta College of Science. Here again he had to make a sacrifice, for the university was not able to pay him the kind of salary he had achieved through years of Government service. But he gladly made the change and has been hard at work ever since, delving deeper into the mysteries of light and carrying on his vast experiments as well as he can with the comparatively poor endowments he receives.

RAMAN was born on November 7, 1888, near the town of Trichinopoly in South India; he came of a long line of Brahmin landholders who had been living on impoverished lands for generations. Raman's father, R. Chandrasekhara Iyer, loved music and science; he saw that he could not make a living for himself and his family on the farm and he left for town where he got a job as high-school teacher in Trichinopoly. After a short time he received a lectureship in physics at the Hindu College at Vizagapatam. With his wife, who was the daughter of a local pleader, and his several children—Raman was then four years old—Iyer moved to the Telegua country, which necessitated a journey of twenty days by train, boat and country-cart.

In Vizagapatam the atmosphere of the house was one of culture and scholarship, with much time devoted to discussions of music which Raman's parents loved. Living in such an environment, young Venkata Raman made rapid progress in his studies. But he showed a marked preference for carpentry over Sanskrit grammar and was inconsolable when his father, because of lack of money, was unable to buy him the materials with which to build an electric dynamo in his room.

In spite of his aversion to many of his studies, Raman entered the Presidency College at Madras with honors, and immediately attracted the attention of his professors who allowed him to devote his time chiefly to the study of dynamics, although it had only a minor place in the syllabus. At the examinations for the Bachelor's degree, Raman was the only first-class man of the year in physics, thus winning the Arni Gold Medal.

Freed from the incubus of literary studies which he did not like, Raman began to study acoustics. Realizing the impossibility of being a physicist without mathematical equipment, Raman began to teach himself mathematics. He asked his professors to excuse him from compulsory practical work and allow him to try new experiments; this was considered too revolutionary, but he did receive the opportunity for research in an unusual way.

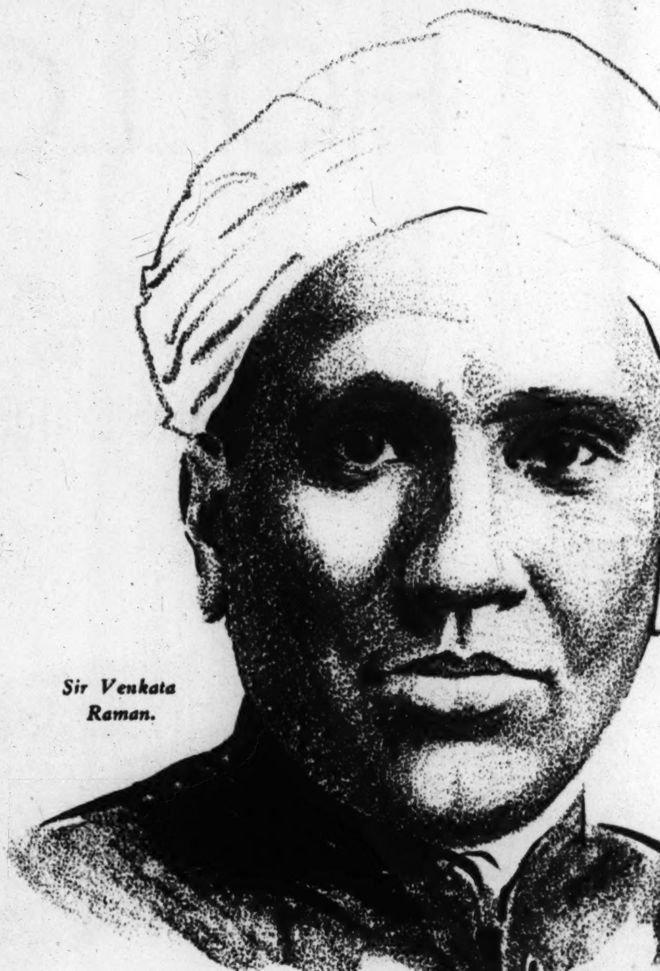
While he was engaged in experimenting with the spectrometer, he noticed an optical phenomenon produced when a beam of light suffered very oblique reflection at a plane polished surface. Since he could find no mention of this phenomenon in standard books he worked out an explanation for it and sent a paper on the experiment to the Philosophical Magazine of London. They immediately published the paper.

In spite of this English recognition, the official view in those days was that no Indian, no matter how talented, could be accepted for any of the highest educational or scientific positions. It was also believed that no one who had not taken a degree from a European university could possibly be a real physicist. Raman did not want to go abroad to study, nor did he want to follow in his father's footsteps and take a minor teaching post. He therefore accepted the suggestion of appearing at the all-Indian competition held at Calcutta in 1907 for recruitment to the Finance Department under the Government of India.

BUT before he took this examination, Raman decided to sit for the M. A. examination which included an extended course of studies and practical work both in physics and chemistry. To the astonishment of the examiners, Raman received the highest record of marks ever obtained at the M. A. examination. And when it came to the competition for the Government job, he got the highest mark there and was given an appointment as an enrolled officer of the Finance Department.

Though he was only 18, Raman felt secure enough to marry a young lady named Lokasunderammal, the daughter of a retired Brahmin official living in Maudra. Accompanied by his wife, Raman left for Calcutta to start in Government service. In succession he filled the posts of Assistant Accountant General, Coin Officer at the Currency Office, head of the Postal Accounts Office and Assistant Accountant General, Posts and Telegraphs.

Soon after his arrival in Calcutta, he heard of the research laboratory at the Indian Association for the Cultivation of Science. He went there to find out about using its facilities for his research and when it was discovered that his official duties would keep him engaged every day during the usual hours of the Association, it was decided to open the laboratory early in the morning and late in the evening so that Raman might conduct his experimental work.



Sir Venkata Raman.

When he was transferred to Burma several years later, it seemed as though his research, which was bearing fruit in a steady stream of articles, might suffer badly. But he rigged up a room in the upper flat of his Currency Office as a private laboratory, verted his pantry into a photographic room, and made other repairs which allowed him to continue his investigations.

On his return to Calcutta in 1911 he arranged for the publication of a new scientific journal, the Bulletin of the Indian Association for the Cultivation of Science, which raised the prestige of the Indian Association and firmly established the reputation of Raman as an original investigator. Raman's scientific attainments soon attracted the notice of Sir Asutosh Mookerjee who was looking for a physicist to fill the chair newly endowed by Sir Taraknath Palit in Calcutta. In spite of the fact that the professorship at the University College of Science in Calcutta carried a salary much less than the one he was receiving in the Government service, Raman showed no hesitation in joining the faculty and devoting himself entirely to science from 1917 on.

The fame of Raman's contributions to science caused honors to pour in on him. The universities of India vied with each other in seeking his services as a lecturer on modern developments in physics. In January, 1922, he was given the degree of Doctor of Science by Calcutta University. Two years later he was elected to the fellowship of the Royal Society of London. That same summer he was invited by the British Association for the Advancement of Science to go to Canada and inaugurate a discussion of the scattering of light at its Toronto meeting. At the same time he attended the International Congress of Mathematicians at Toronto and went from there to Philadelphia to represent Calcutta University at the centenary of the Franklin Institute. Here Professor R. A. Millikan invited him to be a visiting Professor at the California Institute of Technology. During the autumn and winter of 1924, Raman lived at Pasadena and gave a number of lectures. After his return to India he was again called out to attend the bicentenary of the Russian Academy of Sciences in 1925; the Russians received him with great honor and he made a comprehensive tour of the Soviet Union.

His numerous interests did not prevent Raman from returning again and again to the subject of the scattering of light which he felt had great potentialities both for physics and chemistry. In 1928 he undertook a thorough study of the subject and found that if light of one color was sent into a liquid, the scattered light consisted, in addition to light of that color, of light of other pure colors also—the

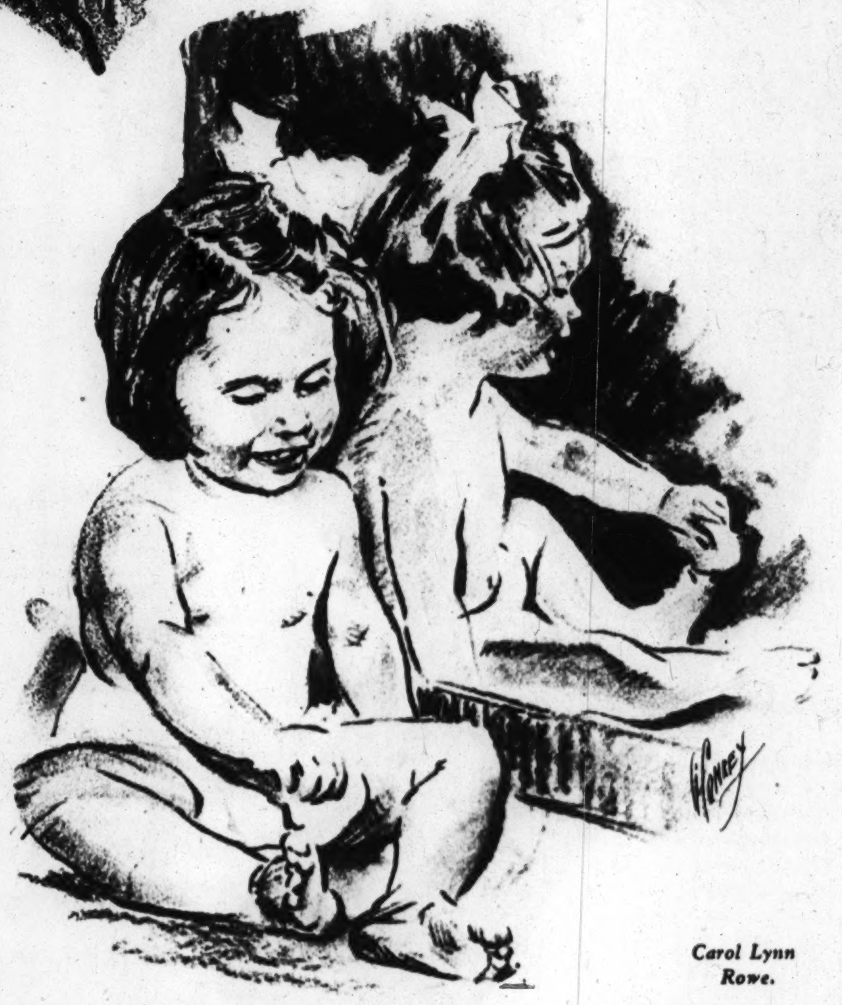
STUDY OF A TWO-YEAR-OLD 'GENIUS'

CRESTON, Iowa.

THE fact that she is totally blind has unquestionably never occurred to Carol Lynn Rowe. She is keenly conscious of the existence of her eyes, which, since they have nothing to focus on, move birdlike in swift jerks, seeming to search for their lost sensation. But the notion of blindness is something she cannot yet understand. This is rather extraordinary, too, for there is very little that escapes the attention of this two-year-old, whose intelligence is so rapid and retentive that she leads the normal life of an adventuresome child wholly unconscious that she is anything but normal. Her parents' little bungalow here holds no mysteries she hasn't tried to fathom. Watching her at play one could readily mistake her groping gestures for those of an ordinary youngster. She falls down much less often than most, bumps herself very seldom and doesn't make much of a fuss when she does. Her powers of orientation have become uncanny. She does make mistakes, though. One resulted in a nasty collision between her forehead and the sharp edge of the living room table. "I bump my eye off!" she wailed in childish imprecation. Then she forgot about it and went over to play with her baby doll in the center of the room.

Carol Lynn is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Kenneth W. Rowe. Her father is a successful dentist in this little city—a market center for the corn-hog part of Iowa and a storm center in the movement for farmers' economic rights. Her parents are simple people with no special claim or taste for public attention. The fact that their child is blind would, under ordinary circumstances, have remained a domestic tragedy witnessed only by their small circle of friends. Mrs. Rowe's desperation when she learned what the baby faced was what led to the general knowledge that Carol Lynn possesses extraordinary gifts as well as terrible handicaps. She took the baby to specialists of every sort in hopes of a cure. Occulists, neurologists and physicians have made their diagnoses—to say nothing of chiropractors and numerologists. That is how it happened to come out that the baby is probably a potential genius.



Carol Lynn Rowe.

THIS is the conclusion of two psychologists who have examined her. On the basis of her vocabulary, which was 562 words at the age of 20 months and is estimated at 1500 words now (half a year later), Dr. Wendell Johnson and Dr. Lee Edward Travis, of the department of psychology at the University of Iowa, put her intelligence quotient at about 165 or 170. At that time she was using words like precious, katydid, pump, hippopotamus and bias tape in her familiar conversation. Today she is on speaking terms with such hard idea-words as promote, extraordinary and scientific. She can even spell some of them, although she may leave out the second "iss" in Mississippi by accident.

Dr. Johnson, a special student of child speech, appears to have been enormously impressed by her last summer. "Vocabulary is the best single indication of high intelligence," he generalized. "Assuming this, Carol has an intelligence quotient of about 165, which is definitely in the genius class. A quotient of 100 is normal." He pointed out at the time that Carol Lynn's development was very nearly equal to that of a three-year-old. Perfectly sound children are frequently unable to speak at all at the age of two. This one is beginning to learn German and picked up pig latin by herself during a dinner conversation.

UNLESS she is encouraged to show off (which she is pretty consistently) Carol Lynn isn't, however, verbose. She acts pretty much the way one would expect, tries hard to be cute and is usually conspicuously successful, picks up annoying little tricks every day and has to be squelched for it. It is almost impossible to pity her merely on the basis of what one sees; her adaptations are so remarkable. Mrs. Rowe didn't allow her to crawl, fearing she would be afraid to walk. The first time she was put on the floor she walked a few steps by herself. Now she feels free to climb up the stairs by clinging to the outside of the bannister. And Carol Lynn can think up similar ways of terrifying the unwary, every minute. Although she is still a little afraid of the telephone—doubtless owing to her exaggerated power of associating voices with the presence of a person, rather than a mechanical contraption—she has already learned to take the receiver off the hook and annoy Central. She calls her father's office on her toy phone and holds imaginary dialogues, always speaks of herself in the third person, even in conversation.

Her senses of touch and smell are naturally accentuated. Her baby fingers flutter over unfamiliar objects not with that unnatural and frightening kind of groping that usually characterizes the movements of the blind, but with a sensitive gracefulness. She can identify all seven of her story books and brings her mother the particular one she wants read. After more than a year of hearing stories read, this amusement is almost getting to be a farce, since she knows most of them verbatim. Her father is now adding a touch of novelty to it by making her translate one or two

A SOFT-SPOKEN SEA DOG

SAN PEDRO, California.

TRIM-RIGGED—that's how the men of the United States Navy from seaman second-class on up describe their Commander-in-Chief, Admiral Joseph Mason Reeves, whose four-starred flag is to be hauled down this summer from the main truck of the battleship Pennsylvania when Reeves reaches the retirement age of 64.

Tall and slender, with white vandyke beard and mustache giving his finely chiseled features a scholarly touch, the Admiral looks more like a college professor of literature than a sea-dog. Quiet, soft-spoken and courteous, he appears to be more fitted to the drawing room than to the quarter deck.

But proof of his fitness to be Uncle Sam's No. 1 man afloat was afforded when the Navy Department and President Roosevelt reappointed him last June for a second year as Commander-in-Chief, a rare honor. He has a reputation for having given the fleet a "workout" unparalleled since World War days. It is conceded that he has borne more strain than any "CINCUS" (navy term for commander derived from the official title of Commander-in-Chief, United States Fleet) since war days. He has spared himself even less than those under him.

With an energy that belies his rather frail appearance, he has whipped men and fleet into shape. The country-club atmosphere that sprang up around navy colonies on the Pacific Coast has disappeared.

His orders are phrased with "you will" and "you are to"—the usual "request" or "suggest" of recent years are not in his lexicon. Naturally, there are some who do not like this man who, perhaps, has got more out of the fleet than any other officer since Robley (Fighting Bob) Evans, who started the fleet on a round-the-world cruise in 1907. They refer to him as being positive plus, but they do not deny his ability or sincerity.

An exponent of the old Fisher formula, "Hit first, hit hard, and keep hitting," he has the fleet absorbed in its task of reaching battle efficiency. He maintains that no naval commander wants to "leave the issue of victory to the Lord." A fleet commander, he says, must control all the factors that go to make a victory. Training for battle, according to his theory, should be as much like actual battle as possible.

Reeves was born on a farm in Illinois. He abandoned the plow and the mower in 1890 to enter the Naval Academy. Despite his slim build, he was an athlete. Winston Churchill, the novelist, and Reeves organized the first navy crew. His classmates called him Bull Reeves. Early in the football season of 1894, Reeves was carried off the field with a fractured skull, thus reducing Navy hopes for revenge on Army after three successive defeats.

BUT when the end of the season came and it appeared Army was to win by a score of 4 to 0, Bull Reeves went in with a conical head guard that made him look like a Chinese Mandarin. Regardless of warnings as to what might happen to him, he smashed through the Army line time and again and won the game for Navy by a score of 6 to 4.

Reeves was an ensign in the engine room of the now historic old Oregon when it left California in 1898 for a 15,000-mile, 47-day run under forced draft around Cape Horn to reach the Battle of Santiago just in time to help sink the Spanish fleet. On that run, Ensign Reeves did more than watch the oil pressure. He helped the weary coal passers feed the furnaces.

After the Spanish-American War, he taught chemistry and coached the football team at the Naval Academy. Later, rejoining the fleet, he soon won honors as an ordnance expert. In 1909, despite his record as an athlete, Reeves nearly fell a victim to President Theodore Roosevelt's insistence on the "strenuous life." Reeves was able to make but a bare 40 miles of the 50-mile walk test that Roosevelt had prescribed for the officers of the Navy. However, the retiring board reconsidered his case as a result of his brilliant record and thus saved an Admiral for the future.

In the World War, Reeves was on convoy duty, commanding the Maine. His services in the submarine-infested Atlantic won him the Navy cross. After the war, he was naval attache at Rome and sent in a report on Mussolini's "march" on the city.

In 1925, at the age of 53, he decided that aviation was to mean much in naval warfare. Going to Pensacola, Fla., the Navy flying school, he won his wings, qualifying as an observer and pilot. During the past few years he has built the Navy's aviation branch into what is recognized as the finest naval flying service in the world. He also achieved outstanding success in his development of aircraft-carrier tactics for the Navy.

THE SLEEPY HOLLOW MURDER

By EDMUND PEARSON

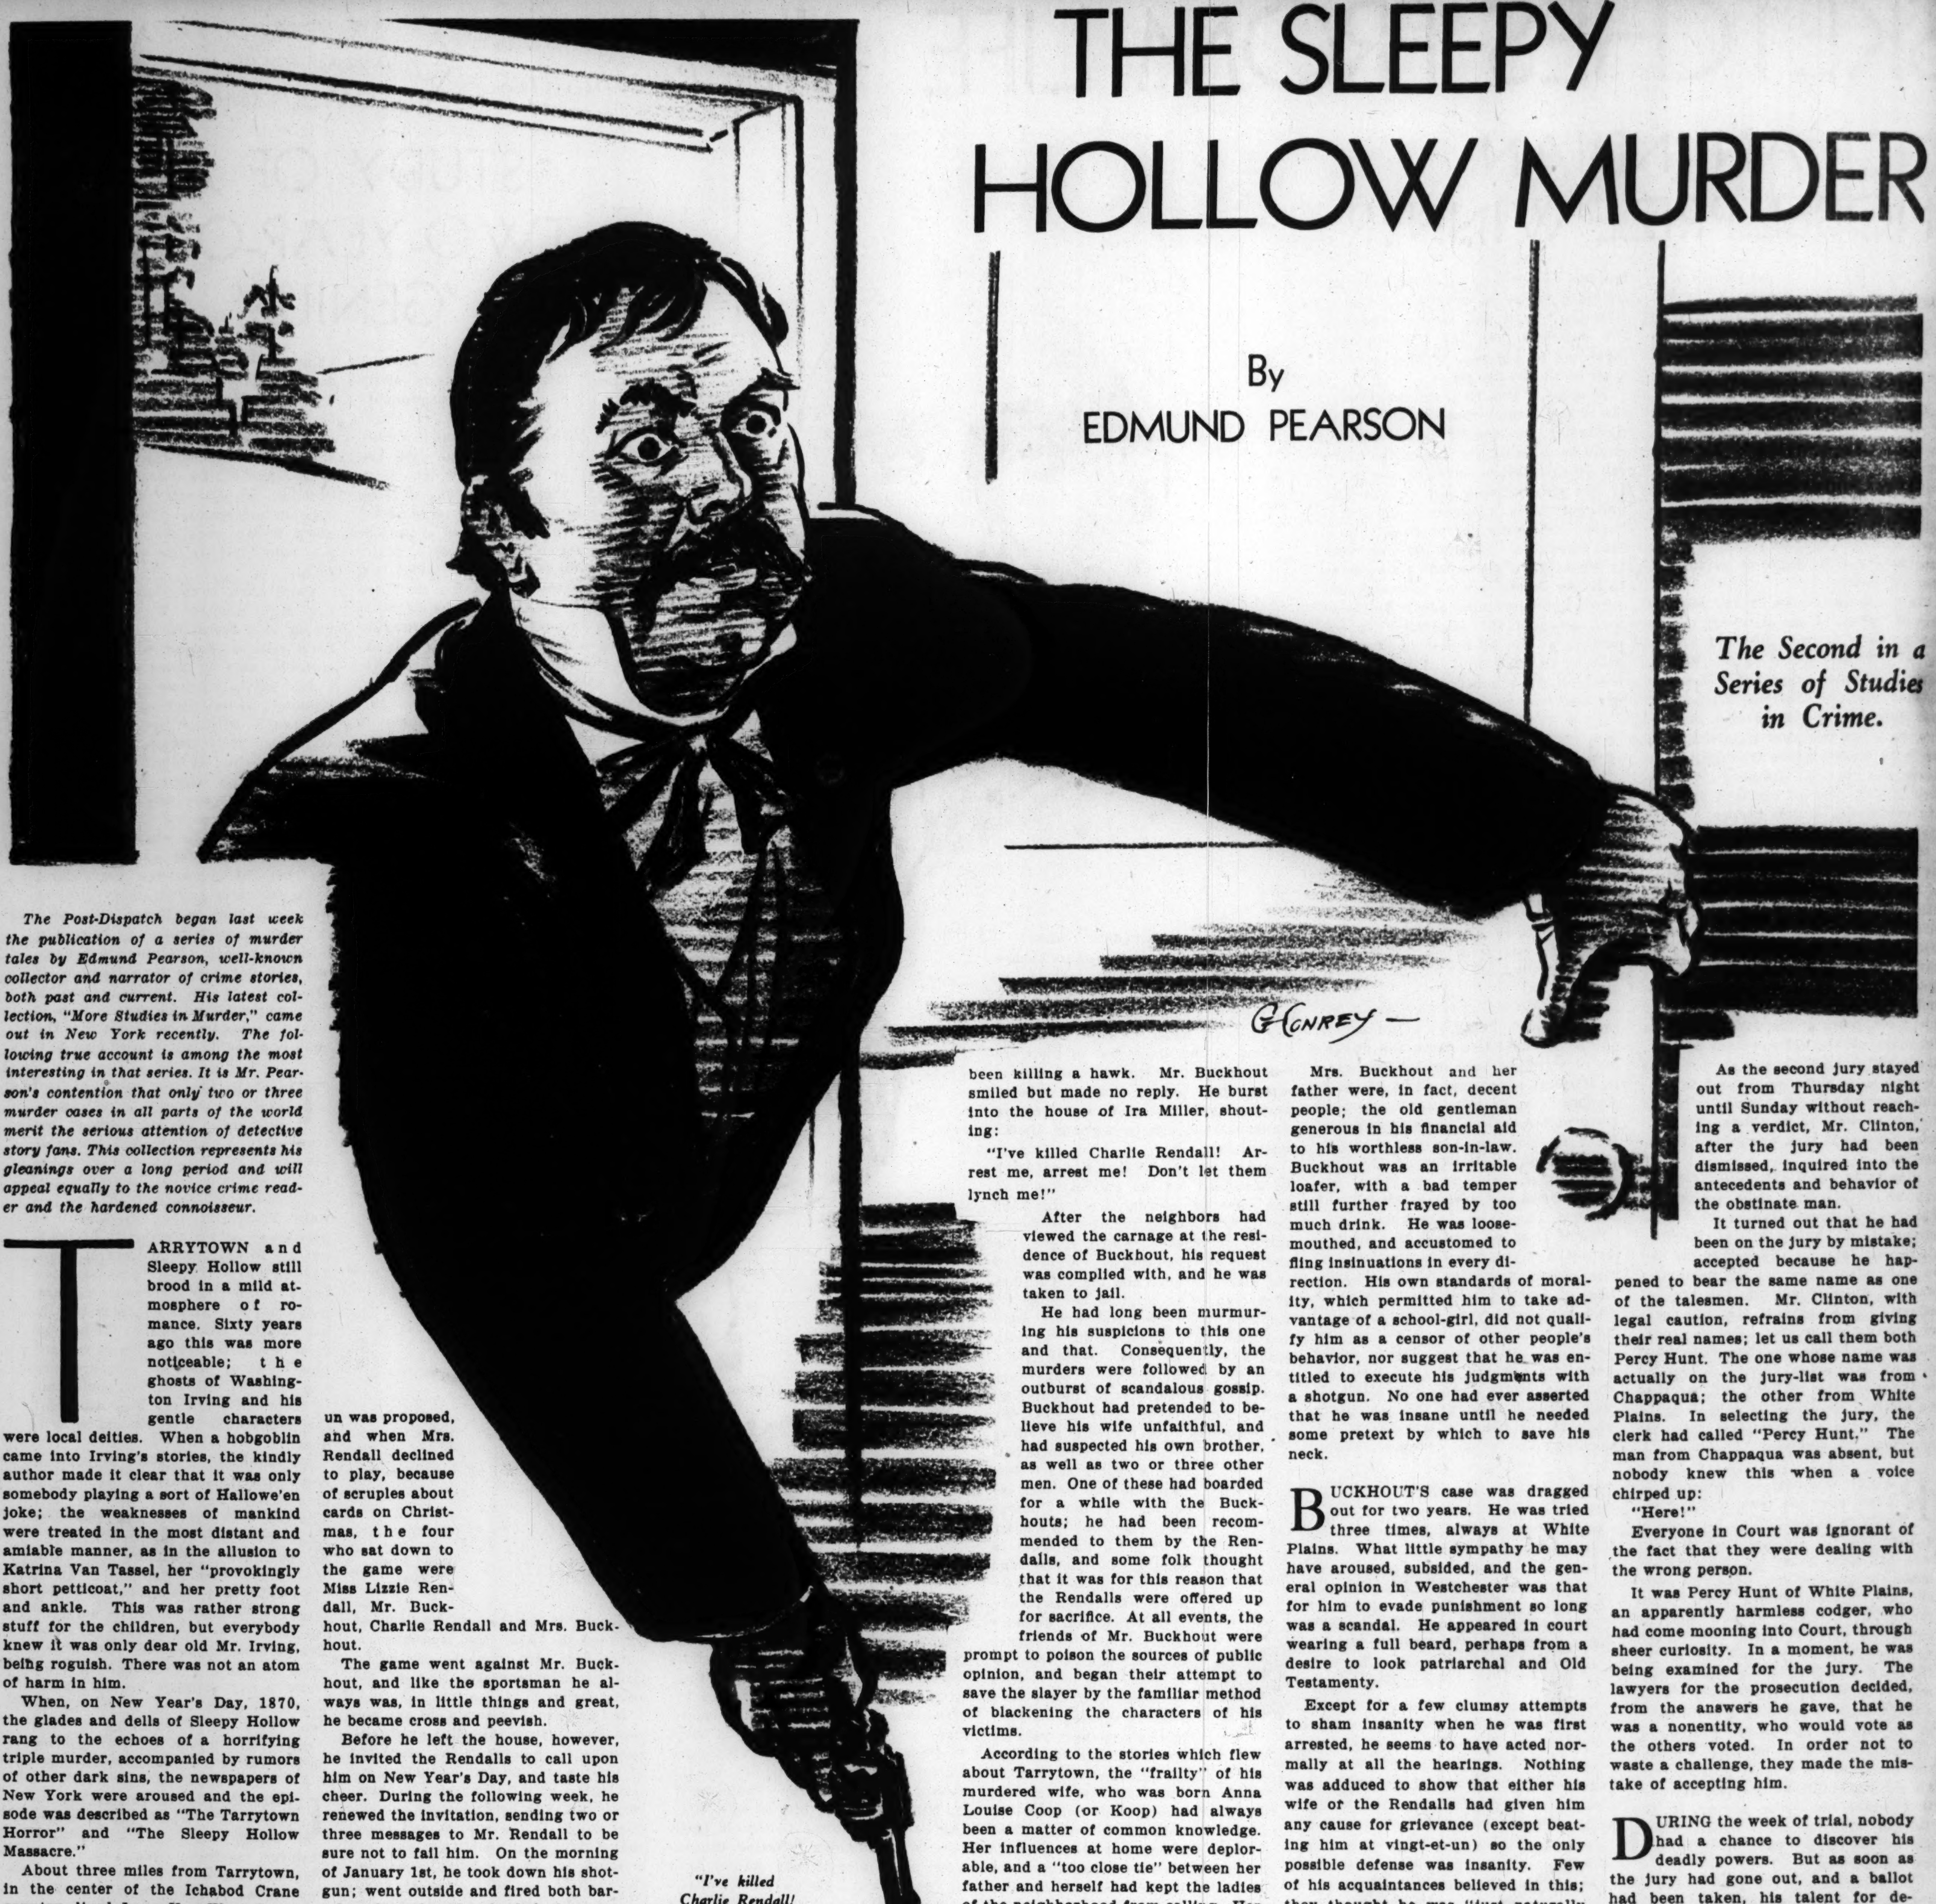
The Second in a Series of Studies in Crime.



"I've killed Charlie Rendall! Arrest me, arrest me! Don't let them lynch me!"

The Post-Dispatch began last week the publication of a series of murder tales by Edmund Pearson, well-known collector and narrator of crime stories, both past and current. His latest collection, "More Studies in Murder," came out in New York recently. The following true account is among the most interesting in that series. It is Mr. Pearson's contention that only two or three murder cases in all parts of the world merit the serious attention of detective story fans. This collection represents his gleanings over a long period and will appeal equally to the novice crime reader and the hardened connoisseur.

TARRYTOWN and Sleepy Hollow still brood in a mild atmosphere of romance. Sixty years ago this was more noticeable; the ghosts of Washington Irving and his gentle characters were local deities. When a hobgoblin came into Irving's stories, the kindly author made it clear that it was only somebody playing a sort of Hallowe'en joke; the weaknesses of mankind were treated in the most distant and amiable manner, as in the allusion to Katrina Van Tassel, her "provokingly short petticoat," and her pretty foot and ankle. This was rather strong stuff for the children, but everybody knew it was only dear old Mr. Irving, being roguish. There was not an atom of harm in him.

When, on New Year's Day, 1870, the glades and dells of Sleepy Hollow rang to the echoes of a horrifying triple murder, accompanied by rumors of other dark sins, the newspapers of New York were aroused and the episode was described as "The Tarrytown Horror" and "The Sleepy Hollow Massacre."

About three miles from Tarrytown, in the center of the Ichabod Crane country, lived Isaac Van Wart Buckhout, a brawny farmer nearly fifty years old. Named for one of the three heroes who captured Major Andre, Mr. Buckhout was a farmer only by brevet; his wife had enough money to enable him to spend his time partly with rod and gun in pursuit of game, and partly in snooping about trying to unearth scandals relating to his wife and various men in the vicinity. Whatever spare moments were left, he employed in drinking, so that while he was never quite drunk, he was able to claim he "kept his tick full all the time."

His neighbors were the Weekses, the Millers and the Rendalls, all of whom lived on or near the road to Pleasantville. Mr. Buckhout was persona non grata with the Weeks family because he had succumbed to another of his failings, and made some kind of attack upon one of their daughters, a school-girl, aged fourteen. He found it wise to flee the neighborhood for a season, but had at last adjusted the matter by a payment of money.

Another neighbor was Alfred Rendall. Born in England, he had lived in Sleepy Hollow for the past four years. His business was that of a wine merchant on Pine street, New York. He was a few years older than Buckhout; was described as "florid and stately" in appearance; and he dwelt, at peace with the world, with his wife, two daughters and his son, Charles. The last was a man of twenty-five, and, like his father, of good repute.

On Christmas, Mr. and Mrs. Buckhout dined at the Rendalls', and afterwards had a round of cards. Vingt-et-un was proposed, and when Mrs. Rendall declined to play, because of scruples about cards on Christmas, the four who sat down to the game were Miss Lizzie Rendall, Mr. Buckhout, Charlie Rendall and Mrs. Buckhout.

The game went against Mr. Buckhout, and like the sportsman he always was, in little things and great, he became cross and peevish.

Before he left the house, however, he invited the Rendalls to call upon him on New Year's Day, and taste his cheer. During the following week, he renewed the invitation, sending two or three messages to Mr. Rendall to be sure not to fail him. On the morning of January 1st, he took down his shotgun; went outside and fired both barrels; cleaned and reloaded the gun, and then took it, not to its usual place, but to a bedroom back of the sitting-room. He also loaded a revolver and put it in his pocket. An early morning caller, who observed these preparations, thought he was getting ready for a hunting trip.

The Rendalls, father and son, came over at 11 in the morning. On account of the illness of one daughter, neither Mrs. Rendall nor her daughters came. Exactly what sort of reception genial burgher Buckhout had planned for the ladies is not known, but with his fowling-piece and revolver he had at least eight shots in his locker; and perhaps he could have met the situation.

THE callers were invited into the sitting-room and made comfortable; Mr. Rendall on a chair in the center of the room; his son on a sofa. Mr. Buckhout withdrew to fetch the cider, his wife being engaged in the kitchen with the New Year's goose. When the host returned, he carried a pitcher and two goblets. The latter he filled and bade his guests drink hearty. He poured out no cider for himself.

Whether this was because the cider was insidiously doctored is not disclosed. If it was, Mr. Buckhout scorned to wait on such subtleties. He went out again, to the bedroom, this time, and came back with the shotgun. Standing in the doorway, he fired and instantly killed Mr. Rendall. Swinging the gun around, he emptied the second barrel at Charles. Part of the charge hit him in the left side of the head, some of the shot breaking the glass goblet which the young man had raised to his lips. Bits of the glass were embedded in his forehead and eye.

Buckhout hurried toward the kitchen, meeting his wife who was coming to inquire about the shooting. With the empty shotgun, trying first the butt, until he broke the stock, and then, with the barrels, he beat out his wife's brains. He then rushed outdoors.

Charles Rendall, meanwhile, blinded in one eye, his face covered with blood, confused as to what had happened, got up and went to his father. He spoke to him, and shook him, but got no reply. He then staggered outdoors, passing the body of Mrs. Buckhout, which lay on the kitchen floor. Once outside the door of the house, he fell senseless. He recovered consciousness only after three days, when he inquired of the people around him why Buckhout had shot him. He seemed not to be aware that his father had been killed.

Charles Rendall lived to testify at the trial. So, merely owing to Buckhout's haste, it was a double, not a triple, murder.

The contriver of this slaughter, as soon as he was sure his wife was dead, ran down the road with the revolver in his hand. He met a boy, who, having heard the shots, asked if he had been killing a hawk. Mr. Buckhout smiled but made no reply. He burst into the house of Ira Miller, shouting:

"I've killed Charlie Rendall! Arrest me, arrest me! Don't let them lynch me!"

After the neighbors had viewed the carnage at the residence of Buckhout, his request was complied with, and he was taken to jail.

He had long been murmuring his suspicions to this one and that. Consequently, the murders were followed by an outburst of scandalous gossip. Buckhout had pretended to believe his wife unfaithful, and had suspected his own brother, as well as two or three other men. One of these had boarded for a while with the Buckhouts; he had been recommended to them by the Rendalls, and some folk thought that it was for this reason that the Rendalls were offered up for sacrifice. At all events, the friends of Mr. Buckhout were prompt to poison the sources of public opinion, and began their attempt to save the slayer by the familiar method of blackening the characters of his victims.

According to the stories which flew about Tarrytown, the "frailty" of his murdered wife, who was born Anna Louise Coop (or Koop) had always been a matter of common knowledge. Her influences at home were deplorable, and a "too close tie" between her father and herself had kept the ladies of the neighborhood from calling. Her conduct with youths as well as with elderly men had been scandalous, and Mr. Buckhout's friends were horrified when he married her. Thus was laid the foundation for the usual defense; the dead people described as sinners and their assassination as an act of conspicuous public virtue.

In case there might be some one on the jury not simple enough to credit this, the second line of defense was that the murderer was a maniac who had no idea what he was doing. Having fallen from a horse at the age of thirteen, he had never been "bright mentally." Perhaps some of the jury might believe both yarns.

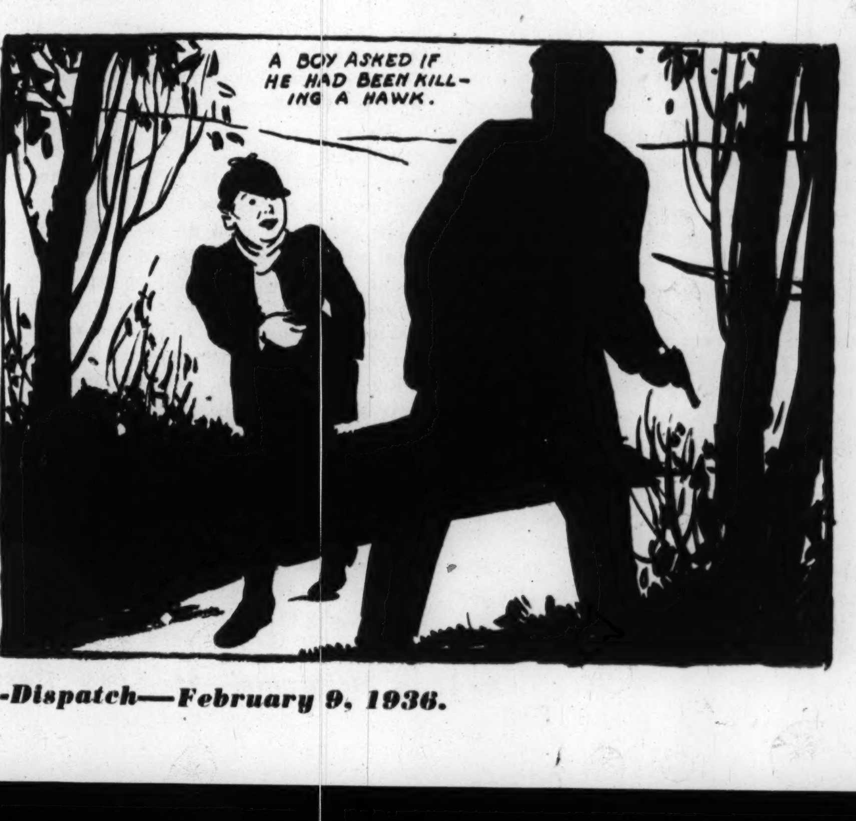
Mrs. Buckhout and her father were, in fact, decent people; the old gentleman generous in his financial aid to his worthless son-in-law. Buckhout was an irritable loafer, with a bad temper still further frayed by too much drink. He was loose-mouthed, and accustomed to fling insinuations in every direction. His own standards of morality, which permitted him to take advantage of a school-girl, did not qualify him as a censor of other people's behavior, nor suggest that he was entitled to execute his judgments with a shotgun. No one had ever asserted that he was insane until he needed some pretext by which to save his neck.

BUCKHOUT'S case was dragged out for two years. He was tried three times, always at White Plains. What little sympathy he may have aroused, subsided, and the general opinion in Westchester was that for him to evade punishment so long was a scandal. He appeared in court wearing a full beard, perhaps from a desire to look patriarchal and Old Testamenty.

Except for a few clumsy attempts to sham insanity when he was first arrested, he seems to have acted normally at all the hearings. Nothing was adduced to show that either his wife or the Rendalls had given him any cause for grievance (except beating him at vingt-et-un) so the only possible defense was insanity. Few of his acquaintances believed in this; they thought he was "just naturally a mean cuss."

In all three trials there was the usual conflict of expert evidence. Two or three doctors, and experts from asylums, testified that he was sane; an equal number swore that he was—or had been—mad. The first jury disagreed, standing eight to four for conviction.

At the second trial, there was another disagreement, eleven of the jury voting for "Guilty." It was explained by an odd incident, which has been described by Henry L. Clinton, the New York attorney who prosecuted at each trial.



A BOY ASKED IF HE HAD BEEN KILLING A HAWK.

As the second jury stayed out from Thursday night until Sunday without reaching a verdict, Mr. Clinton, after the jury had been dismissed, inquired into the antecedents and behavior of the obstinate man.

It turned out that he had been on the jury by mistake; accepted because he happened to bear the same name as one of the talesmen. Mr. Clinton, with legal caution, refrains from giving their real names; let us call them both Percy Hunt. The one whose name was actually on the jury-list was from Chappaqua; the other from White Plains. In selecting the jury, the clerk had called "Percy Hunt." The man from Chappaqua was absent, but nobody knew this when a voice chirped up:

"Here!"

Everyone in Court was ignorant of the fact that they were dealing with the wrong person.

It was Percy Hunt of White Plains, an apparently harmless codger, who had come mooning into Court, through sheer curiosity. In a moment, he was being examined for the jury. The lawyers for the prosecution decided, from the answers he gave, that he was a nonentity, who would vote as the others voted. In order not to waste a challenge, they made the mistake of accepting him.

DURING the week of trial, nobody had a chance to discover his deadly powers. But as soon as the jury had gone out, and a ballot had been taken, his talent for destruction was disclosed. Eleven jurors voted "Guilty." The false Percy Hunt refused to vote. The others argued with him. They argued for three nights and two days. They told him he had to vote. He merely answered:

"Why?"

He then added:

"I never wanted to have anything to do with this here case, anyway."

They pointed out that now he was on the jury he must vote. Said he:

"Look here, this whole thing was really between Buckhout and his wife. It's none of my darn business. I can't help it if he did kill her and that other fellow. I ain't goin' to interfere. Besides, it's all I can do to keep my own wife in order."

At night he would tell them he was tired and was going to sleep; if he chanced to dream anything about the case, he would tell them in the morning. Nothing nearer to a vote than this was ever extorted from him. Of course, he was playing Buckhout's game, but apparently there was no malice or corruption in him—he was merely a goofus.

At the third trial, as at the second, the defense alienists failed to convince anybody. And, this time, no village idiot had succeeded in getting on the jury. Buckhout was convicted of murder in the first degree. And after a few more pleas and petitions; writs and stays; respites and postponements; delays and debates, he was actually hanged.

Since her restless mind is always working on other new ideas at the same time.

She was listening to her mother's reading the other evening, filling in phrases and sentences that were left out. Mrs. Rowe: "Won't you have some . . ." Carol Lynn: "Ginger cookies, said Mrs. Brown Bear . . ." Mrs. Rowe: "They smell . . ." Carol Lynn: "Sehr gut!" And in between phrases Carol Lynn was practicing a new language she had just made up. "Po-po, popo-popo . . ." chattered Carol Lynn. "What does that mean?" someone asked. "That's the way they talk in Ethiopia," the baby said indifferently. And a moment later was trying to translate "Post-Dispatch" into pig Latin. That's quite a task even for a practiced pig Latinist. (Carol Lynn wasn't very good at it either.)

Although intensely pleased by flattery, Carol Lynn doesn't particularly put herself out for her audience. During most of the interview on which this description is based, she was lying on her back in the middle of the floor, trying to touch the rug behind her with her toes. Her ability to feel the presence of people about her is uncanny. She recognizes an acquaintance after one meeting (by voice) and always asks the names of strangers.

She makes almost no mistakes in her touch identifications, either. She can tell Father's expense account book from his atlas.

The radio plays an inordinately prominent part in Carol Lynn's life. She uses it more than anything else to learn new words. The result is that such phrases as hy-de-ho, goofy, "come up and see me sometime," and okey doky figure prominently in her private monologues. Although her musical sense hasn't developed phenomenally, she can sing snatches from at least 35 of the jazz favorites recognizably, knows a few of the radio stars by their voices (her favorite is Jessica Dragonette) and can tell the difference between a band and an orchestra. Her own toy instruments are a piano, a xylophone, a tambourine and a squeaky accordion. When these are included in a radio orchestra she recognizes them delightedly.

Whether or not these facts of memory are more pronounced because they are focused on four senses is a moot question. Doubtless "compensation" has improved the sensitiveness of her ability to distinguish smells. When she finds a new one that she likes she puts her chubby little face in her tiny hands and seems to ruminate on it like a connoisseur. She can recognize lotions and foods with ease, of course. She can also recognize houses and rooms and has given some of them names according to their odors. "The cooky house" is her special love. Strange places don't frighten her in the least; she is too busy analyzing the smells and sounds. When she was taken to Des Moines for a radio interview she was in her element. There were dozens of people to make a fuss over her and a children's ice cream party. Best of all were the flashlight pictures, which she dubbed "pop-pops." Although she is incapable of seeing, the brilliant light flashes were perceptible to her, and lots of fun. Altogether she behaved very well with it all. She did pinch her mother's nose in front of the microphone, but in other respects her performance was perfect, Dr. and Mrs. Rowe were very proud of her and everyone was impressed.

Carol Lynn doesn't have very much trouble impressing people. She is very pretty as babies go. Her physique is identical with what it should be according to the health charts. Her photograph was awarded one of the prizes in the National Baby Contest at the Century of Progress Exposition in Chicago.

AMERICANS Spend ONE-THIRD Their INCOMES for NECESSITIES

The item of "Rent on homes" in the table perhaps needs explanation. It includes the rental value of homes owned by the occupants as well as money actually paid in rent.

Another view of American spending is afforded by a table for the preparation of which Lynd gives credit to Alfred Cahen of the College of the City of New York. It deals with the per capita output of many commodities which are classified as consumers' goods, giving the quantity or value in 1929, and in many instances tracing the increase or decrease of production from 1919 to 1929, sometimes to 1931.

Here are reflected in figures some of the well-known trends that were manifest during the decade of the '20s in everyday American life—declines in the use of cotton stockings and coal stoves; of pianos, organs and phonographs; increases in the use of mechanical refrigerators and electrical household appliances; of cigarettes, cosmetics, movies, automobiles, and of course radios and airplanes—and bathing suits.

Some of the other trends shown may not have been so generally recognized. There were substantial increases in the production of pocketbooks and purses, bakery products, toys and games and books of fiction. There was a decrease from 1925 in dining room furniture and in bookcases, and an increase in living room and library furniture. There was a gain in the production of all wearing apparel (collectively) and a marked decline in hooks and eyes. The output of ice cream gained, the 1929 production being three gallons a person. The production of chewing gum also increased until, in the first year of the depression, the chewing gum factories turned out 48 cents worth (factory price) for every man, woman and child in the United States. The social significance of this is not explained.

ster City and began working on his first book, a novel of Chicago gangster life. It was at this time that four dollars a week covered the budget. Money was so scarce when the manuscript was completed that Kantor had to go to Chicago on a stock train with his novel, "Diversey," under his arm. He sold it to Coward-McCann, Inc., a new firm. Kantor's debut was the firm's debut and they have never parted company.

But "Diversey," while a fair success, didn't set the Kantor table. To make ends meet, Kantor wrote short stories and sold them to small Mid-west literary magazines. The pay was small and, with the depression, all his markets folded up.

Kantor, who is a firm believer in the value of obsessions, if properly controlled, fell back on an obsession with the Civil War. This one dated back to his childhood.

"It was a book salesman who started me off," he says. "He came to our door in Webster City, taking orders for the 'New Photographic History of the Civil War,' in ten volumes. There wasn't enough money in the family to buy one volume, let alone ten. The salesman was hopeful, though. He left a whole stack of loose sheets, half-tones which appeared in the books. A lot of them happened to be Gettysburg scenes and I couldn't outgrow the fatal humor of staring at them. The fact is, I didn't want to. That started me off. All my life I read the Civil War, preferring it in histories and fiction to any other kind of reading. I wanted to see the battlefield of Gettysburg."

He got this chance in 1930, when in a mortgaged Chevrolet, author, wife, child and unborn child set out for the East. Their belongings were in storage, threatened by a host of creditors.

Kantor is not a spiritualist but, he says, there are a lot of things he doesn't understand and he wouldn't be surprised if the ghosts of Pettigrews' and Hays' men didn't escort the grim-faced little party in the mortgaged Chevrolet as it poked endlessly about the old battlefield.

The Kantors settled in Westfield where their second child was born. Money got scarcer than ever around the household. Bits of coin dribbled in, but not enough. Kantor pounded out short stories. They didn't sell. He took one resolution for New Year's, 1933. He would finally write that novel of the Civil War. On January 1 he began. Two weeks later, his landlord handed him an eviction notice. Rent was overdue. The unexpected sale of a short story staved off disaster.

"I didn't have any overcoat that winter," Kantor recalls, "and the baby had the colic and my wife was ill. Maybe all this helped the book. There are kind souls, usually well-to-do, who suggest that such privation is essential to the creation of any artistic value. Ha!"

"Long Remember," was the outcome of the New Year's resolution. This Civil War novel, which became a Literary Guild selection, finally put the Kantor family on a secure basis. Other Kantor books, besides the Bugle Ann story, are "El Goes South" and "Turkey in the Straw."

One of Kantor's distinctions is his membership in the National Association of Civil War Musicians. No other living writer shares this honor. He plays old-fashioned fife music and, although a pacifist, is willing to bet he can melt anyone's pacifism with "Hell on the Wabash," "The Recruiting Sergeant," or "Eighteen-Twelve."

been walking along a street in the business section of New York one day, he stated, when he saw a good-looking old 'cello perched on top of a moving van!

He had walked up to a well-dressed man standing near the van and begun to question him about the 'cello on top of the truck. He asked the man whether or not he wanted to sell, and the man asked Webb what he would offer for it. Webb fumbled in one of his pockets and brought out all the money he had with him. When it was counted it amounted to $12! So the man, whose identity remained unknown, promptly climbed onto the van and handed the 'cello to Webb!

Elsa went home and got the bill of sale she had had for so many years and brought it to Rosenthal's store. The violin maker, now as greatly interested as she herself, accompanied her to a shop owned by John Friedrich, where she had had the instrument repaired in the past. Friedrich, an expert, examined the Guarnerius in their company and immediately identified it as belonging to Miss Hilger. Friedrich even produced a piece of yellow plush which he had cut from the lining of the case, at the time he had made the last repair.

Then Elsa's sister, Maria, declared that an identifying mark on the case would be a nail with which she had once made a hinge fast when a screw had fallen out. Everybody looked—and the nail was still there. Then, further to establish ownership, Elsa pointed out her own initials, "E. H.," on the bow.

So Miss Hilger got back the "big fiddle" that had called her—as she insists—out of the din of an 80-piece orchestra!

purity of the modified light increasing with the purity of the original light. The new light was, so to speak, manufactured out of the original light by the substance. The announcement of the discovery aroused great excitement in the scientific world, since it gave a new insight into the nature of radiation and provided a new instrument for investigating the forces binding different atoms in a molecule. The new effect came to be known as the "Raman Effect."

Further honors began to come to Raman. He was elected General President of the Indian Science Congress; the Italian Society at Rome awarded him the Matteucci Gold Medal; he was knighted in June, 1929, and is now Professor Sir Venkata Raman; and the Royal Society of London awarded the Hughes Medal to him in 1930 for distinguished work in optics.

At the present time various researches are being entirely pursued in Raman's laboratory. The Raman Effect has proved to be a gold mine from which workers in all parts of the world are gathering fresh finds. But the great scientist is not satisfied and wishes to probe further into the mysteries of nature. He is still in the prime of life and may be expected to produce work which will leave a lasting mark on the scientific and industrial progress of India.

"No more half-sick feeling for me...no more harsh 'all-at-once' cathartics"

When I feel run down, headachy, half sick—when the children get irritable, cranky—then I know it's a sign of constipation. I get out our family box of FEEN-A-MINT, the chewing-gum laxative. There used to be a time when we took old-fashioned, harsh, "all-at-once" cathartics, but that's all over now. We just chew FEEN-A-MINT for three minutes before going to bed—(that's why it's called "the three-minute way")—and it goes to work easily, pleasantly, and gradually. There are no cramps, no nausea, no bad after-effects. Our family wouldn't be without it for anything. Costs only 15c and 25c a box.

SAVE 37 MINUTES EVERY WASHDAY!

"THIS IS THE FIRST TIME I'VE EVER SEEN YOU DOWNTOWN SO EARLY ON WASHDAY, MRS. SMITH."
"EARLY-AND NOT ALL TIRED OUT! I'M USING LA FRANCE NOW AND IT SAVES ME 37 MINUTES EVERY TIME I DO THE WASHING."

Get the whitest, sweetest-smelling washes you ever saw!

MIRACLES HAPPEN when you add La France to your washday suds!

The magic blue flakes mix with the suds ...and get more and better work out of your soap.

Dirt simply rolls out of the clothes with scarcely any rubbing. Less work for you!

SAVED:
The bluing rinse!

And—dissolved in the suds—La France does the most beautiful bluing job you've ever seen—without a single bluing streak. (Of course, you know that properly blued clothes are always whiter than unblued ones.)

But with La France, you've saved all the work of bluing—the lifting, the rinsing, the wringing. Actual tests by hundreds of housewives prove that La France saves 37 minutes in doing an average-size family wash.

And here's the greatest La France magic of all—

La France actually saves you money in the bargain!

La France saves the average housewife at least $4.03 a year over and above its cost.

It does this by saving more than 32 hours of work, one-third the soap you now use, and all the bluing you're now paying for. And this doesn't count other substantial savings that La France brings you—such as water (520 gallons a year) and electricity (if you use a machine).

And, even more important, is the saving in wear and tear of your clothes, due to a half-hour less laundering each week,—a saving that's probably greater in dollars and cents than all La France's other savings combined!

A different movie star will appear in this space every week. Accompanying each player will be three costumes this particular person wore in various roles played on the screen. Cut out the player and paste on cardboard. Then cut out the costumes. Now dress the star in the proper outfits, being careful to assemble each costume correctly.

The three sets of costumes shown here were worn by Kathleen Burke in these roles in the following movies:

THE CHARACTERS

O. HUM AND SIESTA—Two opossums who are very much in love.

RED WILY—An unfortunate fox.

RUBY WILY—Red's faithful wife.

O. Hum, by means of a clever trick, enticed Red Wily into a cage and poked him with a long, pointed stick until the wretched fox agreed to pull him and his lady love, Siesta, around on a sled. Red feels terribly humiliated, being outwitted by O. Hum, whom he has always held in contempt. Being forced to pull the opossum and his sweetheart around is the most embarrassing thing he can think of. Oh, what he wouldn't do to O. Hum if he could only get out of that harness and take off that muzzle. He was thinking about this when he saw Ruby's foot-prints in the snow. Instantly he was alert. He would follow her tracks until he found her; she would help him. The opossums were too much interested in one another to suspect that anything was wrong. The sled draws near Ruby; she sees them and hides behind a tree, a puzzled look on her face, as

THE PLAY BEGINS

RUBY WILY—(To herself.) What on earth has come over Red? He must be losing his mind. (Red looks at her as he approaches.) He sees me—that look in his eyes—no, he isn't crazy; he's in trouble and wants me to help him. I'll wait until those opossums are right alongside of me, then I'll leap out and catch them. (So Ruby waits and, then, with a roar, she hurls herself at the startled lovers who, in true opossum fashion, fall off the sled and pretend they are dead. Ruby then unharnesses Red, who loses no time in taking off his muzzle. And we next see him looking down at the still forms of the opossums as they lay in the snow. Ruby, now that Red is out of danger, has a good laugh at Red's expense.)

RUBY WILY—I'll never forget to my dying day what a surprise I got when I saw you pulling that sled. Really, you did mighty well. I was just thinking how nice it would be if you took me riding like that. Ha! Ha!

RED WILY—All right, Ruby, have your little laugh. But I'm afraid that you did too good a job of rescuing me. It looks as though you scared these opossums to death. Hm-m-m. Maybe they're just acting like they're dead so I'll leave them alone—I've heard they do such things. I'll find out. (Red takes a rope and ties Siesta and O. Hum tightly together and then, propping them up on the sled, starts pulling them to his den.)

RUBY WILY—So, Mr. 'Possum Puller, I see you are still on the job. Ha! Ha! Ha! Those opossums get you to pull them even if they have to play dead to do it. Ha! Ha! Ha!

RED WILY—And just let me find out that they are playing dead and it's going to go a lot harder with them than it would have otherwise.

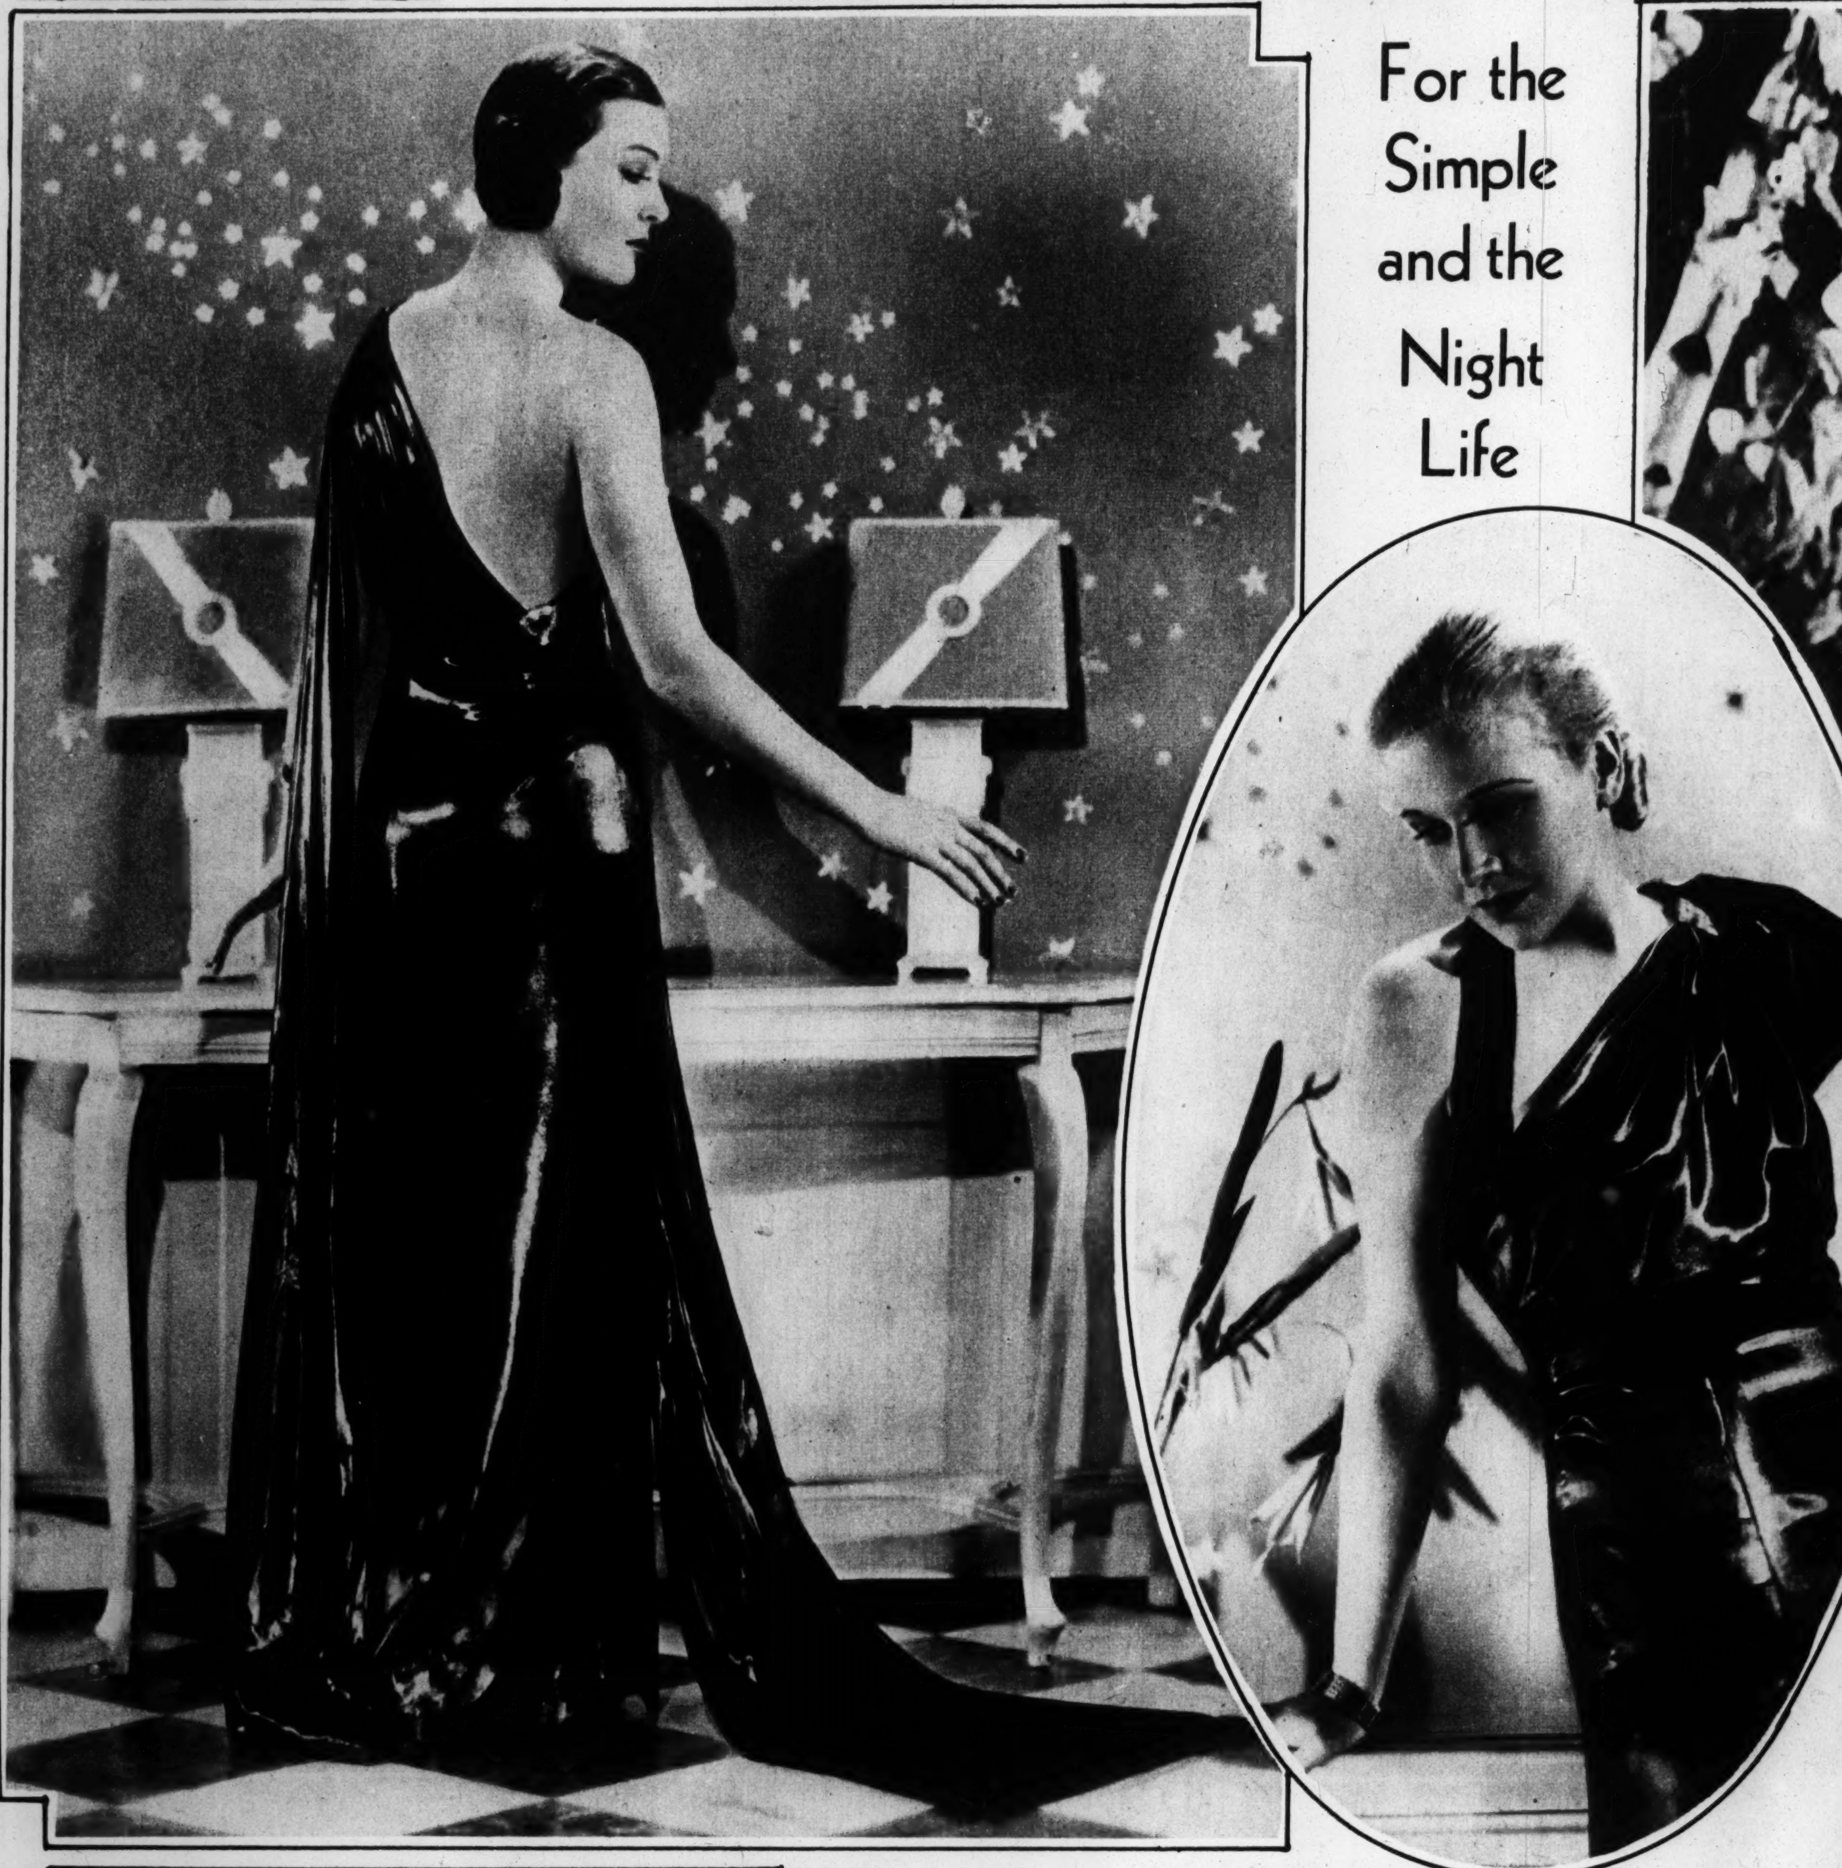
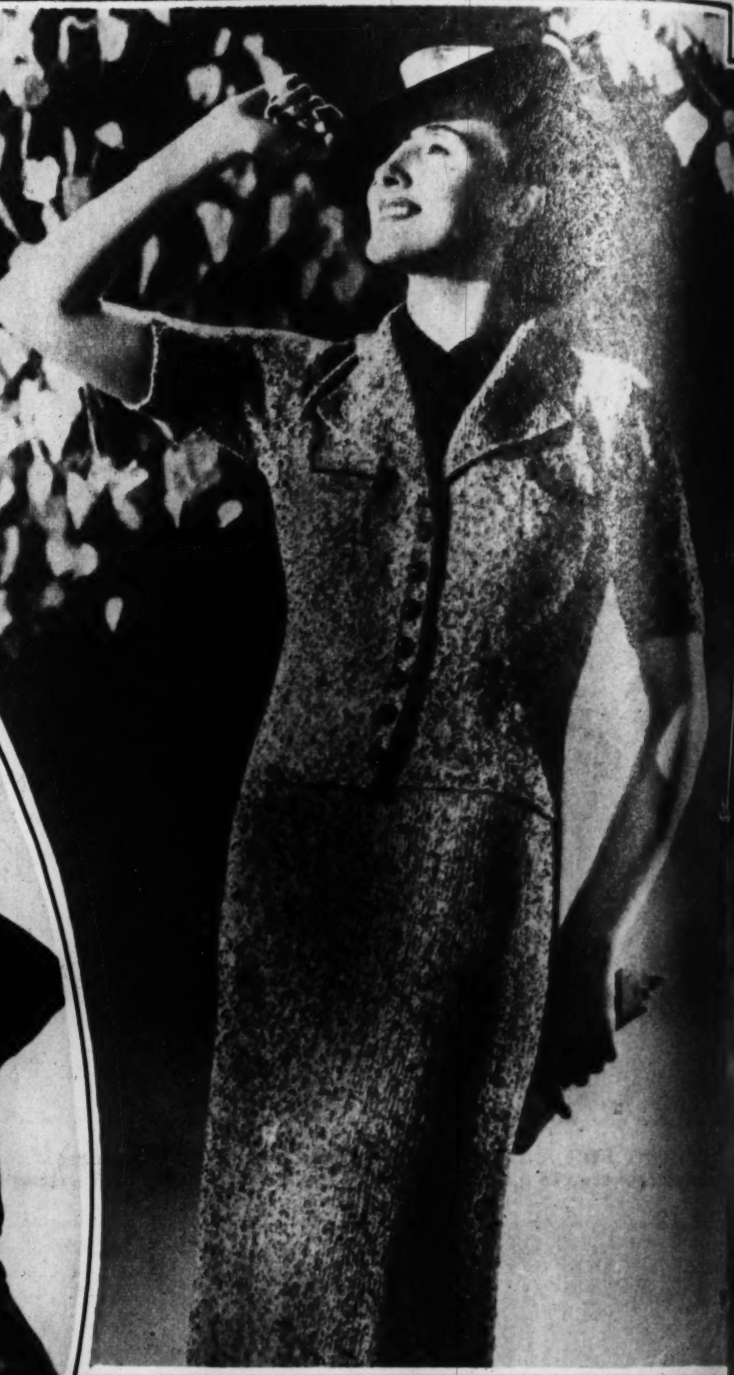
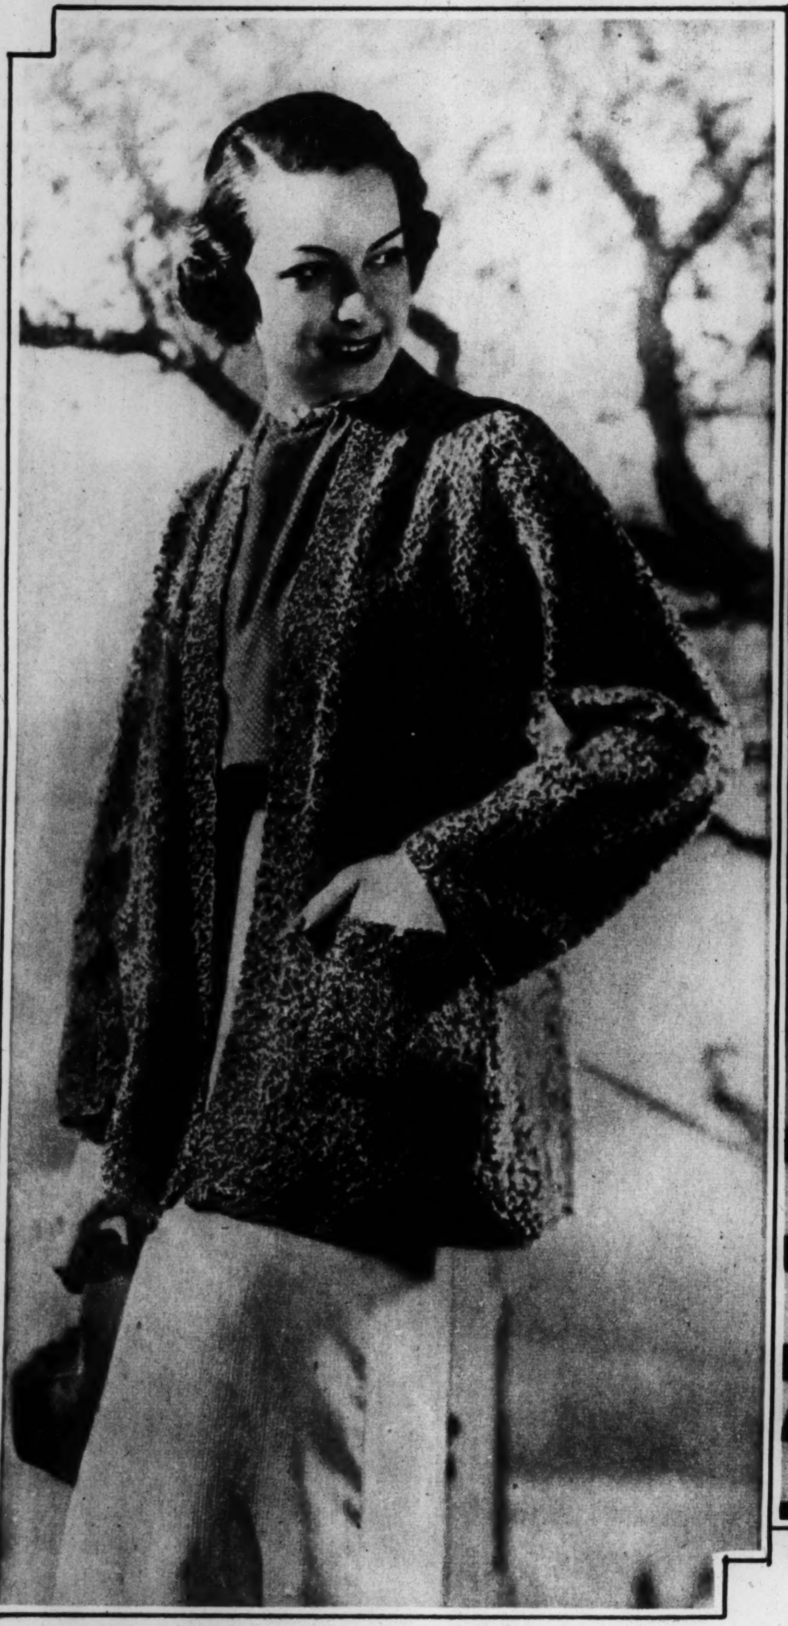
For the Simple and the Night Life



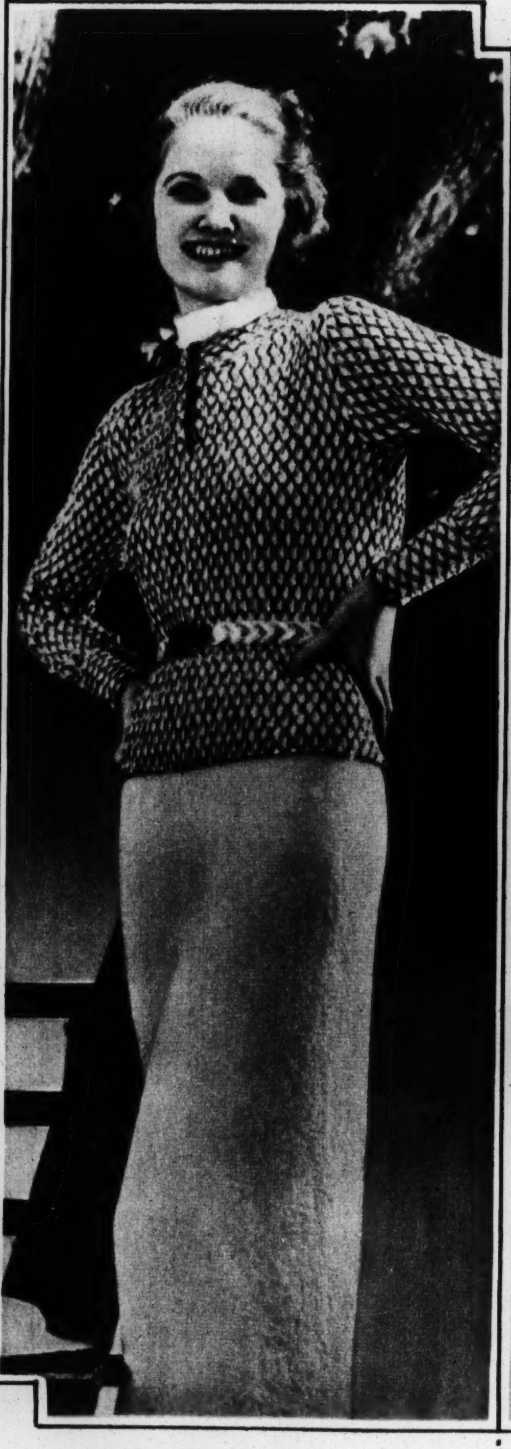
Maxine Jennings (left) and Ann Harding demonstrate two asymmetrical designs for evening. Both gowns are of black cire satin, a stiff, shiny stuff like patent leather.



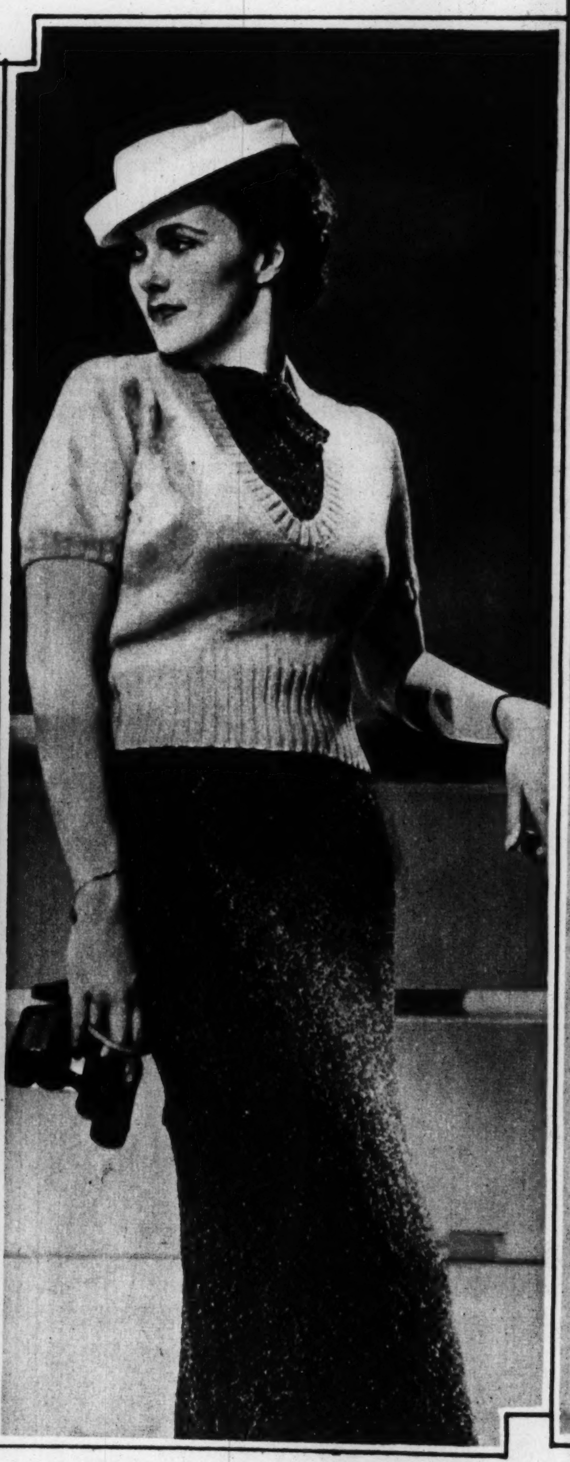
A tweed mixture in Paisley-shawl colors is the yarn in which this suit is knitted. Its lines imitate tailored ones.



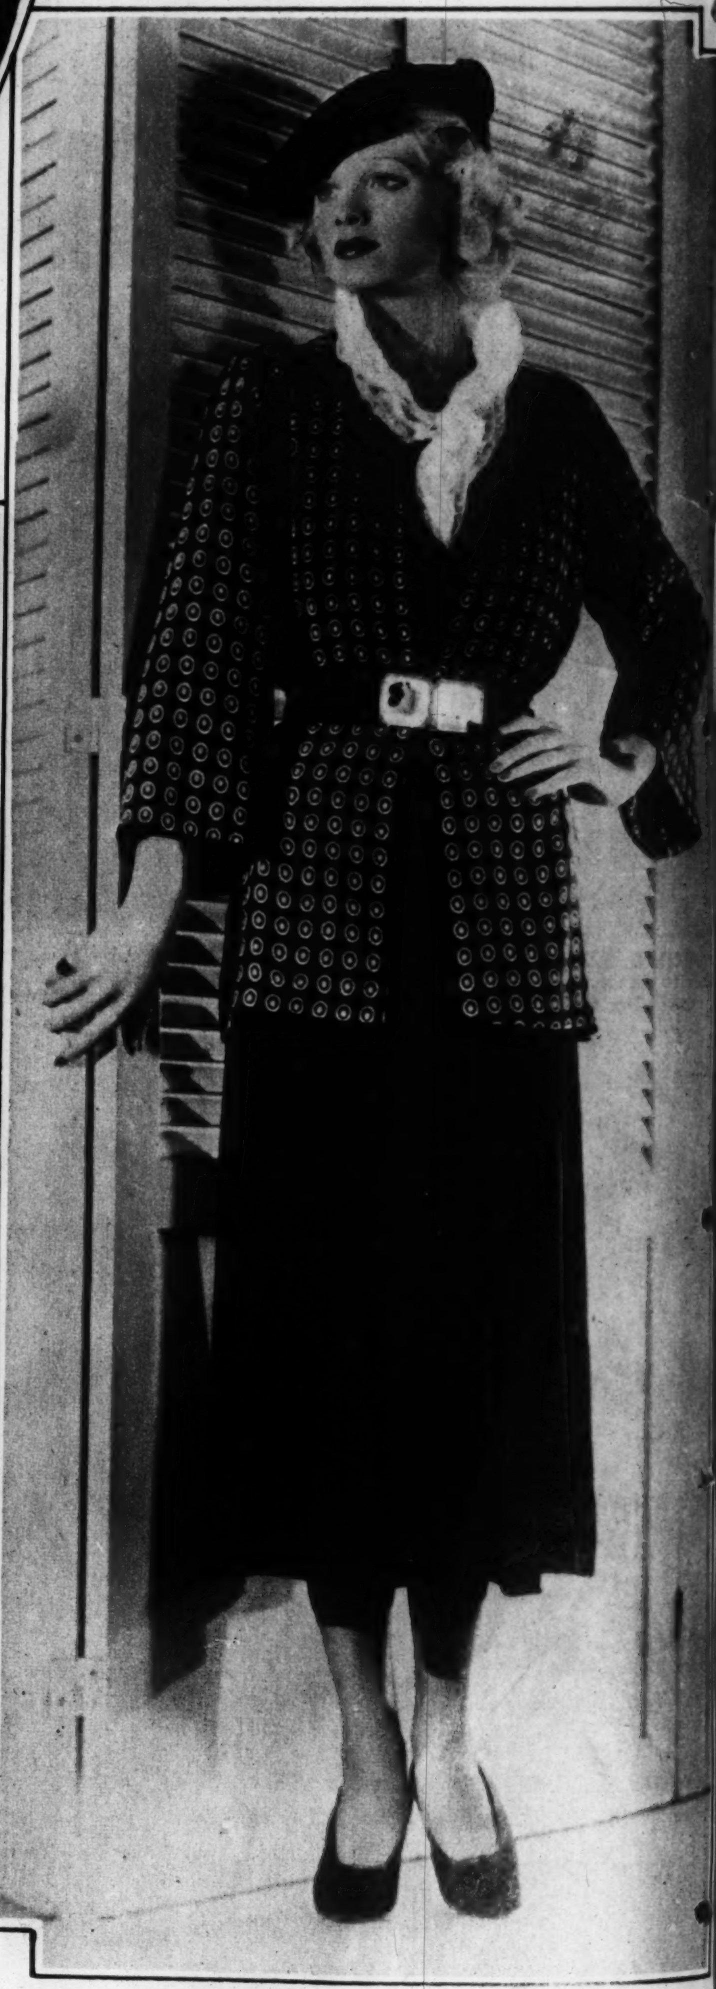
Another mixture is used for this swagger coat, hand knitted with a stitch commonly used for socks and done with large needles.



A bright sweater blouse crocheted lengthwise instead of across, and done in a rhythmical pattern that makes the most of two colors.



A cashmere pullover with half sleeves and a low neck can be effectively worn over a mixed tweed knitted ensemble like the one shown here.



A Hollywood idea for the two-piece ensemble is modeled by Lucille Ball. It is all in black and white, with a nice, simple print jacket which loses some of its effectiveness by associating with a fluffy lace ruching that belongs to the frock.

HEALTH REGAINED..

Because SARÁKA
Exercises and Strengthens the Intestinal Muscles

YOU know the glow of health that comes after invigorating outdoor exercise. You feel clear headed — full of energy — as if your whole body were running more smoothly.

But suppose your opportunities for proper outdoor exercise are limited. That's no reason why you should spend the rest of your life feeling just "pretty well"—no reason why you cannot once again enjoy excellent health.

Of all the muscles in the body, those which have most to do with keeping you well are the intestinal muscles. Saráka gives those muscles the kind of exercise they need most — internal exercise.

*Bulk Plus Motility

The principal ingredient in Saráka* is bassorit, a material gathered from trees in India. In the intestines, an amazing change takes place. The bassorit gradually expands into a material resembling soft gelatin. It forms BULK.

Bulk, as you perhaps know, is lacking in the average "civilized" meal made up of delicate, over-refined foods. Saráka fills this gap in the daily diet — gives those intestinal muscles something on which to exercise — makes them work for a living. This action is so natural yet thorough that you will be reminded of your childhood days when constipation was something you never thought of.

But, in many cases of habitual constipation, bulk alone is not enough. A second vegetable ingredient, a specially prepared frangula, is therefore used in making Saráka. Its effect is mildly to stimulate the intestinal walls to activity. You then have BULK PLUS MOTILITY, a combination not found in ordinary laxatives or cathartics—a combination that has won for Saráka a most impressive endorsement from the medical profession of America.

Worth Trying

In this advertisement, we have made a sincere effort to tell you exactly how and why Saráka can help keep you in good health. We suggest that you give this product a brief trial. You will find Saráka pleasant to take—thorough and natural in its results. The coupon below makes a very interesting introductory offer.

SCHERING CORPORATION

DON'T LET ADOLESCENT PIMPLES KEEP YOUR BOY FRIEND AWAY

PIMPLES are all too common in the years that follow the beginning of adolescence—from about 13 to the age of 25, or even longer. Important glands develop and final growth takes place during this time. This causes disturbances throughout the body. The skin becomes oversensitive. Waste poisons in the blood irritate this sensitive skin, causing pimples to break out.

Clear up these adolescent pimples—with Fleischmann's Yeast. This fresh yeast clears the skin irritants out of your blood. Pimples go. You find your skin is fresh and smooth again.

Eat Fleischmann's Yeast 3 times a day, before meals—plain, or in a little water—until your skin clears. Start today!

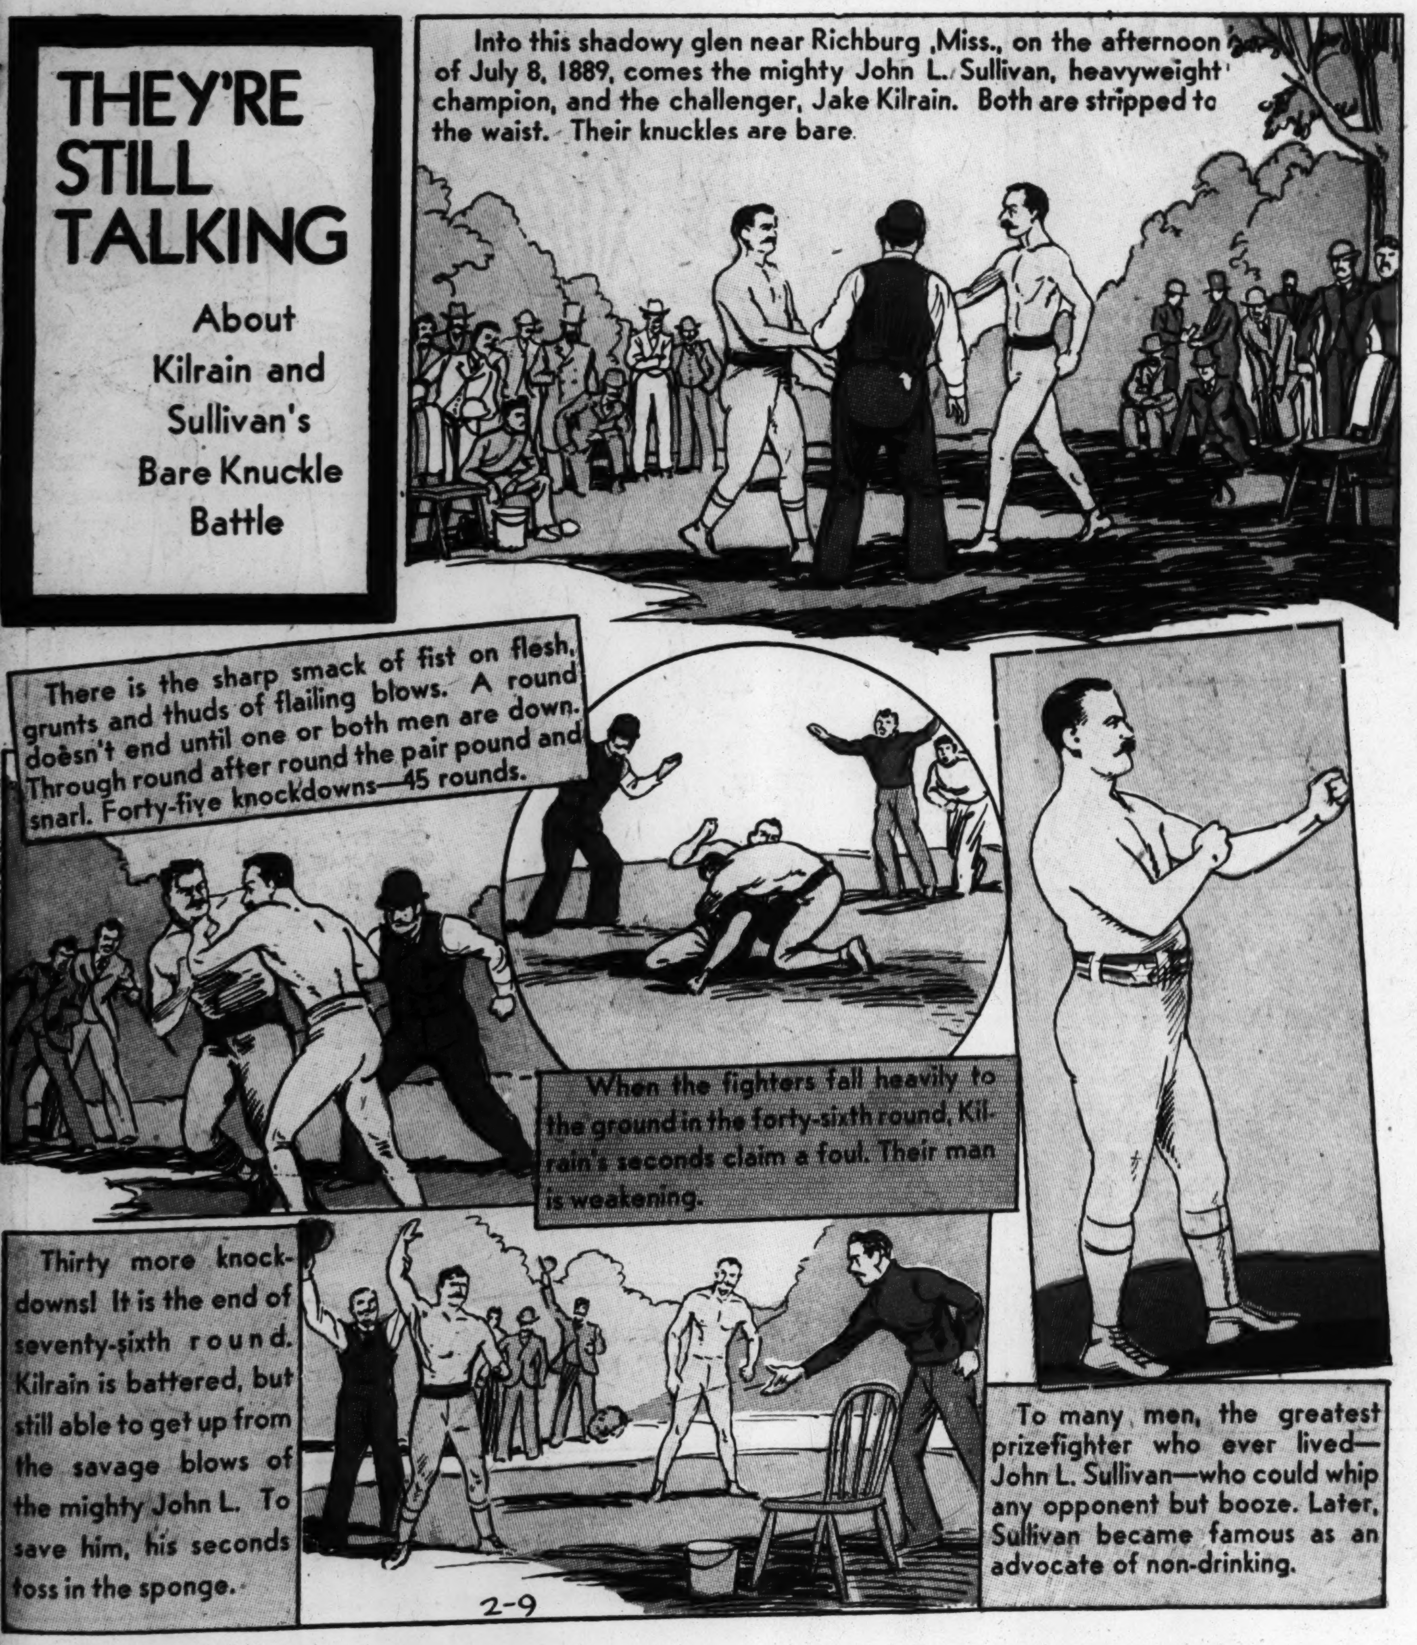
THEY'RE STILL TALKING

About Kilrain and Sullivan's Bare Knuckle Battle



Into this shadowy glen near Richburg, Miss., on the afternoon of July 8, 1889, comes the mighty John L. Sullivan, heavyweight champion, and the challenger, Jake Kilrain. Both are stripped to the waist. Their knuckles are bare.

There is the sharp smack of fist on flesh, grunts and thuds of flailing blows. A round doesn't end until one or both men are down. Through round after round the pair pound and snarl. Forty-five knockdowns—45 rounds.

Thirty more knockdowns! It is the end of seventy-sixth round. Kilrain is battered, but still able to get up from the savage blows of the mighty John L. To save him, his seconds toss in the sponge.

To many men, the greatest prizefighter who ever lived—John L. Sullivan—who could whip any opponent but booze. Later, Sullivan became famous as an advocate of non-drinking.

OH, FOR JUST A LITTLE SUNSHINE!
IT'S A DISGRACE HOW GRAY AND DINGY WE LOOK!
DORA'S DINGY WINTER WASHES
ALWAYS HAD THAT FRIGHTFUL "GRAY LOOK" UNTIL-BAR SOAP—YOU'RE JUST A LAZY GOOD-FOR-NOTHING! THOSE SHIRTS LOOK WORSE AND WORSE EACH WEEK
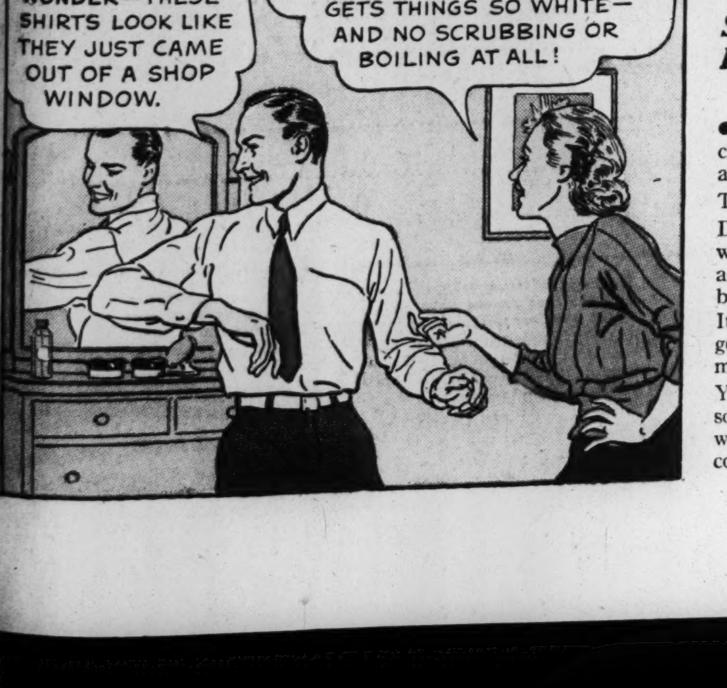
BAR SOAP
OH, IF ONLY SPRING WOULD COME—AND I COULD GET THESE DINGY OLD CLOTHES OUT IN THE SUN.
BUT DORA, THOSE CLOTHES SHOULDN'T WASH GRAY IF YOU'RE USING A MODERN SOAP. COME ON, I'LL SHOW YOU.
MINUTES LATER
THOSE "NO-SCRUB" GRANULATED SOAPS MAY WASH THINGS WHITE—BUT THEY'RE AWFULLY HARSH. I TRIED ONE ONCE AND IT FADED THINGS TERRIBLY!
BUT HAVEN'T YOU HEARD? THERE'S A NEW ONE NOW CALLED OXYDOL, MADE BY THE IVORY SOAP PEOPLE. IT'S SO MILD—YET IT GETS CLOTHES 4 TO 5 SHADES WHITER WITHOUT SCRUBBING OR BOILING AT ALL.
CAR STOP
WHAT! YOU SAY IT SOAKS OUT DIRT IN 15 MINUTES—AND STILL IT'S SAFE?
LOOK—I'VE WASHED THIS PRINT DRESS SCORES OF TIMES WITH OXYDOL—ISN'T IT FRESH AND BRIGHT?
EVERYONE'S RAVING ABOUT IT. IT'S THE ONLY SOAP MY WIFE WILL USE, AND SHE HAS THE PICK OF THE WHOLE STORE.
THIS NEW SAFE "NO-SCRUB" OXYDOL
LATER
IT'S ALMOST A MIRACLE! ONLY 15 MINUTES' SOAKING—AND LOOK HOW WHITE THEY WASHED.
AND SEE HOW FRESH AND SWEET THEY SMELL!
BOY! I FEEL JUST LIKE A DAY IN JUNE!
ISN'T IT GREAT! NEVER FELT SO WHITE AND CLEAN BEFORE—THANKS TO OXYDOL.

Advertisement



A FEW DAYS LATER,
HONEY, YOU'RE A WONDER—THESE SHIRTS LOOK LIKE THEY JUST CAME OUT OF A SHOP WINDOW.
IT'S A MARVELOUS NEW SOAP I'VE FOUND, JOHN-OXYDOL IT'S ALMOST A MIRACLE HOW IT GETS THINGS SO WHITE—AND NO SCRUBBING OR BOILING AT ALL!

AMAZING SOAP ACTS ON UTTERLY NEW PRINCIPLE

Soaks White Clothes Snowy White In Record Time—Yet Won't Fade Any Washable Color

- Yes—see that "winter gray" look disappear from clothes as if by magic! And—get washes that smell as fresh and sweet as a day in June!

This amazing soap, OXYDOL, now makes this possible.

Developed by the makers of gentle Ivory, OXYDOL works on an utterly new principle—combining speed and safety in a way no single soap has ever done before.

It is made by a patented process which makes mild, gentle soap much faster acting . . . a formula which makes it 2 to 4 times whiter washing!

You soak clothes just 15 minutes to the tubful . . . no scrubbing, no boiling . . . and white clothes wash so white it will amaze you. Even the "tough spots" come snowy white with a gentle rub.

Thus you get snowy white "June Day" washes even in the dead of winter. Washes that smell so sweet and fresh your friends will envy you.

Yet OXYDOL is so safe and mild that every washable color comes out brilliant, fresh. Even sheer cotton prints, soaked through 100 consecutive washings in OXYDOL, showed no perceptible sign of fading.

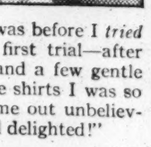
OXYDOL is economical, too. One package often gives twice the suds—does twice the work—lasts twice as long as old-fashioned bars, flakes, or chips.

No wonder women everywhere are quitting old-type soaps of every sort, and switching to this marvelous new invention.

Accept FREE Trial

Send your name and address to Procter & Gamble, Dept. D6-1, Box 1801, Cincinnati, Ohio, and we'll see you get a regular 10c package (enough for 2 full washings) absolutely free. Or avoid delay—get OXYDOL from your own dealer.

Astonished How Oxydol Banishes "February Gray"



"The big problem I had was to get my husband's shirts clean and really white. I tried many ways of washing them but they never came out white enough to please me. One day I heard about OXYDOL, though I confess I was rather skeptical about what it would do. But that was before I tried Oxydol because at the very first trial—after merely 15 minutes' soaking and a few gentle rubs on collars and cuffs—the shirts I was so anxious to have look right came out unbelievably white! I was thrilled and delighted!"

GORDON SCHOOL
"TOM THUMB WEDDING"

MOTHERS! Ovaltine is a delicious pure food concentrate first created in Switzerland and approved by thousands of physicians. Already it has gained world-wide recognition—and is particularly noted for the remarkable increases in weight and nerve poise which so often occur when it is added to the daily diet.

For example, Mrs. F. H. Ott, 120 N. 12th Street, Clintonville, Wis., writes:—"My daughter was very nervous, underweight, and had difficulty with her lessons. We started giving her Ovaltine which I read about in the paper. She is doing wonderfully now in school and has overcome her nervousness. She has also gained 4¼ pounds in four weeks. We are surely thankful to Ovaltine."

This letter, of course, covers only one individual case. And we do not claim or guarantee that similar results will occur in every case where Ovaltine is used. But this letter is so typical of thousands we have received, that we believe a thorough trial of Ovaltine is justified by every intelligent mother whose child is nervous and underweight.

Thousands of nervous people, men and women, use Ovaltine to restore vitality when fatigued . . . Ovaltine is also highly recommended as a strengthening food for nursing mothers, convalescents, and the aged—and for sleeplessness when taken as a hot drink at bedtime.

Ovaltine is very inexpensive to serve—and can be obtained at all drug and grocery stores. You simply give it mixed with milk—either hot or cold—and children love its delicious taste. . . . Note special offer at the right.

YVONNE is always full of mischief. She can't resist the temptation to get her hands on your hair and then pull with all her might. Maybe it's because she's proud of her own hair, which is a little thicker and longer than her sisters'.

ANNETTE is a little rogue who cries one minute and laughs the next. If she doesn't get what she wants she drops the corners of her mouth into an adorable little pout that no one can resist. She's a speed demon in everything.

CECILE is a little coquette. She rolls her big blue-black eyes to attract attention, and then dreamily half closes them to get the full effect of her long, dusky lashes. She likes to put her arms around your neck and "hold on tight."

EMILIE promises to be a star athlete. She's getting off to an early start by being champion water splasher and kicker. She's a firm believer in knee action and perpetual motion, and is the most individualistic of them all.

MARIE is the most serious. She has an intriguing Mona Lisa smile, and even when she laughs, she seems to be miles away deciding some weighty problem. She's not quite as active as the others, but she's certainly a thinker.
